PROHIBITION 'TRIAL' COMES TO CLOSE

BOTH SIDES WANT VERDICT AT THE POLLS

Senate Hearing Completed With Impassioned Pleas By Codman and Wheeler - - - Committee Will Meet Later To Digest Testimony.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(I. N .S.)—The first public trial of prohibition to be held in the congressional court since the dry law was written into the constitution six years ago closed tonight with both wets and drys claiming they have proved their respective cases.

The trial ended in an impassioned burst of oratory before the senate prohibition committee with Julien Codman, the wets "prosecuting attorney," pleading for modification through enactment of beer and light wine legislation.

A little earlier Wayne B. Wheeler, generalissimo of the dry forces, wound up the defense of prohibition by declaring it had proved its worth to the American people morally, economically and physically and protesting against any change in the law in response to appeals from "law breakers and criminals."

With the hearings completed, both side were determined to go to the polls for a verdict. The drys will seek to elect another bone dry congress in November, while the wets will seek to organize the country for a national referendum on prohibition in 1928.

The committee will meet later to act on all the testimony given for modification. The committee is, with one exception, composed of drys, hence all modification bills will be rejected and all bills aimed at more rigid enforcement will be approved.

Codman Summarizes.

1—Prohibition cannot be enforced so long as the human appetite for liquor remains.

2—Since prohibition, drinking, drunkenness and crime have appallingly increased.

3—Corruption exists on a scale so colossal as to endanger American institutions while disrespect grows for all laws.

4—Enactment of beer and wine legislation would be a great service to the nation although not a panacea for all the ills of prohibition.

4—Millions of people will continue to drink what they please regardless of all law.

Wheeler's Argument.

In brief Wheeler summarized the dry case:

1—A battle against criminals

In a joint resolution to the house, Representative Adolph J. Sabath, Ill., proposes independence of the Philippines under the protection of international treaties, making them perpetually neutral territory.

Storm Dead In South 15

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 2.—(U. P.)—Conditions over the stormswept southwest tonight were regarded as critical as flood crests rose in southeastern Texas and damaging winds swept the Kansas wheat fields.

The week's storm toll tonight had been raised to fifteen as result of a wind and electrical storm in Oklahoma.

Eleven persons were killed or drowned in Texas floods and wind storms last week, while four others were killed in the Oklahoma storms.

Damage in both stricken sections will amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars, according to an unofficial estimate. Livestock, growing crops and farm property were affected.

Slight damage was also reported near Fayettesville, Ark., where a severe electrical storm was accompanied by wind.

A dust storm was blowing over Kansas wheat areas and causing some damage to crops, according to the weather bureau. The same disturbance was also reported in western Missouri.

Too Little Of Home Cooking Is Dawes' Complaint

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—"Too little home cooking and too much oratory."

That, take it from Charles G. Dawes, is what is the matter with the vice presidency of the United States.

In a speech before the Daughters of the American Revolution, the vice president described his job as being one of "dining out" and listening.

General Dawes told the daughters he used to be opposed to woman suffrage, but after having seen the senate in action he was now in favor of it.

Thousands Flee Moscow Homes As River Rises

MOSCOW, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Faced with the possibility of serious flood disasters, Moscow found but little heart tonight for celebration of the signing of the Russo-Germany amity treaty.

The Moska river continues to rise and the number of persons forced from their homes increases hourly. Thousands of riverside dwellers are already housed in public halls and institutions, having been driven from their homes.

Damage Is Heavy.

MOSCOW, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—More than 20,000 people have been driven from their homes by the rise of the Moska river, it was reported today. During the night the river mounted steadily, reaching a height of thirty feet this morning.

No causalities have been reported, but damage to property is said to be enormous.

Water has reached thee second stories of buildings on the low lands. This is a district occupied by factories and laboring classes. Several of the factories have been forced to cease operation. Most of the streetcar lines had stopped running.

Indications were that the river would pass the level of the flood of 1908.

COMMANDER RECOVERING.

CHICAGO, April 24.—(U. P.)—Evangeline Booth, national commander of the Salvation Army, is recovering from the attack of appendicitis which seized her early this week, attending physicians said today. She will be able to leave Chicago Monday for New York.

Takes Airplane Photo While He Speeds In Dark

DAYTON, O., April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Congratulations were being heaped today upon Lieut. George Goddard, United States army flier, who last night for the first time in history succeeded in taking a flash light photograph of a landscape from an airplane flying at terrific speed in the darkness.

Thousands of feet above the earth Lieutenant Goddard released a photographic bomb of his own invention. Its forty-five pounds of flashlight powder exploded with a flash and detonation plainly audible for miles around. The Dayton telephone exchanges were swamped with hundreds of queries from alarmed residents.

The experiment was a part of the mimic warfare in which the defending "Blue" air army was defeated yesterday.

BRYAN FILES FOR GOVERNOR; STATES ISSUES

ISSUES STATEMENT OUTLINING PLATFORM

Declares Campaign Must Be Based Squarely On Administrative Records — Charges Republicans With "Wild Orgy of Spending."

Re-entry of Charles W. Bryan, former governor of Nebraska, into the field of state politics, which some observers regard as the first move in a campaign for the democratic presidential nomination two years hence, was signalized Saturday afternoon by his filing personal application with Secretary of State Pool to have his name placed on the party ballot for the August primary as a candidate for governor.

A few hours before Mr. Bryan took this action, E. E. Placek of Wahoo announced his declination to accept the petition nomination for the governorship tendered him a few days ago by 48 voters at Loup City and Ashton. It is believed that Congressman J. H. Morehead, in whose behalf a gubernatorial petition from Douglas county was presented recently, will follow Placek's example, and that Morehead will refile for congress.

Makes Statement.

Ex-Governor Bryan, who is thus far the only avowed democratic aspirant for governor, gave out a lengthy statement Saturday afternoon comparing the achievements of his own administration with those of Governor McMullen's regime, and declaring that the issues of the campaign would be based on their records.

"To the People of Nebraska: I have this day made a personal filing wit hthe secretary of state as a candidate, subject to the decision of the democratic primaries for the great office of governor of the state of Nebraska.

"The taxpayers have decreed that the issues in this campaign will be economy and efficiency versus extravagance; public offi-

RUSSO-GERMAN PACT IS SIGNED

Europe Faces New Entanglement As Result Of Neutrality Treaty.

BERLIN, April 24. — (U. P.) — Europe faces a new international complication following the signing this afternoon of the Russo-German neutrality treaty at Wilhemstrasse. The treaty was signed after final approval by the German cabinet and President von Hindenburg.

Following the signature, the Russian ambassador exchanged notes with Foreign Minister Stresemann. The German note reaffirms that the neutrality treaty does not conflict with the Locarno agreement nor with the League of Nations covenant.

It nevertheless is suggested that the league may refuse to recognize the treaty, although it does not in itself conjure up threats of aggression or of war but is intended for the pacification of Europe. It is alleged, however, that the treaty does conflict with Article 16 of the league covenant which would obligate Germany, if she were a member of the league, to join in military and economic actions against soviet Russia or any other country found guilty by the league of provoking war.

So far as Germany and Russia are concerned the treaty has a twofold purpose:

1—To relieve soviet Russia of anxiety lest Germany should become the corridor of future military advances against Moscow.

2—To reassure Germany that the soviet government and army would remain neutral in case Poland or France began military or economic actions against Germany.

Germany's application for membership in the League of Nations, postponed owing to inability to provide her with a permanent council seat last March, will be up for consideration before the league assembly meeting in September.

Accident Victims Reported Improved

Saturday's two accident victims were reported improved at local hospitals late Saturday evening. Richard Elster, 23-year-old student who was struck by a car at Fourteenth and S streets, was resting well at St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Mrs. John Slama, although suffering a sever concussion of the brain and a possible skull fracture, was improved at the Lincoln Sanitarium, according to Dr. Earnest Everett.

Mrs. Slama was struck by an automobile while she was crossing the O street viaduct.

Thirteen Co-Eds Are Given a Ride In Police Patrol

CHICAGO, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Thirteen co-ed candidates for the Alpha Phi Beta took a ride in a police patrol early this morning and it was no part of the initiation program.

The girls are students of the fashionable Oak Park school for girls. The ceremony began with a banquet at the Congress hotel. Later the class marched up Michigan boulevard; singing and dancing.

They raided the foyer of McVicker's theater and began serenading the blushing ushers. The manager called the wagon. They were taken to central station.

After a severe lecture, the merry maidens were allowed to go home.

Starvation Now Is Threatening City of Peking

PEKING, April 24.— (U. P.) — Starvation tonight threatened the city of Peking, invaded by an army of 50,000 refugees.

Through the gates of the cit ytoday filed long lines of suffering destitutes of all ages. They told almost unbelievable stories of atrocities at the hands of Manchurian soldiers.

Homes in Peking at first were thrown open to the incoming refugees and every effort was made to provide for their needs. But as their number increased, the situation became alarming. Shops were closed in most sections of the city as the proprietors refused to accept the orders of the military that they accept militaristic money.

Some hope for relief was held out through the promise of Gen. Chang Hsieh Lang, who commands the troops, that his soldiers would be withdrawn into Manchuria "as soon as peace is restored."

The young general is the son of Marshal Chang Tso Lin, war lord of Manchuria, and he said his plans were in line with the program of his father.

Will Submit Bill To Seize German Princes' Property

BERLIN, April 24.—(I.N.S.)—The government has announced its decision to submit to the reichstag the joint communist-socialist bill for dispossessing the former German princes of their property.

The ministry, however, declared that the proposed measure conflicted with the legal principles of the constitution and went on record as favoring indemnification.

ITALY DENIES

ROME, April 24.—(I.N.S.)—Rumors that Italy is preparing for military operations, which have been circulated, were officially denied today.

PASSENGERS SHAKEN.

CONCORD, N. H., April 24.—One passenger, George W. Tappin of Lynn, was hurt, and ninety passengers were shaken up when seven cars of the Montreal to Boston express were derailed near Gerrish station, thirteen miles north of here, today. The train is believed to have struck a broken rail. As two occupied sleepers left the tracks, passengers were thrown from their berths but none seriously injured. An extra train was made up and passengers were sent on to Boston.

MORGAN'S DREAM OF SHIP POWER SEEMS FAILURE

Negotiations Begin For Sale Of White Star Line To British.

NEW YORK, April 24.—(U. P.)—The dream conceived by the elder J. P. Morgan to establish American financial supremacy over the world's great shipping interests appears now to have ended in failure.

Negotiations are in progress for the sale of the famous White Star line from American to British capital.

The White Star, although it flies the Union Jack and is under British registry, is owned by the International Mercantile Marine, an American corporation capitalized at $170,000,000. It is the largest shipping organization in the world.

A deal whereby the White Star line would pass to the British already has been reached whereby J. P. Morgan ,head of the international banking firm which bears his name, and Charles Steele, member of the firm and its legal adviser, have resigned as directors of the International Mercantile Marine in Wall street. The resignation is explained by the fact that Morgan, Greene and Co., the London house with which Morgan affiliates, is participating in the negotiations of the sale of the White Star line.

John H. Thomas, vice president of the International Mercantile Marine announced today that "in view of the contemplated sale of some of the company's properties in which their London partners may be interested they (Morgan and Steele) have considered it appropriate to withdraw from the board of directors of the International Mercantile Marine."

Talking Moving Pictures Shown To Journalists

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Pan-American journalists, delegates to the Pan-American congress of journalists, who arrived here today saw the first public demonstration of new talking motion pictures. The new device, known as the Pallophotophone, "talking moving light," created a sensation for the visitors on their arrival here were filmed by the new process and only a few minutes later they were taken into a projection room of the General Electric laboratories where they saw themselves on the screen and heard reproductions of their own voices.

At a luncheon at the General Electric plant the journalists heard reports on the reception of radio messages, which were broadcasted to Latin-American nations last night.

While the journalists were primarily interested in new electrical newspaper equipment they were also amazed by a demonstration of manmade lightning of a million volts. Imitation thunderbolts were hurled at toy cities, destroying them and then there was a demonstration of how this replica of nature's force could be controlled by modern lightning rods.

BRITISH STRIKE LOOKS CERTAIN

Notices of New Wage Scales Posted At English Coal Fields—Premier Baldwin Hopes To Avert Tie-Up.

LONDON, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Notices of new wage scales with general reductions are posted at the pit heads in the English coal fields tonight. These brief notices probably are the first signs of a great industrial struggle—a tie-up of the English coal industry.

"The operators mean to force a conflict," declared A. J. Cook miners' head tonight when advised that the new wage proposals had been posted. Cook declared that the miners would not accept the wage reductions and that it looked like a stoppage of work—the public to decide whether it is a lockout or a strike.

Premier Baldwin still is striving to find some means of averting the strike and has remained in London to confer with officials of the mines department.

Woodward Estate Is Valued at $418,000

An inventory of the estate of the late William Woodward, filed in County court Saturday afternoon, shows the property to be worth $412,034.01.

It consists of twenty-seven pieces of real estate located in Nebraska, California, Colorado, Iowa and Kansas and worth $220,313.75; and thirty-eight items of personal property, mostly in the form of notes, valued at $191,720.26.

SHRADER ENDS LIFE WHILE PROBE IS ON

WIFE'S CHARRED BODY DISCOVERED IN SEDAN

Suicide Follows Investigation Into Tragic Death Former Lincoln Girl and Announcement That Inquest Was Likely To Be Held.

(Special to The Star.)

AURORA, Neb., April 24.—Wayne L. Shrader, 26, whose wife, formerly Miss Gladys Lock of Lincoln, was found burned beyond recognition in a Ford sedan just south of Central City bridge over the Platte river early last Sunday morning, ended his life by slashing his throat with a bread knife in a building at the home of his father at Surprise, Neb., shortly after two o'clock Saturday afternoon.

His body was found by members of the family who were looking for him at 2:15.

He left no note or word, so far as his people have been able to ascertain, but his self destruction occurred only a few hours after officers who had been investigating the death of his wife had informed him that an inquest was likely to occur.

When Shrader was told that an inquest was probable he told State Sheriff Condit and Sheriff James E. Howard of Hamilton county that he would be glad to attend.

It was stated by officials here tonight that unless something further developed the inquest would be dispensed with.

State Sheriff Condit and County Sheriff Howard spent all of Friday and up until 2 o'clock Saturday morning interviewing prospective witnesses for an inquest, being accompanied by a stenographer. They saw and talked with people in the country and at Central City, Polk, Osceola and Surprise. It was at the latter place that they talked with Shrader.

Blood On Clothing.

Sheriff Condit questioned the man minutely about the blood upon his shirt sleeves. The cuffs of the shirt he wore were saturated with blood and on the shirt sleeve near the elbow other large spots of blood. At the time Shrader reached

Delay Sending Of Plane Detroiter In Search Of Wilkins

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, April 24.—(U. P.)—Further delay in sending a relief plane to seek Capt. George H. Wilkins and Pilot Ben Eielson of the Arctic expedition was necessary today.

Maj. Thomas G. Lanphier, who intended to take off in the monoplane Detroiter to search for the missing aviators, was forced to postpone the hopoff because of necessary adjustments to equipment. The Detroiter was in the air an hour, while the crew tested the compass and other equipment.

Present plans call for the take off of the Detroiter on Monday.

Wilkins and Eielson have been gone since April 15. They departed for Point Barow with a heavy load of supplies for the projected Arctic flight and were expected to return within a day or two.

Members of the expedition refuse to believe any misfortune has befallen the aviators, stating instead that they probaly have tarried at Point Barrow and are making scouting trips over the northern ice pack.

BAXTER FOUND GUILTY.

CHICAGO, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Alonzo P. Baxter, former federal agent, today was found guilty of a charge of giving drugs to addicts by a jury which heard the case in Federal Judge James H. Wilkinson's court. He was found not guilty of six other counts, including charges of extortion of money from dope peddlers. Motion for a new trial was made by Baxter's attorney, David Stansbury, and Judge Wilkinson deferred sentence and continued the case until May 17. Col. William Gray Beach, former narcotic chief here, indicted on the same charges as Baxter, is scheduled to go to trial next week.

THE WEATHER.

The weather outlook for the period April 26 to May 1, inclusive:

Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys: Mostly fair except showers about the middle of week; rising temperature Monday and Tuesday, colder about Thursday.

Nebraska: Fair Sunday and probably Monday, rising temperature Monday and in northwest portion Sunday.

Kansas: Fair Sunday and probably Monday; rising temperature Monday and in northwest portion Sunday.

U. S. STILL EXPECTS AN AGREEMENT

American Funding Commission Finds Paris Settlement Proposal Unsatisfactory In Present Form, But Optimism Undiminished.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—France's latest proposal for paying her war debt of $4,000,000,000, which involves annual payments graduated from $25,000,000 to $110,000,000 over a period of sixty-two years, is not acceptable to the American debt commission in its present form.

This much was disclosed today when the commissioners spent nearly two hours examining the seven page proposition submitted by Ambassador Berenger. Despite its failure to meet expectations, however, the optimism over an ultimate agreement remained undiminished tonight.

Acceptance or rejection of the proposal was not voted on in today's meeting, but members of the commission said individually, "France will have to better her offer."

All agreed the proposition is the best Paris has as yet put forth, being an advance over what the Caillaux mission proposed, but still falling short of what the commission thinks France is capable of paying.

"Safety Clause" Bugaboo.

While the old bugaboo of the "safety clause," under which France would make her payments contingent upon how much she can squeeze out of Germany, has been largely dissipated, there yet remains enough of it to make the Americans shy.

Caillaux insisted upon a clause pledging a flat revision of the settlement agreement should Germany default in her reparations payments. In the Berenger offer this has been modified to the extent of giving France the right to "petition a reconsideration" should Germany fall down.

The Berenger plan will be further considered Monday and following that meeting it is probable M. Berenger will be invited to make certain changes in the proposition.

While Secretary of the Treasury Mellon said the offer was "consid-

Norris' Life Threatened

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Senator Norris, republican of Nebraska, tonight turned over to postal authorities a number of letters threatening his life for demanding government operation of Muscle Shoals.

SEN. GEORGE W. NORRIS.

Norris, who had just returned from an inspection tour of the government's $150,000,000 power project, said the letters, all anonymous, were probably from cranks.

To Submit Reports.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—The congressional Muscle Shoals commission late tonight abandoned its attempt to reach an unanimous agreement on acceptance of a leasing bid for the government's giant hydro-electric project, and indicated that at least two and possibly three separate reports might be formally transmitted to congress next Monday.

Four of the six members favored acceptance of the Muscle Shoals Power Distribution co.'s offer.

Senator Heflin, democrat of Alabama, held out for the American Cyanamid Co.'s offer and Representative James, republican of Michigan, was against both.

New Shake-Up In Dry Forces Has Started

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(U. N. S.)—A further shakeup in the prohibition enforcement machine, aimed at the elimination of regional administrators who were "inherited" by Lincoln C. Andrews when he took over the organization, was begun here today.

On the hels of Andrews' action in dropping William G. Murdock, the Philadelphia administrator, it became known that Edmund Bunnitz of Baltimore, also was slated for retirement.

Andrews' request that congress legalize the employment of retired army and navy officers without loss of their retirement pay indicates that he has a plan on foot for a prohibition machine of radically different complexion than now exists.

Officials said that the "trial period" under which Andrews placed his appointees some time ago has expired.

Lemieux To Be Canadian Envoy To The U. S.

OTTAWA, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Hon. Rodolph Lemieux, speaker of the house of commons will be named as Canadian diplomatic representative to the United States, it was reliably stated this afternoon. An official announcement is expected in a few days. He will take up his duties at the conclusion of the present preliminary session.

BEVERIDGE SAYS TOO MANY LAWS

Ex-Senator Assigns Cause For Much Lawbreaking In U. S.

TEXARKANA, Ark., April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Too many laws and statute books overloaded were blamed by ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana speaking today before the convention of the bar association of Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas, for "law breaking that is far in excess of that of any other country."

"After effects of war cannot be blamed for our lawlessness," said Beveridge. "The contrast between the official records of America and European countries in this respect is unbelievable, and they have had much more war than we have, and the after effects were more marked. Yet the record of law breaking is almost unbelieveably below ours."

"We are the victims of that disease which has been gnawing at us for years, the idea that any evil can be cured if we put on the books enough legislation forbidding it."

ARREST WATCHMAN.

Arthur Bowen, 25, a night watchman, was arrested early Sunday morning by Deputy State Sheriffs Weygint, Dudschus and Schmitt and is held at the city jail. No charge has been filed.

Plane Mitchell Intended To Fly Crashes In West

LOS ANGELES, Calif., April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Col. William Mitchell, deposed flying officer, and spectacular critic of the nation's military air policy, escaped death by ninety minutes today when a tiny "Humming Bird" monoplane, in which he was to have flown later, crashed to earth at the Brea air port, near Whittier, killing Ray Freeman, 19-year-old Long Beach aviator.

Colonel Mitchell, guest of honor at the Brea air carnival in which 100 planes were entered was scheduled to fly the smallest plane and then the largest plane as the feature of the days' events.

The little plane, built in southern California, was the small craft which the noted aviator was to have flown. An hour and a half before the flight, young Freeman took the plane out to "give it a little warm up" before Colonel Mitchell flew it.

2—No surrender to bootleggers.

3—More teeth in the enforcement law.

4—Appointment of dry officers who believe in prohibition.

5—Praise of dry law for decreasing death rates, crime and drunkenness and increasing happiness.

6—Opposition to a national referendum because it is an "illegal dead duck."

Three Yale students, called for the final session, testified that drinking was widespread at their college. The students were Russell Lee Post, chairman of Yale Daily News, Greely Sturdivant, jr., its managing editor, and Albert Wells. They contradicted testimony given last week by Prof. Irving Fisher, Yale economist, that drinking was on the decrease among students. The boys said bootleggers thrive in New Haven and that the liquor supply was unlimited.

The high lights of the closing session were the legal arguments of Codman and Wheeler. Both were vociferously cheered by their friends in the audience.

Codman Quotes Coolidge.

Codman quoted President Coolidge to support his argument. "Any attempt to dragoon the body when the need is to convince the soul, will end in revolt," he said.

The time has come, Codman declared, "when congress must consider the best way to get out of this terrible mess. We must attempt step by step to conquer the evils which these madmen have brought upon us and although I don't think this will be a panacea, I feel confident that to substitute wine and beer for the flood of moonshine which is pouring over this country, you will be doing a great service to our people.

"The plain fact is that millions of the citizens of both sexes and in every walk of life intend to live their own private lives in their own way—to eat what they please and to drink what they can afford. They do not intend to be deterred from the gratification from these eminently reasonable desires because fanatics rave or because cowardly legislators pass foolish laws."

As for the evil effects of prohibition, Codman said:

Since 1920, drinking and drunkenness have increased throughout the whole country in a most appalling manner ,women and children in this country drink as never before.

Claims Colossal Corruption.

Corruption exists upon a scale so colossal that it makes me tremble for the security of our institutions.

Codman bitterly attacked the administration's new enforcement bill which would empower agents to search homes for private stills only a "poor and bloodless people" would accept such a law, Codman said.

Wheeler summed up the modification battle as a case where "the wets want booze with a kick in it while the drys want prohibition and want it more effective.

"The American people do not favor any surrender to the bootlegger, or to the brewer," he said. "This nation has never retreated. It is not in the mood to permit criminals and lawbreakers to revise its legislation and repeal its law. It demands that those in authority attack the foe of law and order. It wants its officers provided with whatever legal machinery is necessary to win this fight. Then it will not accept excuses but will demand results."

Would Oust Buckner.

Wheeler, suggesting the removal of United States Attorney Emory Buckner of New York, said "There should be officials in New York like those in Chicago and Cleveland, who instead of recounting why the law is not enforced have gone to work.

"The argument for 2.75 per cent beer or the other beer measures is largely a sham battle. The Eighteenth amendment stands in the way of such legislation. Just one measure before this committee offers a legitimate proposal. This is the bill to amend the Eighteenth amendment. There is no other way by which they can legally get back the drinks they want.

While on the stand, General Andrews' dry enforcement chief, said that while he thought beer making would aid law enforcement he did not recommend the change.

"You did not mean you favored changing the law?" asked Senator Harreld, republican of Oklahoma.

"I certainly did not."

"You do not mean, General, to change the testimony you gave the other day, do you?" asked Senator Reed, democrat of Missouri.

"Oh, no sir," the dry "czar" replied.

At the conclusion of the hearings, Senator Harreld made a statement replying to wet criticisms of his rulings as chairman. He said he did not "apologize" for his rulings and blamed the criticism on a "fear of an adverse report."

Wheeler To Fight Revision.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—The American people will not permit "criminals and lawbreakers" to revise the constitution, Wayne B. Wheeler, generalissimo of the dry forces, declared today in a final argument to the senate prohibition committee against modification of the national dry law.

War to the death against bootleggers, new legal machinery to put "teeth" in the federal enforcement and an aggressive defense of the dry law by those in authority was the program laid down by the dry leader.

Prohibition, he said had brought tremendous economic, industrial an social gains to the American people and is here to stay.

Wheeler, looked upon as the outstanding dry in America, made the closing argument after avoiding the witness stand during the hearings.

"The American people do not favor any surrender to the bootlegger or to the brewer," said Wheeler. "This nation has never retreated. It is not in the mood to permit criminals and lawbreakers to revise its constitution and repeal its laws. It demands that those in authority attack the foes of law and order. It wants its officers, provided with whatever legal machinery is necessary to win this fight. Then it will not accept excuses but will demand results.

Favors Border Patrol.

"The border patrol, proposed by another bill, will guard our country from smugglers of aliens and drugs as well as liquor. It will dam in the inward flow of liquor at its source.

"The Goff bill before this committee will better equip the public servants for this fight. It simplifies some complicated proceedure, improves industrial alcohol handling, provides for supervision of cereal beverage plants and extends the authority of the police in the District of Columbia.

"This measure rather than others, which would hamstring enforcement, represents the will of a nation which has outlawed a debasing traffic and is now asked to surrender under threat of continued lawlessness by the liquor group."

Only two things were proven by the hearings, Wheeler said.

First, that the wets want liquor, although disagreeing on "how weak a drink they will accept," and second, "that the drys want prohibition."

Wheeler declared the wets evidently did not know the attitude of Mayor William E. Dever of Chicago, or he would not have been called as a witness.

Wheeler stressed Dever's recommendation that no action be taken on wet bills until the whole subject was thoroughly investigated by a competent body.

Would Halt Moonshine Flood.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Congress was called upon to legalize beer and light wines as a substitute "for the flood of moonshine pouring over the country by Julien Codman, prosecuting attorney for the wets today in his closing argument to the senate prohibition committee.

Prohibition can never be forced on the American people, Codman said. In the words of President Coolidge, he said, "any attempt to dragoon the body when the need is to convince the soul will end in revolt."

"The plain fact is that millions of citizens of these United States all over the country of both sexes and in every walk of life intend to live their private lives in their own way—to eat what they please and to drink what they can afford," said Codman.

"Since 1920, when the Volstead act went into effect, drinking and drunkeness have increased throughout the whole country in a most appalling manner. You have hear evidence which cannot be disputed, that women and children in this country both drink as never before.

Says Change For Worse.

"The evidence shows clearly that the evidence of drinking has greatly changed for the worse. Alcohol in its varied forms of split whisky, gin and moonshine is now drunk by our people in place of the beer of earlier days.

"We have shown that corruption exists upon a scale so colossal that it makes me tremble for security of our institutions.

"The most important testimony of the hearings," Codman said, "was that of General Lincoln C. Andrews, who said the sale of beer under proper restriction in regard to its distribution so as to prevent the return of the saloon would be a great assistance in the enforcement of the law."

Andrews, he added, had admitted he "cannot even attempt to prevent the manufacture of alcohol and of whisky in the small stills in the homes of the people."

"As long as there is a demand for alcohol, the supply will come," Codman declared.

the home of C. C. Smith nearly a mile from the accident he wore his coat and overcoat and Sheriff Condit wanted him to explain how the blood got on his shirt near the elbow and where all the blood came from, because Shrader only received a small cut on one finger in the accident. Shrader declared that he could give no explanation, that he remembered nothing and that the sheriff know just as much about it as he did.

The death of Mrs Shrader occurred on the hill leading up to the bridge between Hamilton and Merrick counties last Sunday morning. She and her husband left Rising City about midnight and were driving to Central City to visit her mother. Shrader claims that he gave her the wheel in Polk and he climbed over into the back seat and went to sleep.

Some time afire the accident is supposed to have occurred Shrader appeared at the farm house of C. C. Smith, about a mile from where the overturned car was found. He was apparently in a dazed condition and said that his wife had upset their automobile.

Found Car Ablaze.

Smith and others accompanied the man to the scene and found the car ablaze and the heat so intense that they could not get near it, though they could see the body of the woman inside. When the body was later removed it was found to be charred beyond recognition.

In the meantime two men, Pat Heston and Arthur Whitmore were driving by the place and noticed the overturned car at the foot of the twenty-foot fill, over which it had gone. They made an investigation, but failed to see the woman within the auto. They noticed the smoke and a slight blaze back of the steering wheel, at which Mrs. Shrader was supposed to have been sitting, but they did not see her, and it is supposed she had tumbled over into the lower front corner.

These two men kicked out the windshield of the car, but still failed to see the woman. They then proceeded to Aurora and later returned with help, but the car had been consumed and the woman burned as described.

Stepfather Called.

When Mr. Smith saw conditions at the burning car he hurried to Central City and returned with the stepfather of Mrs. Shrader and others, but it was impossible to render any assistance. Shrader still appeared to be in a dazed condition and from the first maintained that he had no idea how the accident occurred.

He and his brother had been operating a barber shop at Rising City and after this was closed Saturday night at about midnight he and his wife started to drive to Central City to visit her mother. He stated that as they left the paving at Polk he gave the wheel to his wife and crawled over into the back seat and went to sleep. That was the last he remembered.

State Sheriff Condit's attention was first called to the case when he received a letter from an unnamed person stating that an investigation should be made.

The unexplained blood stains on Shrader's clothing caused the greatest amount of speculation, especially in view of the fact that he was only cut slightly on one finger. He had received a blow on the nose, but the skin was not broken.

Former Lincoln Girl.

Mrs. Shrader was formerly Gladys Lock of Lincoln. Having graduated from the high school at Central City, her home, she attended Midland college at Fremont for a year and then the University of Wisconsin for a year.

After completing a teachers' normal course at Wisconsin she came to Lincoln and was employed at a local department store. Later she went to work at a grocery store, and was employed there about a year.

In October, 1925, Miss Lock was forced to give up her position for a time on account of illness. She was married in Columbus, December 30, 1925.

From there Mr. and Mrs. Shrader moved to Rising City, Shrader's home.

Condit Drops Probe.

State Sheriff Condit and his deputy, Lester Hasson, returned to Lincoln late Saturday night from Central City where he has been investigating the death of Mrs. Wayne L. Shrader.

He was on his way to Central City yesterday afternoon to make an examination of the place where the accident occurred when he was informed of Shrader's suicide. Upon receiving this information he dropped his plans for further investigation and returned to Lincoln.

Although it has not been decided definitely, Condit indicated that he would probably not press his investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of the woman. He did not know of the plans of the local officials.

Condit offered no opinion as to just what occurred prior to the death of Mrs. Shrader, in view of the fact that her husband had taken his life. The state sheriff said that when he talked to Shrader at his home in Surprise Friday night he merely asked him to explain the presence of the blood on his clothes and other circumstances regarding the accident. Shrader, Condit said, was unable to remember anything that had happened.

According to the story told by Shrader, after he and his wife left Polk on the night of the accident, Mrs. Shrader wanted to drive for a while. She took the wheel and he crawled into the rear seat and went to sleep. That is the last thing that he remembered, he told Condit.

Contract For Steel Protective Work On a Vault at Capitol

A contract to furnish and install steel protection work for a basement vault in the new capitol, that will serve as a repository for securities in custody of the state insurance bureau and the guaranty fund commission, connecting with offices of the trade and commerce department, was awarded Saturday by the capitol commission to the Mosler Safe Co. of Omaha for $7,525. Its bid was the lowest of three propositions received.

Electrical apparatus for the vault will be supplied and put into place by the O. B. McClintock Co. of Minneapolis, at the priceof $1,731, which was the lowest offer submitted for that part of the work.

The steel protective equipment is to include a lining 1 inch thick for the interior of the vault, a heavy combination time lock door, a circular emergency door and a spiral stairway leading up to the first floor.

Under the electrical contract the specifications provide for burglar alarms, fan ventilation, and a sound wave system for communication with the outside in case anyone should become accidentally locked within the vault.

RAIN IN NORTHWEST.

(Special to The Star.)

BAYARD, Neb., April 24.—A light shower, sufficient to bring up the sugar-beets planted during the past few days fell here Friday morning. The rain amounted to .13 inches, according to reports from the sugar factory here.

The Time To Buy Your Car

—is Before The Other Fellow Beats You To It

While there is still a good stock for your selection—you can very likely find exactly the make, model and type of car you want at just about the price you want to pay.

Get it NOW—TODAY—remember the best buys go FIRST. Even an hour makes a difference this nice weather.

Pick it out TODAY—a small deposit will hold it for a week while you are getting your finances arranged for the down down payment.

Before the crowds of Spring and Summer buyers pick over the lot and leave the rest for you. It is true that we are taking in from two to ten used cars a day, still it is advisable to take your pick from the big March and April accumulation. You can still buy these at March and April prices.

Take advantage of our special time payment plan good for the next 30 days—Extra low down payments—extra low interest and insurance charges.

You can't possibly gain anything by waiting—if you wait the selection will be picked over, the best buys gone.

Can't you see that the time to buy your car is RIGHT NOW while the weather is the best, while the extra days of spring and Early Summer are yours. By waiting you only cheat yourself and family out of the use of a car during the best days of the year. You lose the chance at the big selection to pick from and the chance at the low March and April prices. COME TODAY.

30 Good Cars Today

READY FOR YOUR SELECTION

Many Makes, Many Models, Closed Cars, Coupes, Sedans, Coaches, Open Cars, Roadsters, Touring, Duplex, Repainted, Renewed, Full Conditioned

We have had a steady demand for new Studebakers—which means that so many used cars have been offered in trade that we have had an opportunity to pick and choose our stock. Volume of business has kept down overhead and steady work in our shops has enabled us to condition our used cars at very reasonable costs.

All this saving is passed on to you in low prices for exceptionally good used cars—we have never had a better stock—or cars priced so reasonably.

Does this explain why we are so sure of our values—so sure that you will be pleased and satisfied with our offerings. We do not sell "junk" or poorly conditioned cars at "clearance sale prices"—our used cars are merchandised. Nowhere are there better values, nowhere are there prices for good used cars.

This is the only USED CAR PLEDGE Store in Lincoln---only Studebaker protects you with the famous Used Car Pledge. Every Car in our big stock is sold absolutely in accordance with its iron-clad requirements.

Pledge to the Public on Used Car Sale—

1 All used cars offered to the public shall be honestly represented.

If a car is suitable only for a mechanic who can rebuild it, or for someone who expects only a few months rough usage on a camping trip, it must be sold on that basis. Each car must be sold for just what it is.

2 All Studebaker automobiles which are sold as CERTIFIED CARS have been properly reconditioned, and carry a 30-Day guarantee for replacement of defective parts and free service on adjustments.

This is possible beceuse tremendous reserve mileage has been built into every Studebakr, which it is impossibl to exhaust in years.

3 Every used car is conspicuously marked with its price in plain figures, and that price, just as the price of our new cars, is rigidly maintained.

The public can deal in confidence and safety only with the dealer whose policy is "one price only—the same price to all." For, to sell cars on this basis, every one of them must be honestly priced to begin with.

4 Every purchaser of a used car may drive it for five days, and then, if not satisfied for any reason turn it back and apply the money paid as a credit on the purchase of any other car in stock—new or used.

It is assumed, of course, that the car has not been smashed up by collision or other accident in the meantime.

Not only to the public, but also to The Studebaker Corporation of America, whose cars we sell, we pledge adherence to the above policy in selling used cars.

WALL STREET'S GLOOM IS GONE

Economists See An End Of Decline In Commodity Prices.

NEW YORK, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Wall street and the stock market this week threw off most of the gloom and depression which has enveloped the big financial district since the middle of February. Evidences of an easier money situation, a brighter industrial outlook and an oversold stock market contributed to the sharp rally in stock prices, but this was not as important as the great improvement in sentiment of those who make up the rank and file of the country's business and industrial interests.

The commodity price decline, though unchecked, was not as severe in most lines as in the three preceding weeks and some of our most skilled economists see the beginning of the end of the price decline.

Bond prices moved up buoyantly during the week in the strongest and most active market of the year. Government and treasury bonds led the movement in the course of which about forty railroad bonds recorded the highest levels of the year. Utility and traction bonds sold off in the latter part of the week. Oils moved forward vigorously.

Bankers' acceptances declined as low as 3 1-8 at 3 1-4, the lowest in two years.

Weekly bank clearings were $9,859,743,000, an increase of 3.5 per cent over last week.

Grains Close Lowerfl

CHICAGO, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Grains travelled a wavering course today and closed lower for the week and day.

Irregularity in price action in the wheat market was exhibited early in today's short session, but weakness soon developed and prices subsequently broke sharply, closing unchanged to 1-2 cent off for the session and 7 7-8 to 8 cents lower for the week. Local receipts for the week were 237,000 bushels, compared with 155,000 bushels a yera ago.

Corn closed 1-2 to 5-8 cents off for the day and 1 1-2 to 1 3-4 cents lower for the week. Commission houses sold in today's session and buying power was light. Local receipts for the week were 679,000 bushels, against 732,000 a year ago and shipments were 500,000 bushels, against 1,375,000 bushels for a year ago.

Oats closed 1-8 to 3-8 cent down for the day and 1 3-8 to 1 5-8 cents off for the week.

Provisions were firm.

NINE DIE IN NEW CALCUTTA CLASH

Scores Injured In a Resumption Of Religious Warfare.

CALCUTTA, India, April 24.—(AP)—Hindus and Moslem rioters clashed in bloody combat today in a resumption of the religious warfare which broke out two days ago.

The police reported that nine persons were killed and seventy-one injured in today's fighting, which occurred in the locality of the notorious Machua bazzar. A large group of Moslems attacked from a nearby building and were met with rifle fire from Hindus stationed on the roof and at windows. The police gathered in the rear of the building during the desperate battle and suddenly were attacked by the Moslems who ran around from the front.

Stones pelted against the police squad until they got their guns into action. About fifteen rounds were fired.

The situation tonight was serious. Some looting was taking place and boys were wandering about the city stabbing pedestrians with sharpened pieces of steel.

It was hoped that the civil authorities would be able to control the situation without resort to the military.

Road Conditions

The following report on highways in this vicinity was made Saturday afternoon by the Lincoln Auto club:

Light rains Friday did not damage the roads, which were dry Saturday morning, slightly rough but being dragged. East O street is still under construction. East "A" is being used as a detour. The Platte river bridge is under construction at the approaches, just south of Fremont, but no detour is now being used.

D-L-D No. 7: Fine to Omaha. East of Omaha, all roads are slightly rough due to rains the past week.

D-L-D No. 7 and Harding highway west: Use the graveled road No. 9 to Crete, and Dorchester, graveled from Lincoln to Friend. Rough for four miles out of Friend. Graveled to Fairmont except two miles. Graveled west to Minden. Light rains last week west to Denver, but roads are good.

C. H. No. 9 to Beatrice: Fine. Slightly rough to Manhattan, and Junction City.

C. H. No. 9 to Fremont: Good, except at the bridge. Caution should be used in driving where construction is being done.

Fremont to Sioux City: Slightly rough but very passable.

East O No. 11: Use A sixteen miles east, then south to No. 24 to Palmyra. Good to Nebraska City. K. T. No. 5, south, graveled to Falls City. To Hiawatha, and Troy roads are rough. Paved then to St. Joseph and Kansas City. Rain reported Friday evening but not heavy.

To Crete and Wilbur, roads are good. Wilbur to Dewitt, under construction, in going to Dewitt it is advisable to use No. 9 or South Fourteenth street.

S-Y-A No. 1: Via D-L-D to Milford turn, then north. Graveled to Aurora. Dirt to the river in good condition. Good to Grand Island, graveled to Cozad, dirt to Brady, graveled to North Platte. Good to Cheyenne. Potash highway No. 2, Grand Island to Thedford, good.

Blue Pole No. 8: Good from Omaha to Norfolk, Neligh and O'Neill. Some construction work this side of Valentine, but passable.

L-S to Bennet: Good. Good to Tecumseh.

R-V to Raymond and Valparaiso: Good.

Seward, David City and Columbus: Good. Meridian north good to Yankton. Meridian south, good. Fair through Kansas.

Roads around Elmwood, Nehawka, fair. Roads around Sioux City are reported rough.

Through Kansas roads are fair. To California, take the route through Denver, then south.

To Chicago, White Way No. 7 is preferable when weather is favorable, otherwise go north from Marshalltown to No. 5 then east.

Many Entries In Wesleyan Scholastic Contests April 30

Entries for the fourth annual high school scholastic contests at Nebraska Wesleyan are still coming in from distant points. The contests will be held Friday, April 30. Between 100 and 200 students from twenty or thirty schools usually take part. Long lists of entries have just been received from Aurora and Blair.

The college heads also expect a successful track meet the following day, with several strong teams already entered.

Remove Tractor From Creek Bed

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., April 24.—The road tractor which went to the bottom of the creek six miles west of the city with Elmer Frerichs, 20, when he drove the machine onto a small bridge which collapsed, was taken out yesterday. It dropped about twenty-five feet, breaking the driver's leg. Young Frerichs is recovering from his injuries at a hospital here. A new steel structure will replace the old one, it is said.

INDICTED YOUTHS AVOID PLEADING

Illinois Trio Charged With Attacking Co-Ed To Enter Pleas Later.

SYCAMORE, Ill., April 24.—(I. N. S.)—Immediate trial of three Dekalb county youths, indicted today by a special grand jury on charges of attacking Miss Dorothy Westervelt, Northern Illinois Teachers college co-ed, was avoided when attorneys for the trio this afternoon succeeded in having May 4 set as the date for hearing argument on a motion made by them to quash the indictments.

The defendants, Leonard Rich, Stanley Hurt and Emerson Wilson, were named jointly in one indictment as assailants of Miss Westervelt on the night of April 11, and separate indictments each containing ten counts and covering a wide range of alleged offenses, was returned against each of the young men.

The grand jury recommended that bonds be fixed at $15,000 on the joint indictment and at $10,000 on the individual indictments, making the total for each $25,000. The total bond, however, was reduced to $17,500 by Judge William J. Fulton on motion of defense attorneys.

Rich Furnished Bond.

Bond for young Rich was furnished immediately by his father, William Rich, and Herbert Hurt, foster father of Stanley Hurt, who is named in the true bills as Hurt, alias Simms, said that bail would be furnished for the latter.

The courtroom was crowded when the grand jury made its report at 11 o'clock this morning, but there was no demonstration.

The defendants were brought into the courtroom for arraignment, but defense attorneys asked for and were granted time for a conference and avoided entering pleas for their clients by making the motion to quash the indictments. The special grand jury was convened Thursday largely as a result of the public demand, following Miss Westervelt's charges that they had brutally beaten, attacked and thrown her from an automobile, dazed nd hysterical.

cials and employees selected on account of their fitness and training for office versus the spoils system and disregard of the taxpayer's interest.

"Two years ago I served as governor of this state; my opponent in this campaign is now serving his second year in the same office. It is fortunate for the tax-payers and voters that they will not have to consider promises and phophesy, but will have an opportunity to make comparisons between the two administrations, and make their choice as to which they prefer.

Says People Want Him.

"I say that the taxpayers have decreed what the issues will be: I have received thousands of petitions and letters, from all classes of voters, and from all political parties, requesting me to stand as a candidate, and giving the specific reasons why they make their request. I have made a personal filing of my candidacy because I desire to retain and preserve the autographic signatures of the large number of splendid men and women who have expressed their friendship and loyalty to me, their satisfaction with my former administration and their confidence in my ability to place the state of Nebraska back on a business basis, and stop the imposition which the taxpayers have been subjected to during the past two years. These petitions in number are probably as many as usually participate in a democratic state-wide primary, and their signatures may be seen at my office.

"The platform and legislative policies which I outline below cover the issues which the taxpayers have requested that I present as issues, and I believe they embody the measures and actions that are for the best interest of the people of Nebraska, and for the progress and development of our great state.

"When I took up the duties of governor the people were suffering from the wild and reckless extravagance of the former republican administration. Taxes had been increased 300 per cent above what they were under the former democratic administration.

"We promised the voters of the state during my campaign for governor that if elected we would reduce the cost of government and taxes of the people 20 per cent. During our administration we reduced the state taxes not only 20 per cent, but we reduced them 33 per cent according to the official figures, and would have reduced them 13 per cent more but for the fact that the republican legislature increased the appropriations $1,203,978 in excess of my recommendations and in excess of the needs of the state.

High Taxes and The Code.

"The present republican administration has increased the cost of government and unnecessarily increased the burden of the taxpayers about nine million dollars in excess of the cost during my administration according to republican official figures, and this increase alone by Governor McMullen's administration, over the cost of conducting the state government under my administration, amounts to as much as the entire cost of running the state's affairs under the last democratic governor preceding me, and this increase does not include an additional five and one-half million dollars which the people are paying under this administration as a gasoline tax.

"While the farmers and home owners of Nebraska have been staggering under the blow dealt them by the republican national administration on account of the government's favoritism to eastern industries, monopolies and financiers, the republican administration in Nebraska has greatly added to the taxpayers' load in this state as will be seen when they commence to pay the taxes on their property which are due May 1.

"The present administration has re-vamped and again put into operation the infamous code system with all of its duplications of public officials, over-lapping of public duties, additional increased salaries, newly created positions, and the republican political army of unemployed three hundred strong, whom I discharged and abolished their places, have all been put back on the public pay-roll and are now riding up and down the state on the taxpayers' backs, proclaiming the advantages of the code system and endorsing their chief for re-election, so as to retain their grip on the pay car.

"According to official figures of the republican state accountant the increase in the appropriations for the code departments alone, under Governor McMullen, in excess of what they cost under my administration, amount to $865,610.86

Favors Executive Council.

"The republican states of Minnesota and Iowa have abolished the expensive forms of state government that were exemplified through duplication and overlapping boards and commissions which caused waste and extravagance in those states, paralleling waste and extravagance in this state at the present time, and have put into effect, and are now operating under the same form of government known as the executive council plan that I recommended for the state of Nebraska during my term as governor, whereby elected state officers and the governor would serve as an executive council and decide the policies of the state, and the governor, as the administrative officer, would administer and enforce the laws, as provided by the constitution of those states, and also as is required of the governor by the constitution of this state.

"The wild orgy of spending public funds which is going on by Governor McMullen's administration, money which was raised by the over-ubrdened taxpayers of the state and which has properly been stated by the present republican state treasurer, Mr. Robinson, 'will bankrupt the state of Nebraska if not discontinued,' can be reduced 30 per cent and the public service increased at the same time, without skimping our state university or state schools, or the institutions that house state wards. If I am elected governor I will make every effort in my power to make this reduction for the benefit of the taxpayers and home owners of Nebraska.

"The infamous and expensive code system, which is used to cover up employees put on the pay-roll under the spoils system, should be wiped from the statute books forever, and if the voters will give me democratic state officers and a democratic legislature, the voters' wishes which have been already expressed twice against the code law, will be carried into effect. Every unnecessary employee on the state pay-roll will be discharged, every position which has been created by the present administration to take care of lame ducks will be abolished, and the many places where the duties of state employees have been reduced by the legislature and salaries increased by the present state administration, will be paid for only the work they do for the taxpayers and not be paid for the time that they have been idle and trying to secure a political job.

Gasoline and Coal.

"As governor of Nebraska my position and influence was used to stop profiteering in gasoline and nine million dollars a year was saved to the motor drivers through my administration. The present governor, upon coming into office immediately discontinued the competition which I had established by the state, and permitted the oil monopoly to again mulct the people of this state at the rate of nine million dollars a year, which is being taken away from Nebraska to swell the 400 per cent dividend which is paid by the oil companies, whose representatives are now opposing my election to office. If elected governor I will use every power at my command to stop the raid by the oil companies which is now going on unmolested in Nebraska.

"A statute should be enacted, and if necessary a constitutional amendment, to not only give every town and city in the state the right to establish, when necessary to protect its citizens, a municipal oil station and coal yard, but the state should be given the power to assist the municipalities in securing a supply of oil and coal which it is almost impossible for the municipalities now to do on account of the monopoly on these business necessaries, but which the state can easily secure for them.

"I am not in favor of the state unnecessarily engaging in business in competition with legitimate business, but the state should have the right, and should exercise it when necessary, to stop monopolies in the necessaries of life from making anarchists out of its citizens.

"If elected I will continue to maintain competition in the coal business as it has been by me for the past three years and which makes a saving to the people of Nebraska of about ten million dollars a year on their fuel bills as compared with what neighboring states are paying for their coal.

Claims Credit for Good Roads.

"I favor the building of good roads, and if elected will continue the system which was inaugurated under my administration, of building gravel roads where possible, and which was made possible by the forced reduction of one-third in the price of gravel, and the establishment of a rule that required all bids by contractors on county or state road work to be received and opened in the presence of the bidders, which resulted in saving of about 27 per cent in the cost of road building in Nebraska, and stopped collusion and the 'tea-kettling' of bids.

"I am opposed to any increase in the gasoline tax, which is a dignified way of transferring taxes from the rich to the poor. I am opposed to increasing the present automobile license fee, and favor a more equitable division of the license money and gasoline tax between the state and the different counties, so that the county roads may be better improved and maintained to enable the farmers to reach their nearest home markets. Should additional money ever be needed for state highways it should be raised by a property tax so that big business, big industries, and large holders of property, who receive the most benefit from the improved highway would pay their share for its construction and maintenance, and permit the farmers to get back on their financial feet.

"The super-power trust is rapidly absorbing the electric light plants of the state and nation. Where there is municipal competition they supply the people light, power and heat at a nice profit at the rate of about 3 cents a K. W., but where there is no municipal competition the people are held up at unconscionable prices — as high as 24 cents a K. W., making it impossible for industries to be located in the agricultural west or south, and preventing the people from enjoying the comforts and conveniences of electric service.

For Public Water Power.

"I favor strengthening of the state's anti-trust laws to protect the people from trusts and monopolies, and I favor the development by the public, under the district system, of the unused water power in the state. I favor the retention and operation by the federal government of Muscle Shoals and the Boulder project so as to fix reasonable rates for electric light, power, heat and fertilizer to protect the farmers and home owners and enable the west and south to develop industries to manufacture their raw materials.

"The intangible tax law enacted by a republican legislature enabled wealth to evade 75 per cent of its taxes which the people voted to repeal, and which the republican party promised to modify by making the tax on all classes of property uniform, but which was modified upward by this republican administration, and now enables those best able to pay to shift a large part of their taxes upon those already overburdened. I favor the immediate repeal of the republican make-shift tax bill which transfers taxes from the rich to the poor, and the adoption in the place thereof of an American tax plan, which requires every citizen to stand equal before the law.

"If I am elected there will be no open shooting season at young girls going out to meet their fathers returning from work and no substantial and trustworthy citizen be made the goat for the action of deputy wardens wished onto them by the ringerups of this administration under the espoils system.

Farmers Profiteer Victims.

"Agriculture is the basic industry of Nebraska and upon the success and prosperity of the agricultural classes depends the prosperity of all lines of business except that of trusts and monopolies. Agriculture has been placed at a disadvantage by being compelled to pay, through special legislation and favoritism, artificial prices for the products of tariff protected industries, railroad investments, and for the necessaries of life that are controlled by trusts and monopolies such as gasoline, coal, electricity for power, heat and light. This favoritism to eastern industries and finance has compelled the farmers to pay profiteering prices for everything that they use or wear, and these policies have seriously injured the farmer's market abroad and in this country for what he produces. This special legislation has been enacted by the republican party in the last six years, and it changed the prosperity of the agricultural sections of the country to adversity.

"I favor an export market corporation that will control the agicultural surplus production so as to give the farmer a better market, but if the farmer is to have permanent relief, those who are riding on his back through the tariff laws, Esch-Cumins law, the deflation policy, the oil combine, the coal combine, and the super-power trust must be shaken from the control of the government and the Jeffersonian principle of 'equal rights to all and special privileges to none' must be restored and enforced through the land.

"During the past year I have been carrying on an educational campaign throughout twelve agricultural states of the south and west in an effort to have the agricultural classes of these sections stand together in preventing organized business interests in the east from taking advantage of them through national legislation and national policies.

Friend of Co-operatives and Labor.

"Co-operative marketing should be encouraged by the state government, and all needed assistance given to enable agriculture to cut out the middleman and bring the producer and consumer together for the mutual benefit of both. A director of markets should be provided and financed by this state so as to give authentic market information to all branches of all kinds of agricultural products, and to assist co-operative organizations in securing the fullest benefits from their efforts.

"An eight-hour day and a living wage at American standards with a margin for old age is a right that labor is entitled to and should be supported by all good citizens. We should recognize the right to collective bargaining by labor's representatives in negotiations between capital and labor. An industrial court with power to enforce its findings promotes human slavery and should not be tolerated in Nebraska. A law should be enacted establishing a non-compulsory arbitration and modification board to investigate disputes between capital and labor before a lockout or strike is resorted to.

Defends Guaranty Law.

"The bank guaranty law which carried Nebraska through the depression, and under which no depositor has lost a dollar through bank failure, is seriously menaced by the present state administration. I am opposed to the repeal or modification of the Nebraska bank guaranty law. The action of the present state administration in appointing a national banker to administer the bank guaranty law and his efforts to dump the assets of the failed banks on the market to the highest bidder would have bankrupted the guaranty fund, and his efforts to use the non-partisan guaranty fund commission department to find places for political parasites under his spoils system was unfair to the banks of the state, was unjust to the depositors, and should be condemned by everyone who is proud of the record that Nebraska banks have made in protecting the financial welfare of this state.

"If elected I will use every power at my command to uphold the bank guaranty law, and to prevent any backward step being taken in the management of the banking affairs of the state.

"Upholding the constitution, and respect for the laws of the state and nation are the highest duties of every citizen. I believe in law enforcement and if elected will make every effort to enforce the laws of the state and nation, as I did during my former administration.

Won't Tolerate Law Violators.

"In order to uphold the honor and dignity of the state, so that parents will not be ashamed to recommend to their children that they emulate the example of public officials, I will if elected, immediately remove from office any man who has been guilty and convicted of violating the laws of the state, and any who have humiliated the tax payers and disgraced the state by their conduct while on the pay-roll of the state.

"Child labor in industry dwarfs the child physically and mentally and should not be permitted in an enlightened and civilized country.

"Woman has been enfranchised and should be recognized on an equality with man in employment, compensation and jury service.

"The health and welfare of the children of the state and the care of mothers are of the first importance and should be given every consideration that law and administration could afford.

"The people of Nebraska are entitled to efficiency and economy in government; no one has a right to take a dollar away from the taxpayers unless that dollar is needed for the welfare and progress of the state. Extravagance and waste of the peoples' money and reckless disregard of the taxpayers' ability to pay should have no place in the business affairs of the state. Honesty and fair-dealing with the people is as little as should be expected from public officials.

Revamps Highway Deficit.

"In taking up the duties of governor three years ago I pointed out to the republican legislature that there was a large deficit in the road department on account of violations of the law and inefficiency by the former republican administration. The republican members of the legislature appointed a joint legislative committee to investigate the condition in the department of roads. They were assisted by the republican state auditor, state accountant, state engineer and former officials of the finance department, and this committee reported to the legislature that there was no deficit, and their report stated that after all the claims against the department were paid that there would be a large cash balance in the road department.

"Every republican member of the legislative committee and every republican official who participated in that investigation and made that report could see that the report they made was false. They maintained that there was no deficit in the face of the fact that there was no money in the treasury, although there was a half million dollars in approved road claims unpaid.

"This deception and dishonesty was kept up by the members of the legislature and state officers, even after the supreme court had rendered a unanimous opinion that there was a deficit in the road fund and had fixed the amount, and this deception was kept up until another republican legislature and republican governor had been elected.

"Notwithstanding the republican officials had declared and maintained that there was no deficit carried over from the McKelvie administration, the present republican administration has paid such deficit to the extent of over a half million dollars, and they have levied a tax on the tax payers of the state, and are now collecting it, to pay for the inefficiency, extravagance, dishonesty and violation of law of a former republican administration.

Nobody Prosecuted.

"The present governor in his inaugural address stated that he was amazed at the statements that I made in my farewell message regarding gross irregularities in the conduct of the road department of my republican predecessor, although I had explained fully to the incoming governor three weeks before he was sworn in of the conditions that had existed in the road department. The governor stated that he would investigate the charge and if he found the law had been violated he would prosecute the guilty. No one had been prosecuted.

"It is my intention to discuss, during the campaign, all of the issues named in this platform. Protecting the taxpayers should not be a partisan issue. Upholding agriculture as our basic industry is the public duty of every good citizen of the state who makes his living in Nebraska.

"Securing the repeal of national laws and the reversal of policies which during the past six years have deprived the farmers of Nebraska of their hard-earned money by those who have used their organizations in the cast to control federal governmental action is the duty of every business man and every chamber of commerce and all civic clubs in Nebraska until agriculture, the basic industry of Nebraska, is again put on an equal footing with the other industries of the nation.

"These issues are so vital to the welfare of the people of Nebraska that they should not permit the creation of any new parties or the injection of unimportant and immaterial issues until economy, efficiency and prosperity are restored to the people of our great state."

The alleged "slow" ball in the American league was given a terrific lambasting in the early part of the week. The Yankees' 29 bases against Washington and Cleveland's 22 against the Chicago White Sox would seem to indicate that there is quite a lot of life in the old pill

WILLIAMS HEADS COUNTY LAWYERS

Bar Association Elects Officers At Meeting Saturday Evening.

R. O. Williams was elected president and Judge P. James Cosgrave vice president of the Lancaster County Bar association at its annual meeting and ladies' night entertainment Saturday evening at the University club. Robert Van Pelt, the present secretary, and Glen H. Foe, treasurer, were re-elected.

Members of the new executive committee are Paul Good, C. J. Campbell and O. K. Perrin, who take the places of Earl Cline, Robbin Reid and H. J. Whitmore. Clarence Miles was the former president of the organization and T. F. A. Williams its former vice-president. All of the changes were made by unanimous vote on the report of a nominating committee consisting of T. F. A. Williams, Fred Shepherd and Harry Ankeny.

After welcoming the ladies, Clarence Miles turned the program over to Judge W. B. Comstock who, as toastmaster, called on five members of the bar for short addresses. Mrs. R. C. Van Kirk sang several numbers.

Law Suit Week.

Something bright and new should be introduced into club programs, in the opinion of Paul Good who answered the first toast. His proposal was a "Law Suit Week." Other men, he observed, have instituted weeks devoted to their own interests, so why not the lawyers? There could be special films at the movies, and special studies in the schools. "Have your will day" and "examine your title day" and "better crimes day" might be brought into existence. His suggestion was taken under advisement.

Prof. H. H. Foster of the college of law got away from academic subjects to deliver a few of the parries for which he is famed, according to the toastmaster. He concluded with a tribute to the profession of law and to the women who help make the lawyers. Some of the young wives helping, but their husbands through law college deserve as much credit as ever did a pioneer wife, he declared. Though a lawyer may not make as much money as a pork packer, he said, he has the satisfaction of membership in their profession.

Protests Women's Invasion.

Herbert Baird entered a protest to female invasion of the profession. He pointed out that two women lawyers had defended a woman charged with crime in the local courts recently, that women had testified and that feminine influence had been thrown around the whole procedure.

Struggling young lawyers forming the "submerged tenth" of the bar, ought to be given a chance by their colleagues, urged H. J. Requartte. Handicapped as they are by four years in law college, he added, the one tenth must wait four years more for the elder statesmen to decided to move to California and leave behind their practice.

On the verge of delivering an important message from the wives and sweethearts of lawyers present, Judge Frederick Shepherd turned to lighter subjects and said he would send his communication by mail.

Nebraska Hen a Ponderous Bird

(Special to The Star.)

RANDOLPH, Neb., April 24. Quick results of following out the suggestions given at the poultry shows and by experts on the poultry special trains that have visited northeast Nebraska recently, were obtained by E. Morgan, who believes he holds the record in Nebraska for marketing the heaviest hen from the White Rock breed. He recently took to market a hen, weighing 10 pounds.

ALLIANCE GETS IMPROVEMENTS

Burlington Road Expending Large Sum In That Division City.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., April 24.—The Burlington railroad is launching a big improvement program at Alliance and the cost will aggregate about $20,000. A new vacuum heating plant will be installed to replace the present steam system. This will be in the passenger station and in the many buildings about the local yards. It will cost about $6,000. A force of seventeen men is working on the system.

A complete electrfying of much of the machinery now driven by steam or gasoline will be brought about and this will come to $7,500. It will include the electrifying of wells and cylinders, the sand dryer elevator, the pump at the storehouse, the turntable tractor, and the planing mill. Straight repair work and replacements here and there in various machinery will represent at cost of around $6,000.

Bayard Debaters Win Championship Of the Northwest

(Special to The Star.)

BAYARD, Neb., April 24.—The championship of the northwest Nebraska debating district was won here Friday night by the Bayard team, taking a 2 to 1 decision from Kimball. Kimball had defeated Chappell, while Bayard had defeated Alliance and Sidney. The team from this city will go in May to the state debating contest, which will be held under the auspices of the University of Nebraska. Judges of the contest were J. W. Irwin of Bridgeport, H. J. Schwab of Scottsbluff, and F. W. Cyr of Chappell. Those debating for Kimball were Dorothy Heynen, Jess Long, and Zo Scofield, while Howard Osborn, Paul Lathrop and Frances Burnham represented Bayard. Beulah Rundle, debate coach here, will accompany the team to the Lincoln tournament.

Farm Lands Sold In Saline County

(Special to The Star.)

WESTERN, Neb., April 24.—Deals have just been closed here transferring 160 acres of fine Saline county land owned by Herman Wahl, near Western, for the past several years, to Rudolph Homokla, of this vicinity, consideration being given as $22,500, or an average of over $140 per acre, considered a fairly good price for land at this time. The 160 acres formerly owned by Homolka was sold to Carl Rohlmeier and Charles Schwizow, each taking 80 acres, the price being $119 an acre.

NEED MORE HOUSES.

BAYARD, Neb., April 24.—Housing accommodations are scarce in Minatare, and some growth is expected as a result of the new sugar factory being built there. Some of the employes brought in, however, will make their homes in Scottsbluff or Bayard.

FALLS CITY WILL ENTERTAIN ELKS

Preparations Going Forward For State Convention There Next June.

(Special to The Star.)

FALLS CITY, Neb., April 24.—Elaborate preparations for the reception and entertainment of the state convention of Elks here on June 2, 3 and 4 were laid last night by the local lodge, following the appointment of committees to arrange for the care, housing and entertainment of the visitors, and for decorating.

More than $1,000 will be spent for decoration and entertainment of the delegates. It is expected that more than 500 delegates and visitors will attend. The nearness of Falls City to Lincoln and Omaha, and the fact that graveled roads now connect this city with the two metropolitan centers is expected to draw scores from those two places.

Among the things planned to entertain the visitors are a big ball game between the Elks of Omaha and the Elks ball team of Falls City; a golf tournament each afternoon of the convention; a banquet for all delegates, visitors and local Elks the night of June 3, a dance for all Elks on June 4, and a band contest, in which it is hoped several bands will enter.

Falls City is planning a huge aerial circus to dedicate the new landing field here, and an effort will be made to have this in connection with the convention.

There are 18 Elks lodges in the state and each is entitled to send 10 delegates, a total of 180.

The banquet will be at the new Hotel Weaver, which it is thought, is adequately large to handle all visitors.

The local lodge has 325 members, and has donated more than $600 for the entertainment of the convention.

Funeral Held For Fairbury Pioneer

(Special to The Star.)

FAIRBURY, Neb., April 24.—The funeral services for Ab Brock were held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the Baptist church, Rev. W. H. Clark in charge. Mr. Brock was seventy-four years old. Death was due to a stroke of apoplexy which he suffered about 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Mr. Brock had not fully recovered from a previous stroke a few months ago. The widow, Mrs. Brock, suffered a broken hip in a fall last Tuesday and is in a local hospital. A daughter, Mrs. Etta Brown McEntee and Charles C., both living in Fairbury, also survive.

Mr. and Mrs. Brock came to Fairbury in 1874, their worldly possessions on arrival being ten cents. In 1877, Mr. Brock built a boarding house at the corner of Third and C streets which they ran for many years.

MARRIAGE LICENSE.

(Special t oThe Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., April 24.—A marriage license was issued here Saturday to Chester Herbert Stoll, 25, and Mary Isabelle Evans, 19, both of Beatrice.

FALLS CITY HAS NEW CREAMERY

Will Handle Large Quantity Of Butter Fat From Southeast.

(Special to The Star.)

FALLS CITY, Neb., April 24.—A new creamery, the Falls City Creamery Co., with a capacity of turning out 60,000 pounds of butter or three carloads every week; opened here yesterday, following remodeling and installation of complete new equipment in the plant.

The old Falls City Products Co. building was remodeled and the floor space doubled at a cost of more than $25,000, and the creamery, it is said, is one of the best for a city of its size in the state.

It is being operated in connection with the Falls City Products Co. which changed its name to the Creamery Co., and which also handles dressed poultry and chicken products. The company is incorporated for $100,000, practically all the stock being owned by H. L. McCoy, who came here from Omaha last fall to open the plant.

Mr. McCoy was formerly with the Fairmont Creamery company in Omaha for more than 20 years, and has finally branched out into a business of his own.

The local creamery will handle cream from Pawnee City, Nebraska City, Wymore, Tecumseh, Auburn, Table Rock, and many other Nebraska points.

Pawnee Stockmen Have Signed For Tuberculin Tests

(Special to The Star.)

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., April 24.—Government testing for bovine tuberculosis eradication will soon begin in Pawnee county as a result of this week's intensive campaigning by George M. Miller, farmer of northwest of this city, assisted by Dr. J. I. Gibson, livestock commissioner of the St. Joseph market, and Dr. W. T. Spencer, Omaha commissioner of the St. Joseph market, and Dr. W. T. Spencer, Omaha commissioner. After several weeks during which the petitions lacked only 100 names of having the necessary sixty per cent of Pawnee county cattle owners, hurried canvasses the past few days sent the petitions over the top with considerably more than the required 925 signers, and disclosed no single part of the county opposed to the testing.

Protest Payment Of State Deputy For County Work

(Special to The Star.)

BAYARD, Neb., April 24.—Whether the board of county commissioners of Scottsbluff county can hire outside help for the duties of sheriffs is the question raised in District court by T. C. Palmer. Mr. Palmer contends that the county commissioners might commence action to remove the sheriff from office, if they are dissatisfied with his services, but that they have no right to pay out county money to A. H. Hamilton. Mr. Hamilton was made a state deputy sheriff without pay from the state, and the county commissioners approved a bill of $74.30 for his services. Sheriff Koenig and A. H. Hamilton are both candidates for the office of county sheriff, and the matter will probably be an issue in the coming elections.

Elks At Alliance Install Officers

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., April 24.—The Elks of Alliance held their annual installation of officers at the temple Thursday evening. H. D. Shellenberger acted as exalted ruler during the ceremonies.

GET NEW PASTOR.

(Special to the Star.)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., April 24.—Rev. J. E. Fillinger of Chicago, who was recently called to the pastorate of the Presbyterian church here, will accept the call and start his work about May 15, having turned down another call from the board of missions of that church to do mission work among the foreign population.

Fish Planted In Antelope County

(Special to The Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., April 24.—Eight cans of young fish from the state hatchery at Valentine were put off at this city from the state fish car. The consignment consisted of crappies, rock bass, perch and blue gills. They were at once taken to Circle lake, the most promising body of water in this vicinity and turned loose. A shipment of black bass is promised for later in the season. Other sections of Antelope county were given a supply from the game car and placed in local waters.

Many New Phones In Platte Valley

(Special to The Star.)

BAYARD, Neb., April 24.—Prosperity in the North Platte valley territory around Bayard is shown by the number of new telephones being installed, according to W. C. Fuerst, manager for the Platte Valley Telephone company here. About twenty-five new subscribers have been added to the list, he says, within the past two weeks.

COWS ARE HIGHER.

(Special to the Star.)

BAYARD, Neb., April 24.—A strong tone to the market for dairy cows has resulted from recent dairy development here. Auctioneers and livestock men report that ordinary cows sell from $75 to $100 each, and good sows bring still higher prices.

MAKES RECORD IN OLDSMOBILE

Clymer Drives Stock Car Chicago to Detroit In 5 Hours, 58 Minutes.

Two Stops Made Enroute; Is Fastest Time On Record For the Run.

All previous records of running between Chicago and Detroit were broken recently by a stock Oldsmobile touring car driven by Floyd Clymer of Denver, says a communication from the factory. The 301 miles from the loop in Chicago to the center of Detroit was made in five hours and 58 minutes, including two stops enroute. This is the fastest time ever made between these cities by an automobile and is 16 minutes faster than the Wolverine, the crack Michigan Central train, the announcement continues. The run was officially checked by Western Union.

The best previous time made by an automobile between these two cities was over a route 297 miles long and required 6 hours and 5 minutes, or seven minutes longer than the Oldsmobile's time.

Clymer, who made the record breaking trip, last fall lowered the Pikes Peak and Lookout Mountain stock car records in an Oldsmobile. He used the same car on his Chicago-Detroit run. It is a stock car with top and front side curtains up. The only changes made in equipment were the additions of two extra spot lights and a muffler cutout.

Clymer was accompanied on the run by his wife, Mrs. Meryle Clymer. This was her first participation in the record-breaking trips made by her husband. When the Clymers were met at Dearborn by an escort from the Detroit branch of Olds Motor Works and she changed places with a pilot to guide her husband into the center of Detroit, she was asked if the run had frightened her.

47 First Hour.

Clymer and his Oldsmobile checked out from the Western Union office at Washington and La Salle streets, in the heart of the loop district, at 12:01 a. m., central time, Thursday. During the first hour, which included miles of driving in Chicago, he registered 47 miles.

When about halfway to Detroit the Oldsmobile record seeker ran into heavy snow for a distance of 35 miles. This caused the slowest time of the trip—44 miles in an hour. The most miles run in a single hour were 57.

One stop was made at Kalamazoo for gasoline, which took two minutes. The Oldsmobile did not halt again until it reached Dearborn, where about four minutes were lost in picking up the pilot.

A Detroit motorcycle policeman also met the Oldsmobile at Dearborn with the intention of clearing the way for the car, but the Oldsmobile ran away from the motorcycle, which was handicaped by side-car equipment. The fastest speed consistent with safety was maintained through the city, and the Western Union office in the Union station, Fort and Third streets was reached at 5:59 a. m.

Clymer said that he rarely drove his car at excessive speeds on the run, but that it was the ability of his Oldsmobile to maintain a high rate of speed hour after hour, to and acceleration powers, that enabled him to set up a new record between Chicago and Detroit.

The afternoon before Clymer started the Detroit Automobile club advised against making the run at this season.

New Building at Cadillac Factory Nearly Complete

Work is progressing on the fourth floor of the new $600,000 administration building of the Cadillac Motor Car company facing Clark avenue in Detroit, Michigan. The new building is the final unit in the company's plant-building program begun in 1919.

Announcement of additional building plans amounting to three million dollars was made by the Cadillac company last November, since which time a new assembly unit 750 by 125 feet has been erected and equipped and is now in operation.

Ground was broken for the new administration building March 1, and it is expected to be ready for use by mid-summer. Its completion will release for manufacturing purposes 44,000 square feet of factory space now occupied by the company's general offices. The new administration building is to be the finest of the group of factory buildings. It will be of the modern industrial office-building type, of reinforced concrete construction, fire-proof, conforming generally in architecture with the remainder of the plant, but with an exterior of ornamental brick and stone.

It is 321 feet long, 60 feet deep and will be four stories high, with provision for a fifth floor. In the rear of it will be a garage 275 by 60 feet with storage space for 60 cars.

Dodge Salesman Directs Traffic; Sells Cop a Car

"As busy as an traffic cop," is an expression emphatically indicative of a busy person, but Louisville has produced some one even busier in Dan Revenaugh, star salesman of the Hannah-Miles company, Dodge Brothers dealers in the Kentucky metropolis. Dan recently sold a Dodge Brothers business coupe to Leslie Shewmaker while the latter was directing traffic at one of Louisville's busiest corners.

The achievement happened to take place under the eye of T. A. Bell, Indianapolis district representative, while he was in Louisville attending the motor show. Walking from his hotel to the office of the local dealer one morning, "T. A." recognized Dan in vigorous conversation with a traffic cop who, with hand on semaphone, alternately started and checked traffic.

Thinking Dan might be in trouble "T. A." stopped to watch and was surprised to see the young man seize the semaphore and assume charge of traffic, at the same time handing officer Shewmaker a paper. Recognizing the paper as a Dodge Brothers order form "T. A." impressed a convenient photographer into service and got a picture of the transaction.

NEW RECORD IS SET BY HUDSON

Registration Figures Show March a Month Of Big Buying.

The official figures of new cars registered in Wayne county during March, which have just now been compiled, show the month as one of the biggest buying periods the automobile business has ever known. If the tremendous buying trend indicated by these figures continues, the spring of 1926 certainly will go down as the most successful season the industry has ever known.

Aaron DeRoy, distributor of Hudson and Essex cars in the Detroit area, announced that March of this year has exceeded March of 1925 by almost 100 per cent, and added that the last 15 days of March had greatly exceeded any business his organization ever had done previously.

According to the figures, there were 998 new Hudson and Essex cars registered as against 536 a year ago. Substantially more Essex cars were delivered in March this year than the combined Hudson-Essex total of 1925.

"The figures show also," said Mr. DeRoy, "that Hudson-Essex were not only by far the largest selling six cylinder cars in Wayne county (as also in the world), but that they outsold every make of car except the two lowest-priced 'fours' on the market. Except for these two small 'fours' the figures are 998 for Hudson-Essex, 889 for the next, a line of sixes, 631 for the next, a four, and 382 for the line of sixes following that.

Willys-Knight Six Shows Increase In Comparative Sales

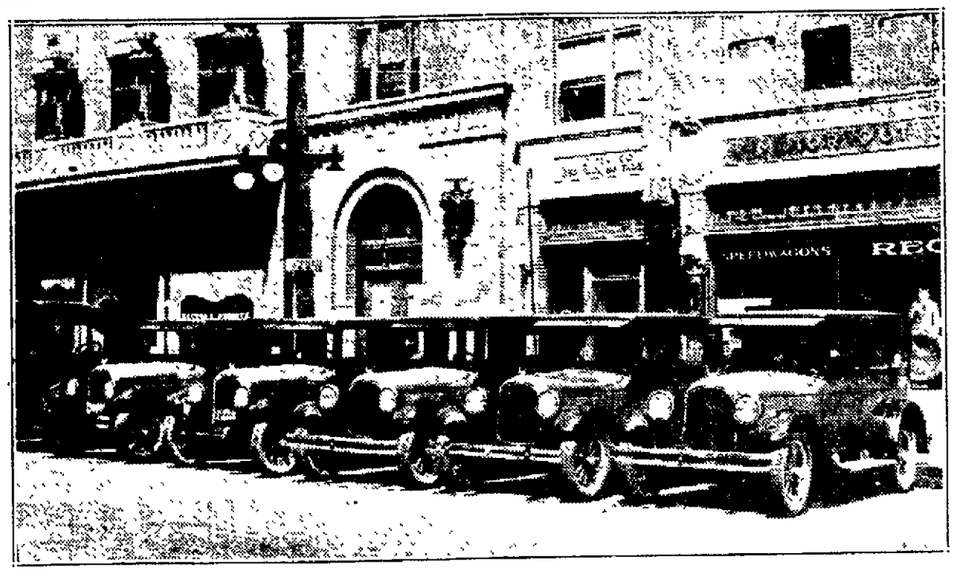

Sales of the Willys-Knight great six, brought out by Willys-Overland, Inc., in 1925 show a 130 per cent increase for the first quarter over the sales figures for the same period last year.

Based against the total sales in this model for all of last year, the increase in retail deliveries for the first three months of last year is at the rate of 32 per cent over the total volume for 1925, a surprising figure in the face of the fact that, in its first year, the Willys-Knight great six was one of the three leaders in the price class which it occupies.

With the Overland six showing an increase at the rate of 50 per cent over last years sales, with the four-cylindered Overland still maintaining its record breaking sales of 1925 and with the new Willys-Knight six seventy as an addition to the line and already exceeding the greatest estimates set by the factory officials, the general business of Willys-Overland for the first quarter of the year is showing most amazing strides.

According to factory officials, over-production, so far as Willys-Overland is concerned, will be impossible if anything like the present sales demand continues. At the close of the first quarter, all lines were oversold and the problem of the factory is to get sufficient production to meet current demand even at a time of the year considerably ahead of the peak sales points.

Motor Out Co. Buys Fleet of Chrysler Cars

Above, a fleet of Chrysler automobiles purchased last week by the Motor Out company, Reo distributors for this territory, from the Chal-Max Motors corporation. The cars were purchased for use in the "drive-it-yourself" business of the Motor Out Co.

Buick Sets a New Record of Month's Delivery In March

March saw a new high delivery record set by the Buick Motor Co. for the current series, the company has announced. In this month 23,224 cars went into the hands of owners. This was the largest month in deliveries since the present models were introduced last August, and closely parallels shipments for the same period.

March shipments of 25,305ff cars broke all previous records, according to factory announcement. It is pointed out also that deliveries and shipments for March are almost the same. This bears out Sales Manager E. T. Strong's recent statement that Buick dealers throughout the country have been unable to stock many cars for the usual spring demand.

Overland Six Shows Big First Quarter

Sales records for the first quarter of this year show that the Overland Six, the sales accomplishments of which in its first year placed it second in volume among all light sixes, has already stepped far ahead of its initial popularity and for the first three months of 1926, retail deliveries have been 7,906 over those of the same period for 1925.

Measured against a sales total for 1925 of 65,000 of these cars during the year, the increase for the first three months alone constitutes nearly 12 per cent of the total business for last year or at the rate of approximately 50 per cent increase for the total period of 1926 already in view.

With this increase being maintained, and with the consensus of opinion of the major dealers and distributors throughout the country that it will be materially increased as the summer months come on, this Overland Six is in a fair way to exceed in volume all other light sixes built.

While no attempt has been made to crowd the market and while production has been kept at a point measured by the actual orders on hand for this car the production figures at the factory are considerably ahead of the peak production months for last year even at this early period of the buying season.

Dealer stocks in the Overland Six have been practically depleted all over the country and an acute shortage is looked for within the next thirty to forty-five days despite the efforts at the factory to keep production up to sales demand.

Keep the tops of spark plugs lean in this way any defect can be easily seen.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Mr. E. T. Strong,
General Sales Manager,
Buick Motor Co.,
Flint, Mich.

Dear Mr. Strong:

I want to compliment you and congratulate the Buick Motor Company on the wonderful automobile Buick is producing today.

Without a doubt it is the Best Buy on the market. We are accepting orders for delivery as fast as our shipments reach us.

The Better Buick has taken our people by storm, and if sales continue as they are now I am afraid that our stock will not go around.

Very truly yours,

OWNERS FIND SURE CONTENTMENT In CHRYSLER "58" PERFORMANCE ECONOMY AND RUGGEDNESS

Extraordinary speed and power, combined with economical care-free service, continue to win to Chrysler "58" new owners at the rate of 10,000 per month.

This nation-wide endorsement of Chrysler "58" is no mere matter of chance.

On the contrary its sustained speed ability of 58 miles per hour, acceleration of 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds and economy of 25 miles to the gallon, which have won this approval, are the predetermined result of the most carefully calculated balance, scientific carburetion and gas distribution, plus painstaking Chrysler craftsmanship.

We are eager to give you a thorough demonstration not only of these Chrysler "58" qualities, but also of its riding and handling ease, sturdiness and ruggedness. These, combined with its new electrifying low prices, will convince you that Chrysler "58" is today more than ever the outstanding motor car value under $1000.

PAIGE ANNOUNCES A SMALLER CAR

Two-Door Brougham On Special Chassis; Same Engine As Big Model. New Line Midway In Price. Size Between Jewett And Larger Paige.

A two-door brougham on a special Paige chassis, midway in size and price between the new-day Jewett and the new line of Paiges, is announced by the Paige Detroit Motor Car Co., represented here by Bruce Motor Car Co.

The new Paige is of 115-inch wheel base, 10 inches shorter than the standard Paige line. Its price is $1295, or $200 less than the Paige sedan and $200 more than the Jewett de luxe sedan.

The special Paige chassis follows the practice of the 125-inch model. The engine, clutch, and transmission are the same as those used in the large Paige.

Paige hydraulic four-wheel brakes are standard equipment. The radiator and nickel-plated shell are the same as in the large car. A black belt moulding divides the two tone finish in polished lacquer, Arizona gray above and Pueblo gray below.

Five are seated without crowding. The doors are 36 inches wide, giving easy access.

Equipment.

The equipment includes rebound snubbers in front, automatic windshield cleaner, mirror, stop light and dome light. On the instrument board are an engine-heat indicator and a gasoline gauge. The dials are grouped in an oval panel with indirect lighting.

The windows have rotary lifts, and the doors are fitted with remote control handles.

A coincidental lock is used, controlling both ignition and steering. When the ignition is switched off, the steering wheel locks automatically.

The tires are 31 by 5 1-4 non-skid balloon cords, mounted on artillery type wood wheels. The brake drums on all four wheels are 12 inches in diameter. Springs are 54 inches front, 54 inches rear.

The Paige engine is 3 1-4 by 5 inches, developing 70 horsepower. Its lubrication is by pressure feed to all bearings, including the wrist pins. It has an automatically adjusted front end silent timing and is equipped with thermostatic control of the cooling system and an air-cleaner.

Pontiac Meeting With Big Demand On the Markets

PONTIAC, Mich., April 24.—The gigantic strides this week by the Oakland Motor Car company were strikingly revealed this week when total production figures for March showed that more cars were built during this month than during the entire first four months of last year.

A record-breaking total of 12,035 Oakland Six and Pontiac Six cars was manufactured and shipped out.

Another factory record was smashed on March 31 when 758 cars were shipped to dealers—the greatest one day shipment in the history of the company.

These achievements were made possible, in great measure, by the phenomenal sales of the new Pontiac Six which was introduced the first of the year as a companion car to the Oakland Six. More than 10,000 Pontiac Sixes were produced and sold during the first three months of this year—a record never before approached by any other new motor car in the annals of the automotive industry.

By mid-summer the number of Pontiac Sixes produced will exceed the best record ever made by any other car during its entire first year. Pontiac Sixes are now being built at the rate of 500 a day.

While the Pontiac Six was establishing new production and sales records for a new car during the first quarter of this year, the Oakland Six was likewise establishing new production and sales records, showing an increase of approximately 70 per cent over the corresponding months of 1925. All of the produced so far this year were required for immediate retail delivery.

Cause of Tire Wear.

Misalignment of wheels is the unsuspected cause of the premature demise of many tires. When the wheels of a car are not parallel the tire must undergo a diagonal grind as it passes over the road surface. Sometimes an axle becomes bent by a severe blow or the steering apparatus gets out of adjustment. [illegible] are not put in straight. Bearings sometimes become worn and permit the wheels to wobble. In any case, the tread soon grinds off and the fabric of the tire is exposed to many destructive agencies. By close observation it is possible to distinguish many cars being driven with wheels perceptibly out of true. In numerous instances the motorist is not aware that his tires are being subjected to abnormal wear until the announcement comes in the form of a worn-off tread or a blowout. After a car has received a hard bump see at once that the axles have not been bent or the wheels knocked out of true.

MARCH IS HUPP RECORD MONTH

Production and Sales For Period Greatest In History Of Company.

March was the largest month in the entire history of the Hupp Motor Car corporation, both in number of cars manufactured and in sales volume in dollars, the Hupmobile organization announced yesterday. It surpassed November, 1925, hitherto the record month, by 8 per cent in number of cars and by a still higher margin in dollar sales volume.

Simultaneously, the company announced that its total shipments for the first three months of 1926 exceeded those for the similar period in 1925 by 45 per cent. Domestic shipments leaped 47 per cent ahead of those for the 1925 first quarter, while those for export ran 38 per cent larger. Total shipments for March, 1926, were 29 per cent higher than for March, 1925, which up to that time was one of the company's largest months. Export shipments for March were 83 per cent above those for the same month a year ago.

During the last week of March the company established four other records. During that time it enjoyed the greatest single day's production in its history, the greatest week's production, the largest single day's shipments and the largest week's shipments.

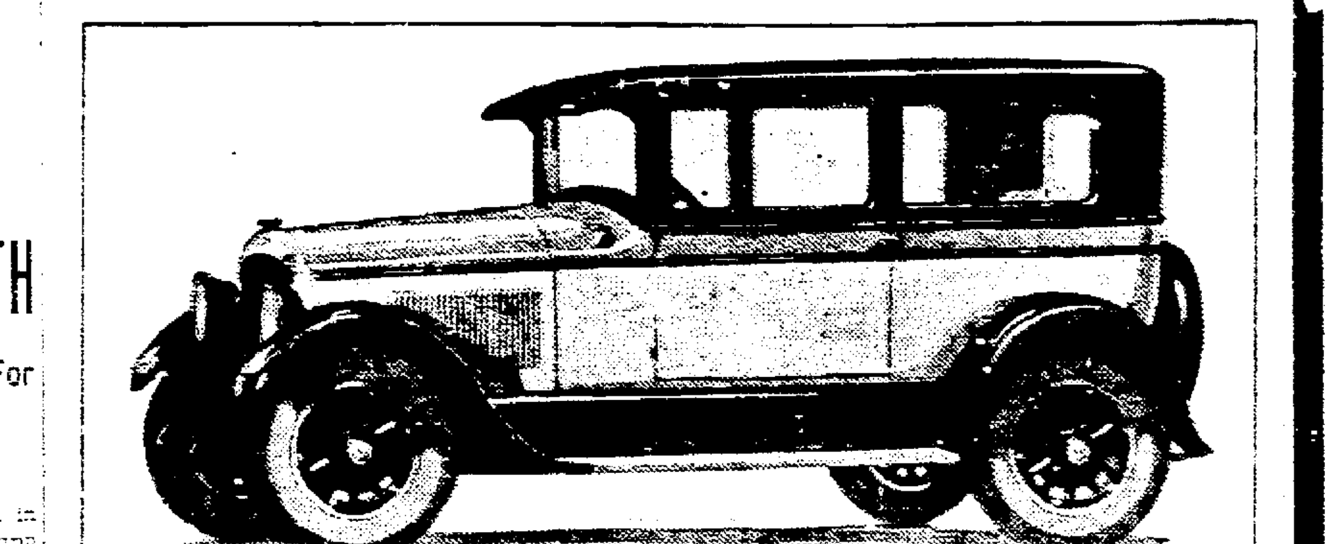

Output in both its six and eight cylinder divisions on March 31 was the largest ever attained.

Despite its record business, the company on March 31, carried over unfilled orders for more than $1,300,000 worth of cars. Its orders received April 1 aggregated more than 1,000 additional cars, making more than $2,700,000 worth of unfilled orders April 1.

"Continued large growth in demand for both the Hupmobile six and eight contributed to this record," says C. C. Hutchinson, general sales manager. "Outstanding success has greeted both cars throughout the country. Our shipments of eight cylinder cars during March surpassed those for March 1925, by 38 per cent. This is a remarkable showing as the Hupmobile eight, even a year ago, was the largest selling car of its type in the world.

"Hupmobiles today are being sold by distributors and dealers at the fastest rate they have ever attained. We are planning still greatest output for the coming months. Both ourselves and our distributors see the greatest success for Hupmobile for 1926 that we have ever enjoyed. Indicative of the trend of the public toward closed cars, the company reports that 93 per cent of its March domestic shipments was in enclosed models."

New Paige Model; Has Special Short Chassis

This latest product of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. is built on a chassis 10 inches shorter than the standard Paige line, recently introduced. The engine, however, is the same as that used in the larger models. This new brougham is finished in two tones of lacquer, Arizona gray above, Pueblo gray below, with ivory stripes.

Universal Joints.

When the universal joints and the end shafts of the axle and differential become worn, considerable back lash will result. To eliminate the lost motion entirely is practically impossible on an old car. Each joint itself may not appear to be worn greatly, but like the links in a chain each little amount when added together totals considerably at the wheel. By installing new parts in the universal and refitting the shafts of the axle most of the lost motion is eliminated at a very reasonable cost.

New York Beauty Makes Hard Drive In An Oldsmobile

After winning laurels as the prize beauty in a contest conducted by a New York newspaper, and again at Asbury Park, N. J., Mabel Schloen, 1239 Beach avenue, the Bronx, N. Y., recently tested her ability as an expert automobile driver. She succeeded in piloting a new Oldsmobile sedan from Columbus, O., to New York City in three days with weather below zero most of the time and part of the trip through the worst blizzard of the winter.

Mabel closed a theatrical engagement in Columbus and decided to drive home. She purchased the Oldsmobile and two canaries as companions and started out. At Syracuse she met the blizzard and successfully combatted it, much to the surprise of a policeman who advised against her going further.

"Outside of the horrible weather, everything was lovely. My Oldsmobile performed 100 per cent. The only fault I found after arriving home was that it needed a good scrubbing. I was handed a ticket twice for speeding but got off easy by giving the traffic officers a smile and buying two $1 tickets for some county affair which I gladly did instead of saying 'good morning Judge.'"

Features of this New Paige

Improved Paige-built Motor, none more modern or better lubricated
Full High-Pressure Oil Feed to all Rotating Parts, including wrist pins, cam shaft, auxiliary shaft and tappets
Counterbalanced Crankshaft — Silent Chain Timing, with automatic takeup — Air Cleaner
All Metal Oil-Seal Universal Joints — Springs 54 inches long — Shock Absorbers — Balloon Tires
Paige-Hydraulic 4-Wheel Brakes — Easy Steering through Ball Bearings
Automatic Windshield Cleaner — Dash Gas and Heat Indicator — Stop Light—Dome Light

Following fast on the heels of the first announcement of the startling new line of Paige motor cars—comes the Brougham, at the amazing low price of only $1295.

Somewhat more compact—a trifle shorter in wheelbase two doors instead of four—these are the only essential differences between this new Brougham and the other superb models in the new Paige line.

The engine is the same. There is only one Paige engine—Paige built—an ultra-modern, highly perfected and wonderfully simplified motor developing all of the power any emergency will ever require and all of the speed any sane driver will ever care to use.

The body of the Brougham explains at a glance the tremendous strides recently made in the body builder's art. Although somewhat smaller than the Paige sedans—it is larger than most sedans. Its interior is roomier than most. Passengers may enter or leave the rear without requiring front seats to be folded down. The finish is of polished lacquer in two tones of rich gray. The upholstery is soft, lustrous, and long wearing. The exterior appearance is enhanced by a smart double belt molding, and the popular "ball back" rear roof line.

You who have driven the companion cars of this new Brougham will find here all of the same quick acceleration—all of that same delightful ease of handling—the same positive, safe and certain braking—the same roadability and comfort. You will find in this Brougham, too, all of the quality in both materials and workmanship that always distinguishes motor cars bearing the name of Paige. And you will find all these things in a car that sells for less than a great many only ordinary cars.

See this Brougham and drive it at your very earliest opportunity—for we doubt if even the tremendous new Paige factories will be able to build enough for all those who will want this truly outstanding "buy."

DEALERS—If you are in the automobile business or if you are in some other work and desire to enter the business, then we want to hear from you. We offer splendid opportunities in unassigned territories. Make up your mind today that you want to join the great Paige and Jewett family and write us for particulars.

How Little Man Measures Universe

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Will you kindly inform me how the distances of stars too far from the earth to use the parallax method are measured or estimated? I understand, of course, that the distance of the nearer stars can be measured by parallax, using the diameter of the earth's orbit for a base, but in the case of stars 30,000 light-years away, how could such a base yield any angle, and if not, what other method could be used?—B. H. L., Silver Spring, Md."

A parallax of about one-tenth of a second of arc is perhaps about as small as can be surely measured That means a distance equal to 2,063,000 times the earth's distance from the sun. It also corresponds to a distance of 32.6 light-years. The parallax corresponding to a distance of 30,000 light-years is about one ten-thousandth of a second of arc, and is, of course, hopelessly beyond direct measurement.

As you surmise, therefore, other methods have been discovered for determining the distances of the more remote stars, which comprise the vast majority of all that the heavens contain.

The most effective is that based upon the system of absolute magnitudes, combined with data derived from the spectroscopic and other peculiarities of certain classes of stars.

To illustrate, suppose that there was a kind of electric lamp emitting light of a peculiar quality or color, and that all lamps of that kind were known to have the same absolute brightness of candle power. Then, inasmuch as the brightness of a light of a given intensity varies inversely as the square of its distance, you would be able to tell the relative distances of a number of such lamps scattered about you simply by measuring their comparative brightness.

If one lamp, for instance, appeared four times as bright as another, you could say at once that the first was twice as near as the second, since 4 is the square of 2, the nearer lamp appearing by the optical law, brighter than the farther one. Then, if you had first measured the brightness of a lamp placed at a certain known distance, you could use that as a standard for estimating the distances of all the others, giving the same kind of light. Suppose the distance of the standard lamp to be 1,000 yards; then a lamp 2,000 yards distant would be one-fourth as bright as the standard, and one 4,000 yards distant would be 1-16 as bright as the standard, and so on.

Now, astronomers have lately adopted a similar method for determining the distance of stars too remote to yield a measurable parallax. They have been enabled to do this because it has been found that large classes of stars, showing the same spectroscopic, or physical peculiarities, are all of similar absolute brightness, or magnitude.

In that respect, then, these stars, which are very numerous, resemble the lamps that we have been imagining, inasmuch as their distances can be inferred from their relative brightness. A few stars of these classes are within parallactic reach, so that they afford the standard by which the distances of the others can be determined as soon as their brightness has been measured.

Of course, the method does not apply to stars that do not fall within the peculiar classes concerned, but it has been found to be of a very wide practical application and has enormously extended the measured bounds of the universe. The principle of comparison of brightness with an absolute standard is applicable to the immensely distant globular star clusters, which there is reason to believe are all of quite similar absolute magnitude.

In this way distances of hundreds of thousands of light-years, corresponding to parallaxes reckoned in millionths of a second, have been determined.

The success of these methods depends upon the fact that the brightness of stars can be measured when their distances are so great that there is no possibility of measuring their parallaxes.

Is there not something within us which powerfully protests against the idea that creatures who have been able to perform these feats of far-reaching intelligence are only chemical automatons, without power of choice or will of their own?

Prove Studebaker Axle Strength

Above, the torsional test that is applied to one axle in every 200 in the Studebaker factories. The axle is twisted until it breaks. Right, the tensile strength of a Studebaker axle is 100 tons, enough to support a locomotive, if that test were possible.

The man who drives his car over city streets or ordinary roads may never have need for the extra margin of strength built into the well-made motor car, Studebaker engineers point out, but for the sudden emergency when lives are in the balance, it is important to have the extra strength ready, waiting to serve the owner and to prevent expensive breakage.

Studebaker rear axles must have a tensile strength of 100 tons, sufficient to hold up a railroad locomitive, the company's experts say.

A torsional test is applied to one axle in every lot of 200. This test consists of placing an axle in a huge machine and twisting it until it breaks. A Studebaker axle will turn at least 55 degrees before it snaps and must withstand a torsional load of 27,000 inch pounds before taking any "permanent set." In other words, if an axle should be released after 27,000 inch pounds had been applied, it would return to its normal position and still have its original strength. In this test the axles seldom break under 42,000 inch pounds—an added measure of safety. Breaking at 42,000 inch pounds means that it would take a weight of 420 pounds on a leverage of 100 inches to break the axle.

The maximum tension a driver could exert on an axle, by racing the engine, then dropping the clutch in suddenly, would be 10,000 inch pounds.

At the bottom of the steering wheel post is an important bushing. Wear on that bushing loosens up the whole steering gear, which may lead to trouble. While normal wear is slight, it nevertheless is a danger point. So Studebaker puts a sample of each batch of bushings into a machine, hangs a 90-pound weight upon it and runs it at high speed for three hours, equivalent to the wear in a car's life-time. At the end of the test, it must not show wear exceeding a thousandth of an inch.

Testers hunt for the "fattigue point" in a motor car spring. Constant extreme bending upsets the texture of metal. If there is the slighest flaw, the spring will break under this test. Studebaker puts samples from each batch of springs, all of which are made in its own plants, into a powerful machine and compresses them rapidly, time after time with double the load borne by a car. For a day and a half, 80,000 times in all, the sample springs are not alone pressed flat, but are bent backward to a reverse curve of three inches.

If a spring won't withstand 75,000 compressions, it is thrown out. No driver ever could submit springs on his car to this amount of abuse.

Here and There

Color Shades In Flag.

(Washington Star)

The commission of fine arts believes that a brighter blue, a deeper red and a clearer white should be used in the American flag. The commission believes that in recent years there has been a departure from the shades of red and blue originally specified for use in the flag, and holds that the red stripes are not now of deep enough shade, sometimes, it says, verging on pink, and that the blue is so dark that it might be mistaken for black in some lights. There is talk that there has been a letting down in the quality of dye, and these matters will be presented to the proper authorities. Some persons have perhaps noted that that there are diverse shades of red and blue in the American flag, but it is not likely that many persons have attached importance to this. It would be better if the shades could be standardized, and if the fine arts commission thinks a livelier blue and a more glowing red would be effective, its opinion is deserving of consideration. It may not be possible to fix precisely on the shades of red and blue used in the flag of the American Revolution, and it may be that there was no agreement in the matter among the states. It would be possiblye, though, to go back to the original specification by the military and naval authorities as to the flag shades and have the flag makers follow specifications. It would be well to fix some reasonable regulation by which the shades of colors in American flags, whether used officially or non-officially, would be unvariable.

DEATH AT PICKRELL.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., April 24.—Mrs. Elizabeth Diggs died Friday morning at the home of her son, Harry Wylie, at Pickrell, Neb., following a stroke of paralysis, aged seventy-eight years. She had been a resident of Nebraska for twenty-three years. Nine sons, all living, survive.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Gears Need Exercise.

Because gears at times are difficult to shift, the engine power and gasoline can be saved by shifting the gears into a dozen or so positions before starting. Motorists who try this plan say they can shift much easier when the car starts.

A Tip When Replacing Inner Tube.

When inserting a new inner tube or replacing the old one, which has been repaired, the inside of the casing should first be wiped out with a damp cloth to remove any sand or grit that may be present. A single sharp-pointed grain of sand between the casing and the tube is very likely to force its way through the tube, causing a puncture. This is the real cause of many a mysterious puncture.

Simple Job to Clean Radiator.

The radiator should be cleaned out after anti-freeze solution has been used in a car's cooling system all winter. By merely flushing with pure water proves sufficient. After draining the system of anti-freeze fill it with water and run the engine until the water is hot. Then open the drain outlet at the bottom of the radiator and with the engine idling, supply water from a hose to the filler opening, just fast enough to keep the radiator full. Continue this treatment until the water escapes in a clear condition. When the use of pure water fails a hot solution of one pound sal soda to two gallons of water poured in the radiator and allowed to stay there two or three hours will when drained and rinsed out, carry with it most of the scale and sediment.

Timely Tips.

Among the jobs commonly required for a car that has been driven for several seasons are:

Relining and adjusting brake bands.

Painting or lacquer finishing the car.

Grinding valves and removing carbon.

Fitting new piston rings and piston pins.

Resetting timer contacts and spark plug gaps.

Installing new clutch facings and adjusting the clutch.

Having cylinder bores reconditioned and oversize pistons fitted.

Aligning front wheel and lubricating and adjusting front and rear wheel bearings.

Cleaning out radiator, tightening pump packings and renewing hose connections.

There are more than 100 bearings in the average automobile engine.

Sheet lead is best for adding dead weight to a car because it will take up a minimum of room does not rattle and can be readily fastened in place.

It is well to test the brake every day to see which of the two rear wheels is the more inclined to lock and slide.

A good grade of oil not only prevents carbon deposit, but will keep the bearing surfaces in better condition.

In event of a sudden stop on a slippery street it is best to steer a little away from the side with the sliding wheel.

Unparalleled Sales Reveal Cadillac's Sweeping Supremacy

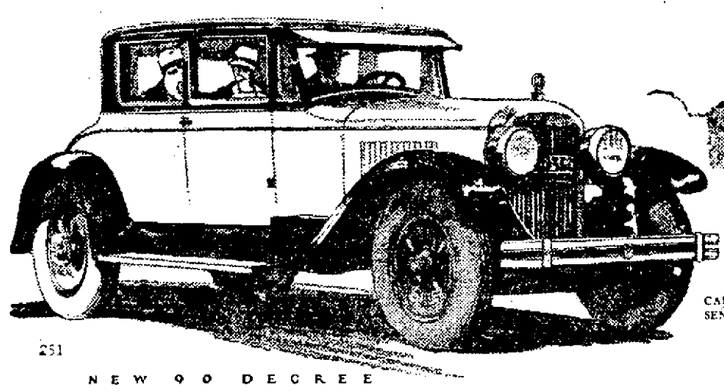

The whole world knows there can be but one Cadillac. The whole world, out of its Cadillac experience, welcomes each new Cadillac as the finished development of the world's standard in motor car engineering and manufacturing.

That, in a paragraph, tells why the sales-success of the new, 90-degree, eight-cylinder Cadillac is sweeping beyond all precedent in Cadillac history, and in the history of all cars comparable in quality and price.

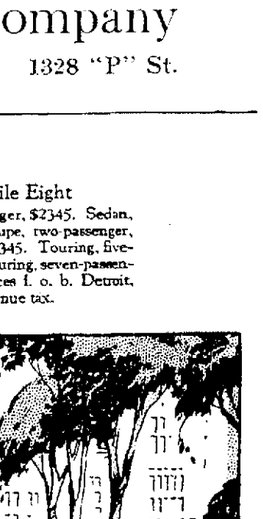

Cadillac sentiment is so strong and compelling that it causes people to turn away from the lesser, and toward Cadillac, time after time and year after year.

More than 25,000 new, 90-degree, eight-cylinder Cadillacs are magnificently proving themselves in the service of delighted owners to be the finest product ever issued from these plants.

But they do more than that, for they demonstrate that Cadillac stands today, as it has stood for years, the hub around which the motor car industry turns—a car without an equal and without a rival.

Gone are the Old Penalties of Low Price

Until the new Pontiac Six was developed, it was literally impossible to buy a low priced six without accepting certain admitted penalties—those of ordinary beauty, ordinary performance, ordinary comfort and ordinary stamina.

Now the new Pontiac Six changes all that. Developed by engineers who could draw on the almost limitless resources of General Motors, it provides not only the economy of an unexpectedly low price—but every characteristic of high quality.

It provides the striking beauty of a smart, roomy Fisher Body; complete freedom from pitching, side-sway, and gallop; entirely new qualities of get-away, speed, smoothness and power; and above all, a stamina and long life that can be achieved only by the strictest standards of design, material, workmanship and inspection.

And because it gives all that it does at so low a price, the new Pontiac Six has won from the very hour of its public presentation a wildfire reception, the like of which no other new six has ever enjoyed before.

HOLD ENGINEERS WEEK MAY 3 TO 8

Students of College of Engineering to Stage Annual Celebration.

Open House Thursday Evening, Parade, Field Day Are High Spots.

Engineers week, annual celebration by students in the college of engineer at the University of Nebraska, will be held this year May 3 to 8. Stanley Reiff of Omaha is general chairman for the week and committees have been busy for the past month preparing for the event.

The program includes a "pep" meeting Monday, May 3, a parade through the city Wednesday noon, a convocation Thursday morning at which the Sigma Tau scholarship medal will be presented, the annual open house, Engineers night, Thursday evening, and the field day and banquet Saturday.

Homer Scott In Charge.

Homer Scott of Lincoln is in charge of the pep meeting Monday. Dean O. J. Ferguson and Professors C. E. Mickey and J. W. Haney will speak. Dan Hannon is in charge of the parade Wednesday, in which each department of the college will be represented by a float.

Chancellor Avery will present the Sigma Tau medal at the Thursday convocation to the sophomore engineer who has made the best record during his freshman year. Lester Shields will present also on behalf of Sigma Tau, a picture of some prominent engineer for the hall of fame in the mechanical engineering building.

All engineering buildings and several others in which the engineering students will arrage exhibits will be open Thursday for the traditional Engineers night, beginning at 7 o'clock.

Will Make Experiments.

Spectacular experiments will be conducted in Chemistry hall. In Applied Mechanes hall the building materials testing laboratories will be in operation and such tests as tying steel rods in knots will be performed. There will also be a display of mechanical drawing.

High voltage displays, electric welding, and tests of electric machinery will be conducted in the Electrical Engineering building.

The power laboratory and machine tool laboratories in the Mechanical Engineering building will be in operation. In the foundry metal will be poured several times during the evening. The fuel sand lubricants laboratory will be in operation, and in the basement one of the new metallography laboratories will be open. The process of making liquid air will also be demonstrated.

Rural Architecture Display.

Agricultural engineering students will have a display of rural architecture, irrigation and drainage.

The university power plant will be open for inspection.

The Museum, in which the geology department is housted, will also be open to sightseers.

The field day Saturday will be composed of an all-day picnic at Antelope park during which classes and departments will compete in a number of events.

The banquet at the University club in the evening, at which the "Sledge," humorous publication, will be distributed, closes the week.

92ND BIRTHDAY

Mrs Mary E. Gay, who celebrated her ninety-second birthday Tuesday April 13, at the home of her son, John R. Gay, in Fremont. Mrs. Gay received one hundred guests on her birthday. Her sight and hearing are unusually good, and she has no trouble in moving around the house.

Mrs. Gay, whose husband was the late Jerry M. Gay, was born near Chillicothe, O., April 13, 1834. She went to Illinois with her parents at the age of fifteen and in 1879 she and her own family moved to Nebraska, settling near Fremont. Three years later they built a home in Fremont, where Mrs. Gay resided until eight years ago when she removed to her son's home.

Mr. Gay and one daughter, Mrs. Ida Linton, Portland, Ore., are her two children, and she has one foster daughter, Mrs. Emma A Burns of Fremont. One brother, Charles Jones and a sister, Mrs. Clara Umsted of Wilmington, Ill., with Mrs. Gay are the only living members of a family of sixteen children.

Exalted Ruler of Elks Visits Here For Hour Tuesday

Judge William Hawley Atwell of Austin, Tex., grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, will be in Lincoln for an hour next Tuesday, stopping over here on his way from Billings, Mont., to Omaha. He will be met at the station by a special committee consisting of Past Exalted Rulers Robert O. Hodgman, Robin R. Reid and Guy T. TouVelle and the officers of the local lodge and taken to the Lincoln hotel for lunch. The train will arrive at 1 p. m.

As the time in Lincoln is so short it will be impossible to have any meeting of the lodge. A reception committee will come from Omaha to meet Judge Atwell here and will also be at the lunch, after which Lincoln officers and members of Lincoln lodge will accompany the grand exalted ruler to Omaha.

Judge Atwell will preside at the opening of the Western league baseball season in Omaha and will afterwards be the guest of honor at a banquet which will be attended by Elks from all over the state and from western Iowa. A special lodge meeting will be held afterwards Judge Atwell will speak.

Grand Secretary Fred C. Robinson of Chicago will be in Omaha for the meeting.

ALBION HIGH WINS IN STOCK JUDGING

Glen Hedlund of Chappell Indiviual High Man With 613 In 700.

Albion high school won first in the general livestock judging contests for high schools at the college of agriculture Friday with a score of 1723 out of a possible 2100 points. More than 175 Nebraska high school students competed in the contests and twenty-eight schools were represented.

Chappell high school was second in livestock judging with 1702 and Randolph third with 1649. The ranking of the other schools was as follows: Eagle, Mead, Falls City, Minden, Sunflower, Nehawka, Cowles, Calloway, Friend, Geneva, Holmsville, Columbus, Beatrice, Milford, Stromsburg, Fairbury, Basset, Hebron, Milligan, and Broken Bow.

Glen Hedlund of Chappell high school was the high individual of the livestock judging contest with a score of 613 out of a possible 700 points. Howard Clark, also of Chappell high school, was second with a score of 596, and Joe King of the Albion high school was third with 589. The other high school students who ranked high in this division of the contests were Jessie Byleu, Albion; Clifford Pearson, Mead; Henry Hartmann, Falls City; Clifford Jorgensen, Minden; Harold Winner, Randolph; Gordon Kohnen, Randolph; and Donald Foltz, Albion.

Minden Wins Dairy.

Minden high school won first place in the diary cattle judging contest with a score of 912, and Cowles high school was a close second with 901 points out of a possible 1000. Rankings of other high teams was as follows: Friend, Geneva, Columbus, Nehawka, Albion, Calloway, Falls City, Stromsburg, Milford, Chappell, Holmesville, Bassett, and Beatrice.

Arthur Reitter of Eagle high school was first in the woodworking contest with a grade of 95 out of a possible 100. This contest lasted all day, and there were twenty-one entries. Other placings were Irwin Rippe, Geneva; Alfred Sandal, Minden; Jim Clark, Broken Bow; Albert Fritz, Beatrice; Clarence Krecklow, Falls City; Erwin Hutchinson, Waverley; Leonard Webber, Friend; Anthony Artz, Tecumseh; Walter Moolor, Grant; Jonathan Cousineau, Passett; Haven Smith, Chappell; Gilbert Panning, Hooper; Charles Gudgel, Fairbury; and Walter Ewert, Columbus.

Ralph Davison, Stromsburg, was first in the Babcock milk testing contest and Raymond Dunlap, Friend, was second. Other high entrants in this contest were Chester Wrightman, Holmesville; Perry Meredith, Albion; Reece Newman, York; Paul James, Waverly; Leonard Laudenschlager, Mead; Sterling Ingwerson, Nehawka; Wayne Bishop, Fairbury; and Joseph Randall, Sunflower consolidated at Mitchell.

Poultry Contest.

Ralph Corliss of Hebron high school won the top honors in the poultry judging contest and Harold Wall of Eagle and Ellyo Shutts of Friend tied for second. The following three men tied for fourth place: Eugene Peck, Falls City; Otto Kotas, Milligan; and Clifton Meisinger of Nehawka. Other placings were Harold Teagarden, Beatrice; Arnold Coffin, Fairbury; Williard Anderson, Minden; and Paul Wrightsuars, Holmeville.

Edwin Hutchison of Waverly placed first in the grain judging contest with 1522 points out a possible 1800. Edward Ulrich took second with 1485. Other placings were as follows: Earl Rediger, Milford; Jay Benard, Holmesville; Ray Lak, Grant; Bruce Anderson, Stromsburg, Ted Wallace, Mitchell; Ralph Davidson, Minden. Earnest Boyer, Calloway; and Elery Rinehart, Randolph.

The egg show sweepstakes were awarded to Helen Boch of Milligan, who took first in the white class, class. Placings of the other contestants in the white class were as follows: Harold Peck, Falls City; Elmer Starck, Fairbury; Clifton Meisinger, Nehawka; Elmer Starck, Fairbury. Students placing in the brown class were: Chester Wrightman, Holmesville; Jay Benard, Fred Hanson, Nehawka; and Robert Gettman, Holmesville.

Vernon Miller, Albion, was awarded first prize in the egg grading contest. Other high entrants were: Orville Iocena, Columbus; Herbert Blomendahl, Hooper; Paul Wrightman, Holmesville; Charles Grothe, Friend; Johnnie Morrman, Mitchell; Eugene Peck, Falls City; Roy Hayes, Beatrice; Lawrence Jones, Minden; and Lester Waldo, Nehawka.

Pigeon, Caught In Capitol, Relased After 3-Day Fast

Three nights and three days a prisoner—not on a bread and water diet, but without food or water—was the experience of an unfortunate pigeon which inadvertently flew into the new capitol building one day last week and could not find its way out again. The bird was finally restored to liberty through the kindly offices of John W. Holahan, janitor and assistant custodian.

How the dove made its entry is not known, but it is supposed to have done so through an open window in one of the offices, thence passing into the hallway and the main vestibule at the center of the north side. There it chose its roosting place the first night, at the top of one of the Italian carble columns 40 feet above the floor.

Members of the custodial force discovered its presence the next morning and tried to shoo it away. But the pigeon was unable to find any place of egress and only fluttered back and forth from one lofty perch to another.

Missiles could not be thrown at it for fear of injuring the stone carvings and Mosaic designs on the walls and dome of the vestibule. Neither could anybody climb up the vertical walls, and no ladder would reach to where the intruder was.

Several of the janitors laid plots to get the unlucky bird and wring its neck, with the idea of taking it home for dinner. All of these failed, however, since it preferred to endure hunger and thirst rather than risk capture. Like Poe's raven, it sat "never flitting," and calmly preened itself in its secure station overhead.

Assistant Custodian Holahan sympathized with the plight of the pigeon and finally figured out a way for it to escape. On the evening of the third day he propped open the two sets of glass doors at the main entrance, after the offices had closed and their occupants gone home. When everything was quiet, the pigeon decided to venture down, and, seeing the outside light, it flew through the open dorway to freedom and food.

Round Up Boys On Charge Damaging Park Equipment

An investigation by Police Chief Peter Johnstone into recent damaging of city property in Antelope park led to the round-up Saturday afternoon of a dozen boys and young men who were said to have taken part in destroying lamps, benches, and playground equipment valued at more than $150.

Chief Johnstone and Commissioner Gillaspie interviewed the boys and found five who admitted part in the destruction. Two more are yet to be found.

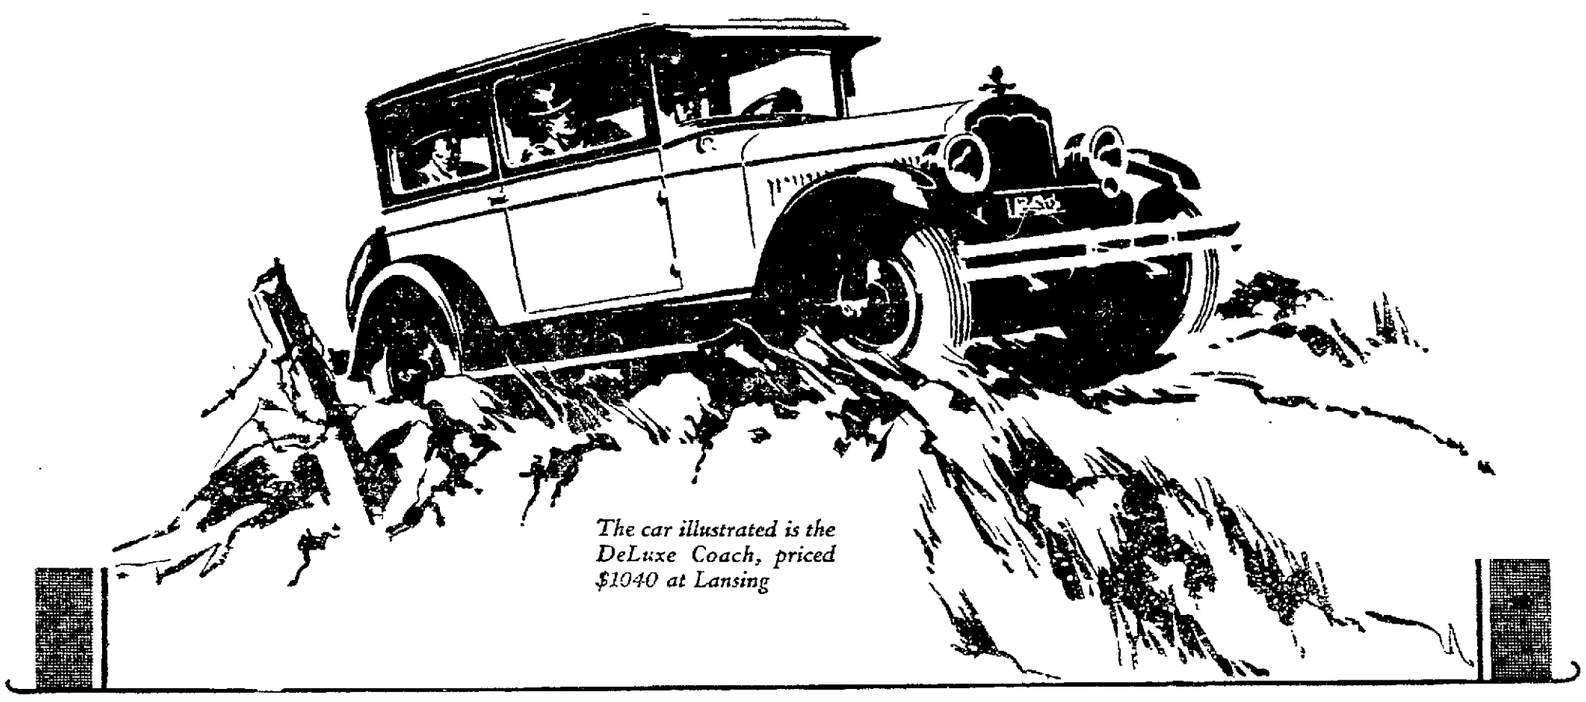

The boys interviewed have agreed to pay for the damage, chief Johnstoen said.

Some swings, and benches were broken, together with a number of lamp globes shattered by rocks.

Obituary

EDGAR ROSSITER.

Editor of the DeWitt Times-News, who passed away at his home at DeWitt Friday, April 16. He had served eighteen years as a member of the village council and was four times elected mayor. He served in the legislature in the last session and had filed for renomination at the coming primaries. He was 63 years old.

Mr. Rossiter was in good health excepting that he suffered a series of slight heart attacks for about two weeks before his death, and it was this malady that caused his death.

He was born in Midland township, Gage county, October 11, 1862. His early years were spent on the farm, and with the exception of three years in Colorado, spent his entire life in Gage and Saline counties.

On January 28, 1532, he was united in marriage to Miss Pluma Thompson. To this union there were born four children, Charles E. of Longmont, Colo., Bert W. and Mrs. Ralph Venrick of DeWitt, and Mrs. W. H. Leacock of Lincoln.

He was a communicant of the Episcopal church and a member of St. Augustine's Mission at DeWitt.

He engaged in business at DeWitt for many years and in 1922 entered the newspaper field, purhasing two local papers and consolidating them.

Services were conducted by Rev. W. A. Mulligan of Beatrice at the home Monday, April 19, which hundreds of friends attended. Final rites were held at the grave and the body laid to rest in Oak Grove cemetery near DeWitt.

JOHN BAKER THOMAS.

John Baker Thomas, 79 years old, died March 26 at his home at Fresno, Cal. He was a pioneer of Nebraska, having come to the state with an ox team. He settled near Eagle, and was a member of Farragut Post No. 10 of the G. A. R. in Lincoln.

He and Mrs. Thomas, who survives him, had celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary January 10. He also leaves two sons' DeLos and Arthur Thomas of Fresno, and a daughter, Mrs. Zella A. Peirsch of Lincoln, sixteen grandchildren, and five great grandchildren.

In the Civil war, Mr. Thomas served with the 47th company of the Wisconsin volunteers.

Funeral services were held March 28 at the Bethel church of Fresno and he was buried in the G. A. R. cemetery there.

MORGAN'S DREAM OF SHIP POWER SEEMS FAILURE

Majestic, the Olympic, Homeric, Adriatic, Celtic, Baltic, Cedric and others. P. A. S. Franklin president of the International Mercantile Marine, is in London now negotiating with the bidders, said to be a British syndicate which includes representttives of the Cunard line and the Furness-Withy Co.

Twenty years ago, the elder Morgan, then at the height of his career, startled the world with the news that he was negotiating for American organization of the greatest shipping trust in history. It was the beginning of the trust era in the United States.

In his scheme for American supremacy in the land and sea, Morgan chose the leading British lines as his nucleus. At first, the Cunard line was included in his program. England, frightened by the American "menace," feared for the downfall of her traditional ocean supremacy. British resistance mounted and finally, by obtaining governmental support, the Cunard line escaped the Yankee colossus. The White Star and other British lines were gobbled up, however, but not without concessions by Morgan. These included his promise that the acquired lines would be continued under British registry even though the company which controlled them was owned by Americans.

Expect Approval Shortly.

Final approval of the pending sale is expected in London next week. The British are said to have offered the International Mercantile Marine from $30,000,000 to $35,000,000 for control of the White Star. It is rumored that the British are seeking control of the whole International Mercantile Marine, although 80 per cent of its stockholders are now Americans.

The formation of the International Mercantile Marine was practically the last of the big deals negotiated by the late J. P. Morgan. The present head of the house carried on the inheritance, but the British never abandoned hope of recovering at least partial control. British interests made a bid for the White Star line after the war, but it was rejected at the behest of the United States government.

U. S. STILL EXPECTS AN AGREEMENT

erably better" than the Caillaux proposal and that the "negotiations might be concluded soon," another member of the commission declared privately that "the offer must be improved before it can be accepted."

Paris Officials Unworried.

PARIS, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—The new French offer for settlement of the debt to the United States has been favorably received by the United States debt funding commission, according to dispatches to the foreign office.

Definite action on the offer is not expected for several days as there will have to be some negotiations on details.

Ambassador Berenger is under instructions to leave the way open for a change in the provisions of the offer with regard to the safety clause.

There are innumerable details in the proposal which will need consideration, it is stated, and it is expected there will be several meetings in Washington before a final decision is reached.

France Negotiating With Britain.

PARIS, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—France has opened preliminary debt negotiations with England it was officially announced tonight.

The negotiations, it is understood, are being conducted by experts attached to the embassy at London.

M. Peret probably will go to London, it was said, to conclude the negotiations.

(Special to The Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., April 24.—Officials of Ord township had a conference with the directors of the chamber of commerce regarding further improvement on what is known as the Antelope creek road leading west from this city. Last year, through money provided by the county, city of Neligh, the chamber of commerce and Ord township ,the road was graded and surfaced for a considerable distance.

The work last year, however, leaves a considerable strip of bad road before reaching a really good highway. Ord township made the proposition that it would put in $3 for every dollar Neligh would put in to improve the road a mile south from the present terminus and then on west as far as funds available would take it.

The portion of the road to be improved lays entirely within Ord township, but Neligh is interested as its improvement gives a large section of good road to this city in place of a bad one. It is expected that construction work will commence May 1.

Woodmen Of Eight Counties To Hold A Two-Day Picnic

(Special to The Star.)

HARTINGTON, Neb., April 24.—Starting out with county picnics in mind, Modern Woodman of the various camps of counties in northeast Nebraska have enlarged their plans and decided to hold a district meeting, including Woodmen from eight counties: Cedar Cuming, Burt, Dixon, Dodge, Stanton, Thursday and Wayne. A two-day encampment, June 14 and 15, will be held in Cuming county and visiting teams from Omaha, Lincoln and other places will assist in the program.

An agreement has been reached for the sale of Vavra's park to Crete business men, the sale price being $45,000. The park will be made over and many new features added, making it one of the finest recreational centers in this part of the state.

Bayard's Factory For Brick Cheese

(Special to The Star.)

BAYARD, Neb., April 24. — Machinery for the Bayard cheese factory has been ordered and the production of brick cheese is expected to start by May 15, according to Frank McCarter, president. A special effort is being made to have all farmers and land owners buy shares of stock, as only stockholders will be permitted to sell milk. The milk routes will be made up within about a week, and the stockholders on each route will be considered in placing the orders with various truckmen. The Bayard cheese factory will have a good cash reserve for operations after the machinery has been installed. A building which has been used as a creamery here has been leased for the enterprise. The Bayard factory will be the first in Nebraska making brick cheese.

Flood Very Early In North Platte

(Special to The Star.)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., April 24.—Flood waters in the North Platte river are coming down early this season, according to report of the division of irrigation and drainage of the depatment of public works, whose headquarters are in Bridgeport. Thursday, the river measured 5,000 feet here, with a big flood coming fom up stream. It is supposed to be from the Laramie river, as no water is being let out of the Pathfinder reservoir.

PLAN 240 MILES GRAVEL SURFACE

State to Spend $850,000 In Second Installment Of Road Project.

About 240 miles of gravel surfacing on state highways, part of which must be brought to permanent grade before the top coat is applied, together with 100 miles of new grading for dirt roads, construction of two dozen bridges, a mile of paving near Fort Calhoun, numerous culverts and sections of guard rail are embraced in the second installment of highway projects for which bids will be received and contracts let at State Engineer Cochran's office next Thursday and Friday.

Much of this work, whose estimated total cost is in the neighborhood of $850,000, will be done in central, western and northern Nebraska. It is those sections, also which will get the most benefit from state aid bridge expenditures during 1926 under contracts already made or to be awarded soon.

A third letting will be held some time in June, completing the highway program for the current year Projects to be taken care of then will aggregate approximately the same cash expenditure as those to be contracted for this week. The total outlay for new work on state highways in 1926 will be about $3,500,000, as compared with $4,500,000 last year.

Maintenance expenditure on the state highway system, however, is considerably more this year than last owing to the increased mileage of improved roads to be cared for. something like $2,000,000 will be spent for this purpose during the present annum half of which will be derived from the gasoline tax and half from motor vehicle license fees.

Wedding of Grand Daughter Of Judge Gary At Evanston A Brilliant and Costly Affair

EVANSTON, Ill., April 24.—(U. P.) — Conducted with a magic grandeur that made even the socially inclined suburb of Evanston murmur, Miss Elizabeth Campbell, grand daughter of Judge Elbert H. Gary, was married here tonight to Edward Sutherland Clark.

A grand opera artist sang the solos in the First Methodist church —which incidentally was dimly lighted with some hundred flickering candles—as the wedding procession started.

Leaders whose names stand out prominently in the social register of the North Shore district were present as the first strains of the wedding march pealed from the church organ.

Most prominent among the guests, however, was the beaming Judge Gary, one of the nation's foremost steel magnates. He was accompanied by Mrs. Gary.

The interior of the church, viewed through the dim candlelight, disclosed a bower of spring flowers. Gardenias, lilacs and lilies of the valley formed the greater portion of the floral decorations.

Miss Marjorie Maxwell, member of the Chicago Civic Opera, and a close friend of Mrs. Lewis Carlton Pettit of Paris, the groom's mother, was the soloist for the occasion.

From the church the bridal party adjourned to the Evanston Country club where an elaborate wedding supper was served and reception was held.

The club was also decorated with spring flowers.

Miss Campbell, who has been proniment in North Shore social affairs, was dressed in a gown of white satin which was decorated with rose point lace hich her mother, Mrs. Robert Willis Campbell, Judge Gary's daughter, wore at her wedding.

No display of wedding gifts was made but it was learned that in addition to a bountiful check, Judge and Mrs. Gary gave the young couple a silver bowl and a pair of silver candelabras.

County Red Cross Is Given a Fund

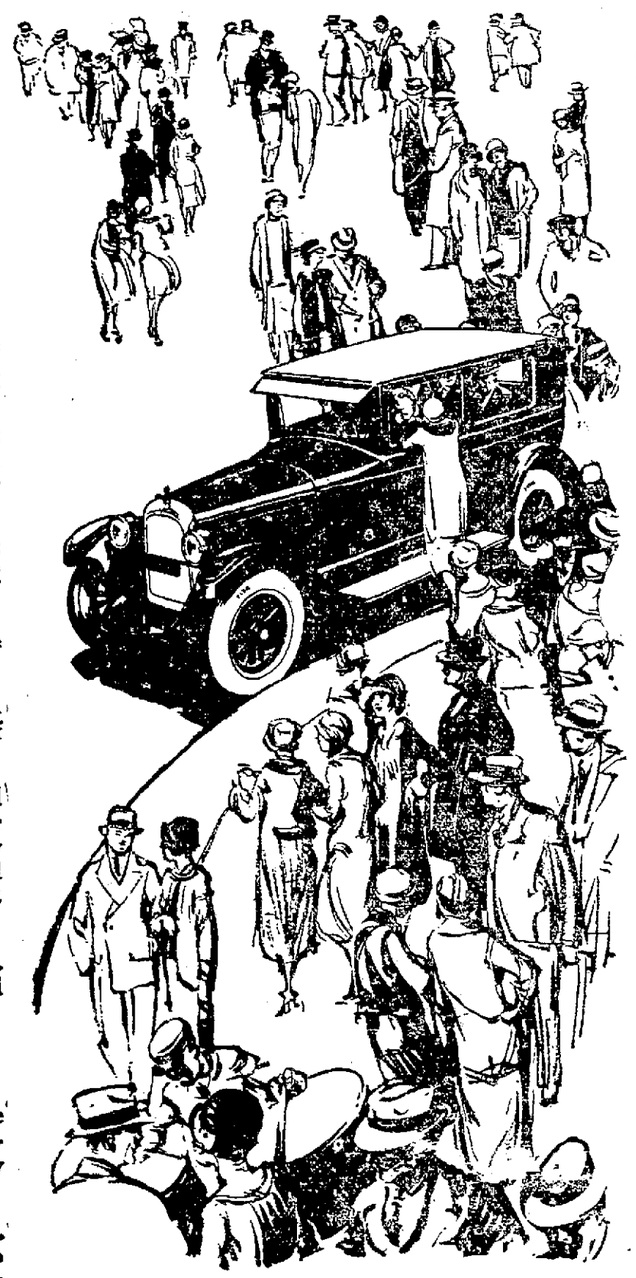

(Special to The Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., April 24.—A delegation of the Antelope county Red Cross appeared before the last meeting of the county supervisors and asked that they appropriate $2,500 for salary and expense of county Red Cross nurse for the year 1926 and 1927. The amount was appropriated out of the general fund when available.

How you can profit by the experience of others when buying a motor car today

WHY are so many people buying the Overland Six today . . . what is the reason for this tremendous popularity . . . and what do present owners say about their cars?

Recently we asked thousands of owners what were the particular reasons that made them select an Overland Six in preference to other competing makes?

Out of 1024 replies received from one city, 863 owners stressed the TREMENDOUS POWER of this car.

"Its wonderful performance sold me", said one owner. "I get a thrill every time I drive it."

"Its beauty and comfort", answered another. "Easy handling and the splendid reputation of the Overland."

"If others knew what I know about the Overland Six, they would certainly purchase no other car of the same class", replied still a third. "My Overland is a little over one year old, has traveled 20,000 miles and is averaging a little over 22 miles to the gallon".

Such popularity as this is not a chance result. Sheer merit alone has won this whole-hearted praise from 92,000 owners.

They all praise its power

Owners everywhere tell us about the remarkable performance of this car. Its power, flexibility, acceleration and pick-up absolutely defy description.

Up to 60 miles an hour whenever you want it. 5 to 40 miles an hour in 21 seconds. Ability to take, on high, mountain grades which few cars have ever climbed in high gear. That's the dashing, thrilling performance of this Overland Six.

It will absolutely out-pull, out-run and out-perform anything else of its size, or weight, or price-class.

Full 40-brake horsepower is delivered in a straight line from its low swung engine through to the rear-axle shaft. The result is a speed capacity that is positively amazing.

It took 2 years to design and build the Overland Six. And in addition 12 months to test it. We doubt if any car ever built received more careful study from the engineering standpoint.

It embodies the major advantages of 18 of Europe's and America's finest motor cars. Plus many others our own engineering experts developed.

The Overland Six will turn in a forty foot circle. Rear springs are underslung and 52" long. 141 square inches of braking surface provide an ample safety margin.

It has more inside space. More cubic feet than the average car of this price.

The result is ample comfort for 5 full-size passengers . . . with plenty of room to step in or out . . . room to stretch your legs with the utmost ease.

The seats are wider, the windows larger, the doors much broader. All features you'll certainly appreciate when you inspect rival cars of this price.

In style and body lines this car resembles the creations of famous European coachmakers.

The famous Hispano Suiza, the Belgian Minerva, the Italian Fiat and other costly foreign cars frankly influenced its design.

It is smart, yet unobtrusive . . . in dignified good taste.

And contrasting with this beautiful appearance, is the sturdy, rugged way it's built. In this car we use the same steels, the same standards of material and workmanship we employ in building the famous Willys-Knight.

The world affords no finer quality.

Fine Cars on a tremendous production basis

Under ordinary production standards this Overland Six Sedan could not be sold within $300 to $400 of its price.

Yet because of the tremendous purchasing power and production facilities of the great Willys-Overland organization, this quality Six now sells for only $935 f. o. b. factory.

To spend more is extravagance. To pay less means a great sacrifice in comfort and performance.

Get the utmost for your money. Ride in this car . . . test it in comparison to the value others offer. In fairness to yourself, buy no car until you do.

Husker Sprinter Dazzling Comet of Drake Meet

NEBRASKA STAR IN RECORD DASH

Roland Locke Reels Off Century Sprint In 9.5 Seconds; Wind At His Back And Mark May Not Stand.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

DRAKE STADIUM, DES MOINES, Ia., April 24. — Roland Locke, bright star of the Nebraska track constellation, flashed across the cinder world today with a Drake relay record which promises to stand for a considerable period of time—a century dash which was clocked in 9 5-10 seconds.

The remarkable performance turned in by the fleet Nebraska athlete, following his 9.6 exhibition at the Kansas relays one week ago, stamps the North Platte boy as the fastest sprinter of the collegiate world and one of the speediest cinder burners that ever donned a spiked shoe.

Ran on Soggy Track.

The large gathering of track scribes and coaches in Des Moines for the Drake carnival were free with their predictions tonight, expressing the common belief that within a short time Locke with favorable weather conditions, will rewrite the sprint record book.

Locke's time of 9.5 today was achieved on a soggy track and in the face of distressing temperature, the sky being overcast and the air damp and chilly when the sprinters toed the mark.

A breeze which was at his back during the record-producing sprint probably will balk the Nebraska boy in his effort to read the Saturday time into the collegiate and A. A. U. record books. A slight wind was blowing during the race, but veteran track men pointed out that the condition of track more than offset any advantage gained by the wind.

ROLAND LOCKE.

Put up to A. A. U.

Drake officials announced, following the race, that the time would stand as a local relay record and might possibly be allowed by the A. A. U. Today's mark undoubtedly will assure at least favorable action on the 9.6 Locke made at the Kansas relays a week ago today.

In winning the 100-yard dash, Locke led the field by five or six yards. He was the first off a starter's pistol and gained at every step. The margin was so apparent that the crowd in the far stadium stands cut loose with a loud road which was not quieted until Announcer Ted Canty lifted his megaphone to cry the performance.

Revenged On Alderman.

Alderman, Michigan Aggie sprinter, who defeated Locke in a 300-meter race at the Illinois relays, failed to place in the century dash.

Locke took additional revenge in two of the relay races. Alderman was running anchor position on the Lansing relay team. In the 880-yard relay, Locke overcame a six-yard handicap to beat Alderman at the tape by at least three yrds. Handed the baton on even terms, Locke ran away from the Michigan Aggie sprinter in the finish of the 440-yard relay.

Locke's performance drew the play away from Charley Hoff, Norwegian pole vault sensation. Hoff cleared 13 feet 9 inches, but failed on three attempts at 14 feet. Hoff's form is difficult to describe. He is a lithe, long muscled athlete who simply grabs a pole and vaults over the bar, making the altitude look easy.

Wirsig Tied for First.

Frank Wirsig, Nebraska pole vaulter, was the only other Cornhusker to bid for a first place. Wirig closed the afternoon in a six-cornered tie for first position, the sextet doing 12 feet 6 inches. Runways were slick from the drizzle which fell intermittently during the afternoon, and the cold weather kept the athletes well chiled. Wirig drew the third medal on the flip. Rhodes went out at 12 feet.

Bobbie Stephens placed second in the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet 11 3-4 inches, two inches short of first place. The hopeful sign in Stephen's performance was that he beat out Lancaster, Missouri boy, who won the indoor jump

Monte Lands Quick Kayo

NEW York, April 24.—(I. N. S.)— Monte Munn, former Nebraska legislator and brother of Wayne Munn, former champion heavyweight wrestler, made his debut as a puglist here tonight and won a knockout in the first round when he floored Billy Josephs. Philadelphia negro. Josephs seconds quickly tossed in the towel.

Munn upset Josephs with a vicious left and then a right to the jaw. He helped his beaten opponent up from the floor and called it a night.

Purple Trimmed By Gopher Outfit

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 24.—(U. P.)—The University of Minnesota opened its 1926 conference season with a 3 to 1 victory over Northwestern here today. The Gophers bunched four of their five hits in the first two innings for two runs and added the third tally in the sixth frame when the Purple blew up behind Mills.

Michigan Stops Purdue.

LA FAYETTE, Ind., April 24.—(U. P.)—Joblonoski held the heavy hitting Purdue nine to five hits here today and stopped the Boilermakers' winning streak of six games, Michigan copping the game, 6 to 4. Puckalwartz starred at bat for Michigan with three hits in as many times up.

What Nebraska Did at Drake.

Roland Locke won the 100-yard dash in 9 5-10 seconds, bettering the world record by one-tenth and establishing new Drake relay record.

Bobbie Stephens placed second in the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet 11 3-4 inches.

Frank Wirsig finished in a six-way tie for first place in the pole vault at 12 feet 6 inches.

Oscar Wiberg, Nebraska Wesleyan. place dfourth in the shot put with a toss of 45 feet 2½ inches.

Nebraska's two-mile relay team finished second.

Nebraska's quarter-mile relay team won its heat nd tied for second in the time comparisons for final placing.

The Cornhusker half-mile team won its heat and placed third in the time comparisons.

Nebraska's mile relay team finished fourth in its heat, but failed to place in the time comparisons.

Nebraska high school teams finished second, third and fourth in the quarter-mile relay; placed fourth in the two-mile relay; third in the half mile relay and third in the mile relay.

Nebraska U. Marksmen Have Successful Season.

Upper row—Shafer, Plotts, Lammli, Madsen, Otiadoswky. Lowerrow—Major, Captain Eggers, (instructor,) Currie, (team captain), Sergeant Esenther, (instructor), Kosek, Wanek.

Cornhusker riflemen have just concluded the most successful season of indoor tarket shooting in the history of the University of Nebraska. In 36 contests with the marksmen of leading universities and colleges throughout the nation, the Cornhusker riflemen turned in 21 victories, while losing 13 and tying one.

The final week of the season was mast successful of all, the Huskers winning six of eight competitions.

Lammli in the middle of the upper row, was high man of the Cornhusker team with an average of 376.56. Averages of other Nebraska tem members follow: Shafer, 374.32; Currier, 372; Otldowsky, 370.61; Madsen, 268.73; Skinner, 368.23; Kossek, 366.92; Piotts, 366.73. Skinner was missing when the group picture was taken.

LINKS COME HOME TO START SEASON

Dutch and His Athletes To Tackle Indians In the Opening Game.

Tuesday Inaugural Preceded By Luncheon at Chamber Of Commerce.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

The test of Lincoln's loyalty to the national game—its appreciation of membership in the Western league—will come next Tuesday afternoon, when the Links and the Indians of Oklahoma City step out on the green sward at Landis Field and engage in the opening combat of the local season. Gates to the field will swing open at 2 p. m. and the league umpires assigned to Lincoln by League President Dale Gear will formally inaugurate play at 3:30.

While civic organizations in other Western league cities, notably Des Moines, have taken definite steps to get out record crowds in competing for the trophy offered by President Gear, Lincoln fans apparently have been willing to restrain their enthusiasm until the opening day rolls around, intent on charging through the turnstiles without advance notice.

Des Moines Bids for Cup.

The Greater Des Moines committee of the chamber of commerce in Iowa's capital city recently launched a sale of opening day tickets and information coming from Des Moines is to the effect that the marketing of pasteboards has been proceeding at a record pace, such as to indicate that the Iowa capital will bid formidably to win the cup.

That Des Moines is enthusiastic in preparing for opening day is not particularly surprising. After several successive seasons of near tailending the league race, the Des Moines team hopped out of its rut last summer and blithely won the Western league pennant.

With Lincoln, however, the shoe has been on the other foot. To be more definite, the Nebraska capital has finished in the cellar the past two seasons and its 1926 club, opening the flag campaign on the road, is the kite's tail at the present writing.

No Quitters In Lincoln.

Under such conditions, a park-jamming attendance would redound to Lincoln's credit, advertising to the baseball world that the capital city of Nebraska declines to list itself in the quitters' class.

Lincoln chamber of commerce officials have given notice of their purpose to accord to Western league ball the stamp of their warm approval. The two clubs—Links and Indians—have been invited to a special noon luncheon at the club rooms on the opening day of the season.

Roster of Honor Guests.

In addition to the players of the teams, the list of honor guests will include League President Dale D. Gear of Topeka, Governor Adam McMullen, Mayor Frank C. Zehrung and his associate members of the city council, Chiefs Johnson and Hanson of the police and fire departments and the presidents of six local civic organizations, as follows:

Rotary—Dan E. DePutron.
Kiwanis—E. C. Folsom.
Lions—L. E. Gunderson.
Cosmopolitan—Dr. O. H. Arnold.
Optimist—E. W. Fogg.

WILLIAM CASEY

"Bill" (that's much to be preferred to William), Casey is the Lincoln club's new guardian of the keystone cushion, superseding Carl Swanson, who probably will be returned to the Mississippi Valley league. Casey hails from the Southwestern loop, where he performed last season with the Enid, Okla., club.

Since joining the Links in St. Joseph a few days ago, "Bill" has been doing things with his bat, smacking three hits in one game and clouting four in another. In one of the games at Joetown, Casey whacked two balls over the left field fence which barely went foul and then came through with a ringing two-sacker. That sort of swatting ought to make "Bill" Casey a prime favorite with the home fans when the Links come next week to open the season at Landis Field.

LINCOLN BOWS TO TECH ON CINDERS

Tomson, Local Sprinter, High Point With Three Firsts to Credit.

Omaha Tech emerged from the clouds of dust ahead of Lincoln high school in the dual track meet held Saturday at the Lincoln oval. The final score stood: Tech, 69; Lincoln, 53. The Omaha cinder men took a lead early in the meet and held it steadily throughout.

With Tomson in the leading role, the Red and Black speedsters were only four points in the rear when the pole vault began. When Mynster, who shows promise of shattering the state record in this event, and his teammate, Glant, took first and second in the sky-scraping act, the hopes of the Gautsch men were ended. To insure a safe lead, the Tech tracksters captured the half-mile relay.

With a strong wind at his back, Tomson, Red and Black speedster, was credited with 10 seconds flat in the century sprint. The Lincoln youth was several yards ahead of his rivals at the finish.

Tech Runners Win Mile.

In the mile grind, Etherton of Lincoln led the field until the last lap, when Martison and Wadlick of the Tech aggregation nosed him out. The time of 4 minutes, 55 seconds, was exceptionally good, considering that the athletes had to pull against the stiff wind on the back stretch.

True ran a pretty race in the quarter-mile dash to give first place to the capital city trackmen. Wadlick's placing second in the race, after he had come from last place to second in the last hundred yards, was the feature of the event.

Tomson, the Locke of Lincoln high school, lost the lead in the 220-yard lows when he missed his step and hit one of the barriers. After recovering his step, he managed to finish third in the race

Wind Hard To Buck.

By staging a strong finish, Berggren of the Omaha trackstars, beat out True, Lincoln, in the half-mile event. Again the hard pull against the gusts of wind was too much for very fast time.

Lewis, Techman, who holds the state record in the high jump, was content merely to win the event. He cleared the bar at 5 feet, 6 inches, enough to take the event, with little difficulty. The best

Hastings Noses Ahead of Doane In Track Duel

HASTINGS, Neb., April 24.—With Hastings winning all places in the broad jump, final event of the day, Hastings college defeated Doane college in a dual meet here today, 68 1-2 to 67 1-2.

New state conference records were made by "Boo" Whittaker when he pole vaulted 12 meet 2 inches and by Thurlo McCrady when he hurled the javelin 176 feet 1 1-2 inches.

Hodges Does Keen Job of Scalping Oklahoma Braves

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 24—Denver made it two straight today by winning, 7 to 4, from Oklahoma City while Hodges had the Indians popping out when solid smashes were needed, the Grizzlies made all of their five hits and three errors by Oklahoma City count in the scoring. The score:

LINKS AHEAD IN EXTRA INNINGS

Dutch Zwilling's Outfit Wrests Victory From Izzies in Tenth Frame, 9-8; Pillette Goes Full Route.

WICHITA, Kas., April 24.—Dutch Zwilling's Links won a swatfest from the Izzies here today, 9 to 8, in ten innings. Pillette went the entire route for Lincoln and bested three Wichita pitchers, Hovlik, Zrubeck and Campbell. He was hit hard at times, but with better support might have won with greater ease.

Haley Scores Winning Run.

Aided by a home run, a single and an error, the Izzies tied the score in the seventh and then went ahead. That made it a ball game again as the Links had led by a good margin in the early frames.

The Links tied it up again in the eighth on singles by Billette and Blenkiron.

In the tenth, Haley, hitting hero of the series, started with a single and was bunted to second base by Gottleber. Wales got an infield hit, sending Haley to third. Then Wales started down and Berly threw the ball wild trying to get him at second. Haley crossing with the winning run.

Pillette was in danger in the ninth, when the Izzies loaded the bases with a single, an error and a walk, but Mitchell grounderd for the third out.

Izzies Threatened.

In the tenth the Izzies threatened to tie it again, as Pat Haley led off with a free ticket when he was hit by Pillette. Alligton groundered out for the second out, but Berly was walked. Brickell ended the game on a roller to Mills.

The Links got off to a lead in the first inning, when Blenkiron singled and Mills doubled. After Gunther had walked, Haley doubled, scoring two. Hawley started the fourth with a homer. Gottleber doubled and scored on Pillette's homer.

Doubles by Bass and Gunther brought in another run in the fifth. A walk to Gottleber and singles by Blenkiron and Mills made one more in the sixth. Wichita's big frame was the seventh, when singles by Compton, James, Mitchell and Allington's double coined four.

Dutch Zwilling was banished from the park in the ninth after an argument with Umpire Doak and Bloodgood played out the game. The score:

CALLAWAY TEAM VICTOR IN MEET

Finished Three Points Ahead Of Kearney In Seven Valleys Fest.

CALLAWAY, Neb., April 24. — Callaway high school won the annual Seven Valleys track and field meet, held here Friday, defeating athletes from seven other high schools. In the senior division of the meet the team scores were as follows: Callaway, 42; Kearney, 39; Ansley, 31 1-2; North Platte, 31; Broken Bow, 30; Gothenburg, 25; Arnold, 6; Cozad, 4.

Mars of Callaway was high individual point winner with firsts in the shot put and discus and fourth in the 100-yard dash.

Callaway won the half-mile relay from the fast field, with Kearney second and Broken Bow third.

A large crowd attended in spite of unfavorable weather, which also affected the performances of the athletes to some extent.

Ruth Facing Big Test of Career as Diamond Hero

Bambino Must Deliver This Year or Take His Place as Fallen Star; New Ball Lacks Life of Recent Seasons and Crop of Home Run Drives Is Likely to Be Reduced.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Certain of our major league athletes are already raising a howl that the 1926 baseball is "dead." When asked how lively he regarded the ball, Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, said:

"I cannot tell, of course, but it seems to me that the ball is not behaving as lively as it did. Being an old infielder myself, I look at the way the ball travels down to second and short and it seems to me that the ball does not volley with such a grass-cutting zip this year as it did.

"Most of my observation has been in the practice games and either the boys were not getting the punch into their swing or the ball was a slower one."

Ruth In Fine Condition.

When asked about Ruth's form and his home run possibilities for the season as concerned with the so-called "dead" ball, Huggins replied:

"I think Ruth will have a great year. He may not get as many home runs as in former days, but I do think he will get more hits than ever. He is not breaking his back going after homers, but he is meeting the ball and, more important than all else, he appears to be in finer condition than he has been in some years. All this seems mighty encouraging."

Wahoo Sam Out of Luck.

The ball of last year, the so-called lively ball, had a carry of at least fifty feet more than did the ball in the days of Sam Crawford. Crawford was a fly ball specialist. He very seldom drove the pill through the infield. Whereas Wagner, Lajoie and Anson sent the sphere skimming through the inner garden, Crawford skied it to the wide open spaces. Those who would compare Ruth's performances with Crawford, now can have an idea of where these two men ranked by watching Ruth perform with a slower ball than he has had to contend with during his premier years.

Robbed of Many Homers.

Statistics and the observation of old timers combine to show that with the olden-time dead ball, Delehanty, Crawford and other sluggers of the dark ages were robbed of many homers.

If Ruth is in good condition, and all advices claim that he is, he should be able to postpone his retirement by a few more years. But this time is the last chance for the Babe, say those on the inside. He has got to show that he means business this time. His worries will be concerned less with the quality of the baseball now being used than with the quality of the man Babe Ruth. That is the thing that will tell whether Ruth is to continue in the public eye or to slip.

And, make no mistake about it, the public is fickle. It will pamper a hero and hail him as great until he slips. The fans don't want losers. They must have winners.

It should be a better year for the Yankees this year, regardless of Ruth, and Huggins confidently predicts that his club will get going strong, once the frigid spring has abated. Meanwhile, the boys feel as though they are one of those Arctic expeditions that are trying to find the North pole.

Oarsmen of Navy Far Out In Front

BALTIMORE, Md., April 24.—(U. P.)—The powerful Navy crew today swept to an easy victory over Massachusetts Tech over the Henley course.

With a near perfect symmetry of stroke, the midshipment took an early lead in the mile and five-sixteenths event and were never pushed by the New Englanders. The finish found the Navy out in front by seven and a half lengths.

ARY BOS

Nominating: ARY BOS.

Because his name's really Ary and not an English slant on Harry.

Because he has joined the list of European stars who have come to this country in recent months and preceeded to show their ability.

Because he has already annexed the junior national 18.2 balk line billiard title by defeating a large group of internationally known stars.

Because his victory follows that of Eric Hagenlacher of Germany over the American, Jake Schaefer. This followed by a few weeks the triumph of Edward Horemans of Belgium over Schaefer.

Because Bos has helped prove to Americans that their supremacy in the various branches of sport is seriously threatened.

Because he warned American players in 1922, when playing in the international amateur tourney in Philadelphia that he would some day seek greater honors on the green table.

And has made good his threat.

GOSSIPS BUSY AS WEATHER WARMS

Racing Fans Perking Up As Season Approaches On Running Tracks.

Pompey Has Strong Following; Rated as Winner Of The Kentucky Derby.

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

Racing talk is getting warmer with the approach of the Preakness, which will run May 10 at Pimlico. There are sixty-six three-year-olds in the nominations. It is of interest to note that thirty-eight racing outfits are presented in this list.

The outloko for this year is rosier than it has been for some time. Already the field-glass boys are speculating with mind and with money, as to the outcome of the Kentucky Derby. When Derby talk gets rife, you know that the pony season is high.

Pompey Derby Favorite.

Among the gentlemen with bankrolls and clocks, the performances of Pompey, son of Sun Briar-Cleopatria, are being checked up. He is beginning his practice spins at Belmont Park. Already he has gone the eight furlongs in 1:51 2-5. He made that time in his very first trip to the workout pole, and we are told that the big bay was held hard all through his sprint. Pompey is again the favorite for the Kentucky classic.

Man O'War's Daughter.

On the same day that Pompey traveled the eight furlongs in such good early season time, War Feathers, daughter of Man O'War, went a half mile in 50 seconds. War Feathers did this for the Hamilton Farm's stable. There is said to be something individual and breezy about War Feathers, which is not unusual with the daughter of such a famous sire.

The other day I had the pleasure of looking at some motion pictures of ten colts by Man O'War. These graceful colts, some of them yearlings, made a lasting impression on all who had the privilege of seeing the film.

Blue Blood in Their Veins.

They stepped about with a lot of blue-blooded pride and frisked with spirit that predicts a great future for these offspring. The family resemblance to the noted Man O'War is more than usually pronounced—the same lofty perch of the head, the same aristocratic poise—and now their owners are hoping that these young animals will develop some of the same speed that made the daddy so noted in turf annals.

It is said that Man O'War is one of the kindliest of horses. I was told one time by a trainer of this horse:

A Born Gentleman.

"He's a born gentleman. Nothing shoddy nor cheap nor vicious about him. High strung, without being temperamental in the opera singer class, this horse is a thoroughbred in every sense of the word, whether you apply it to him as a horse or as a gentleman."

There have been many great horses that were not "perfect" gentlemen. For instance there was Domino, an extremely sensitive animal, who developed a hatred for Fred Taral, his jockey. Time after time this horse had to be watched from doing his rider a mortal injury, and although Domino was kind to trainers, he seemed to have a hatred that knew no bounds, insofar as Taral was concerned. In the running of the Futurity at the Sheepshead Bay track in 1893, Taral applied with whip.

Taral's Life In Danger.

In a match race between Domino and Richard Crocker's thoroughbred, Dobbins, Domino tried to bite and kick his jockey, falling on his back to try to get Taral. From then on, until the end of Domino's racing career, he had to be hooded and held by stable hands before Taral could get astride him and at no time was Taral's life safe with the animal.

But Man O'War never had to put up with the "hard riding" methods used in the days when the whip was applied to gentle horses as well as to natural sulkers.

Duncan Raps Five Homers.

Apparently there is no slow ball in the American association. Pat Duncan of the Millers has rolled up five home runs to date. His mates also are thriving, with Smith, Fisher and Tierney credited with two each.

Will the St Louis Cardinals swing themselves into oblivion or to a pennant? In the first seven games Rogers Hornsby and his mates fanned 43 times.

Few Sluggers In Majors.

The first week's averages will show a raft of .400 hitters in the American association, but comparatively few in the majors, which is the belief in the eastern loop.

Jack Smith has landed with the Boston Braves after having served with the St. Louis Cardinals for ten years. He started his baseball career with the Regina team of the Western Canada league in 1913.

Babe Pulls Comeback.

That Babe Ruth is on his way. His five hits, including his first homer, and five runs against the Senators' hurlers Tuesday would indicate that he has "reformed." would indicate some difference in the kind of ball used.

'GRID' OFFICIALS IN VALLEY GAMES

Men In Charge of Conference Contests Nominated By Special Committee.

The Missouri Valley conference—the "Big Ten" of this trans-Mississippi region—voted at its winter meeting in St. Louis to abandon the custom of permitting the coaches to name the officials for conference football games. The rule adopted at St. Louis provided for the appointment of a special committee of conference athletic directors, which latter body was given authority to select the officials for Valley gridiron contests. Herbert D. Gish, acting director at the University of Nebraska, was made a member of the special committee, which assembled in Kansas City recently and drafted a list of officials for all Valley games. The roster of officials selected follows:

Dempsey Sticks To Talk of Fight

HENDERSONVILLE. N. C., April 24.—(U. P.)—Jack Dempsey, world heavyweight champion, may begin training Monday, he intimated today, following a cursory examination of his quarters here.

The champion's plans are rather indefinite, he admitted. Whether he will remain in training here until his fight with an opponent to be named by Tex Rickard in September, is largely dependent upon the first few weeks' workout. he said.

"Chicago" May Breeze In At Kentucky Derby.

Here is "Chicago" by "Granite" and "Synthetic," a horse that is likely to be one of the favorites in the Kentucky Derb, May 15. "Chicago" won six races last season as a two-year-old, taking purses worth $20,000.

MANAGERS SLOW IN POSTING COIN

Outlook For Organization Of City Amateur League Not Encouraging.

Outlook for the successful organization of a six-club baseball league by local amateurs was not encouraging Saturday night, at which time only two managers had posted the required entrance forfeit of $25 with Secretary-Treasurer Williams. Unless the full complement of six teams has complied with the entrance requirements by Monday noon, President Howard Barrett of the local amateur association probably will call off the special meeting, scheduled for Monday night, and no attempt will be made to operate a City league this season.

Manager Ike Leath of the Modern Woodmer 969 team announced Saturday that his club would not enter the proposed loop. On Sunday dates that the Lincoln Western league club is booked to play at home, the Leath aggregation will schedule few if any games in order that the players may see the Links in action. Other Sunday dates, however, will find the Woodmen carded to play out of town. The Woodmen are scheduled to play Sunday, May 2, at Dorchester. Managers of Nebraska teams wishing to date the Woodmen are requested to communicate with Manager Leath at 823 North Sixteenth street, telephone L5041.

Manager Lee R. Sipe of the Varsity Cleaners, one of Lincoln's most potent amateur teams, is in the market for games out of town. Managers may reach Manager Sipe at The Star office or telephone F4851.

Link Pitchers Coming Home.

Jim Keenan and Joe Marty, two of Dutch Zwilling's sore arm pitchers are on the way to Lincoln, having been placed on the hospital list and ordered home. Keenan, a veteran southpaw, has been lugging a lame salary wing since the first day of the spring training campaign in Oklahoma, where the weather was so freaky that he could not get into condition. Joe Marty, young right-hander, has been in the same plight, Marty was late in reporting from his winter home in California.

Clay Carson, southpaw pitcher with the Links last season and sold recently to the Oklahoma City Indians, arrived in Lincoln Saturday from the Pacific coast and will report to Manager Luderus when the Redskins show up in Lincoln Tuesday to tackle the Links in the lid-lifting game at Landis Field. Carson, who reverted to the Vernon club last fall, worked out this spring with the San Francisco Missions.

Phillies Use 20 Ball Players In Drubbing Braves

BOSTON, April 24.—The Philadelphia National leaguers beat Boston here today, 8 to 7, but it took twenty men to do it. Five of them were pitchers. Boston started with a four-run lead in the first inning, whereupon Philadelphia began throwing in a succession of runners and pinch hitters, at the same time, pulling out pitchers. The winning run was in that was driven over in the eighth. The score:

Champion Fights Battle With Dread Lung Malady

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

Followers of sport will be glad to learn that Bob Cannefax, picturesque and lovable three-cushion billiard wizard, is getting better in his fight against tuberculosis. Bob has been in the great southwest, slowly and gamely making his bid against the disease.

Recent advices from Bob indicate that he hopes to beat an untimely breakdown in another few months. There have been few men so well-liked and so worthy of the name of champion as Bob Cannefax. He is only thirty-five years old and, with comparative youth and gameness on his side, he will pull through.

GREAT NEWS!

DO YOU LIKE REAL BEER -the kind they brew in Germany?

Old Heidelberg

is made after the formula of a famous German brew—which was procured at great expense.

It is first made into full strength old time beer and then the alcohol in excess of Government regulations is removed without changing the flavor. Contrary to public opinion, it is not the alcohol which imparts the characteristic flavor to beer that has always made it so popular. Science has proved that the esters, so called, developed during fermentation really are what makes a glass of beer so tasty and fine.

Old Heidelberg can be accurately advertised as tasting absolutely real, because it is genuine in every way—with only the alcohol content reduced. "Old timers" will link this Blatz achievement with the very best old time beer. After years of extremely costly experimentation we have just perfected the exclusive process which makes it possible to give you as fine a brew as you ever tasted.

Don't compare Old Heidelberg with other products. It is as good as we claim. Drink a bottle and see. Treat yourself—your family, and friends.

Do We Or Only Our Tongues Speak

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

Watching recently a child trying to say words after its mother, I recalled the statement of modern psychologists that "the response to any sound is a tendency on the part of the vocal apparatus to reproduce it"

This certainly cuts short what some persons regard as a very puzzling mystery, viz., the astonishing capacity of our organs of speech to imitate almost, it seems, of their own free will, the sounds that the secret is not in the mind, but in the physical organism

Let someone use a new word in your hearing; how quickly, and with how little conscious effort, you are able to speak it yourself, even when it contains unfamiliar sounds. It certainly appears to be as the psychologists say—the vocal organs in your throat and mouth respond to the sound by striving of themselves to reproduce it, very much as a piano or a violin string will respond to the note impressed upon it by the vibrations of a similar string belonging to another instrument.

Perhaps herein lies the explanation of the extraordinary tendency of crowds to take up instantly a cry that thrills them. The impulse acts immediately upon the speech organs, through vibratory stimulus, and men and women catch up and repeat the sounds or words they hear, sometimes to their great surprise when they think it over afterward. It is a common and veritable saying by those who have experienced this curious effect of crowd psychology, that they "were carried away," or "carried out of themselves" There was no choice of action, no deliberation, and no preparation. Their shouting was a sudden expression of feeling only, and a feeling that they did not invite or select.

There is no denying that these facts may be used, as indeed, they often are used, to sustain the materialistic view of human life Some do not hesitate to say: "Mind is the sum total of our responses to environment."

This has been more specifically stated by Professor R. C. Givler, as follows: "We think or feel ,imagine or repine, doubt or scheme, and perform every mental operation whatsoever only when hundreds of mechanisms for the transformation of energy are thrown into operation. Our sense organs, muscles, glands, together with the communicating nerves, must all be vigorously employed to produce even the least sign of mental activity.

"These transformation of electrical energy into chemical energy into heat—such transformations and these alone are, as far as we know, the meaning of the word mental. Mind is a response to environment: it is not an entity hidden within the skull; it is rather the name for all the activities, except growth and metabolism, of which the organism is capable."

This seems like saying that instead of the mind developing language,it is language that has developed the mind. It has all the look of real materialism, but Professor Givler says no.

"Materialism," he explains, "identifies matter and mind completely, while mechanistic psychology simply calls the mind activity. The difference between the two conceptions is profound. Materialism denies the existence of mind, while mechanistic psychology merely seeks to explain it by the most obvious and convenient means which ten centuries of patient investigation have placed at our disposal."

But if "mechanistic psychology" has kindly permitted mind to continue to exist merely as an unexplained supposition it seems to have deprived it of even ghostly independence by affirming that "mental activity is a combination of physical, chemical and electrical energies, developed by the nerves, muscles and glands of the human organism."

Nothing appears to be left for mind to do. There must be something overlooked in the psychomechanistic definition.

Paddock Sprints In Record Time

CLAREMONT, Cal., April 24.—(U. P.)—Charley Paddock, prominent sprinter, again equaled the official world's record of 9.6 seconds for the 100-yard dash here toay.

It was the ninth time in five years that the "human flash" has negotiated the century in world record time.

Paock was representing the Los Angeles Athletic club in a meet with Southern California conference colleges.

HUSSEY LOOKS AT HEELS OF RIVALS

Champion Sprinter Finishes Fourth In Century At Penn U. Relays.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24—(I. N. S.)—In a flurry of flying shanks, the annual relay carnival of the University of Pennsylvania passed into history this afternoon with only a new carnival record in the half-mile college relay championship and the defeat of Frank Hussey, national champion, by three men in the 100-yard dash to mark it as worthy of future consideration.

Yale got the only major record of the day when it stepped down to the tape to win the half-mile relay title in 1:27 4-5.

G. B. Hester, Michigan, got the honor of defeating Hussey, but he had to share it with a pair of rank outsiders, Daniel D'Aluto, West Virginia, and Don Charles, collegiate, who finished a respective second and third.

Georgetown Wins Mile.

In repeating it s1925 victory in the one-mile college relay championship, Georgetown obliged with a rather superior 3:19 4-5 for the distance, some three seconds away from the world's record.

Columbia's winning time of 7:53 3-5 in the two-mile relay championship also was good without being extraordinary.

The four-mile relay produced a thrilling finish between Penn State and Boston college in the more or less mediocre time of 18:34 1-5 Penn State won the race. Stewart outlasting McLoughlin in the stretch to win by two yards.

Richerson Individual Star.

Doss Richerson, Missouri, won the shot put at 46 feet 2 1-2 inches and placed second in the discus, thus becoming one of the individual stars.

The pole vault went to Paul Harrington of Notre Dame on the toss of a coin with H. R Bradley of Princeton, both clearing 12 feet 6 inches

Another western winner was Anton Burg of Chicago, who cleared 6 feet 3 inches in the high jump J. Lyden, Maine, made the excellent toss of 195 feet 7 1-2 inches in the javelin to beat Bob Kruczo, Wisconsin.

Sturdy's Homer Breaks Up Game; Burch Rods Lose

TULSA, Okla., April 24—Guy Sturdy the left-handed Texan, clipped one of Walter Walker's fork-arm twisters in the twelfth inning with Pete Casey on board and the Oilers beat the Omaha Burch Rods, 7 to 5, today and evened the series It was Sturdy's sixth circuit blow of the season The Oilers set the pace up until the ninth inning, when the Burch Rods sent Blaeholder to the showers with the bases loaded and none out after the tying run had been scored. Edgar Barnhart was sent to the hilltop and the Rods were retired without further damage The score:

Sees Styles As Tyranny of Men

Mrs. Alma White, American bishop of the "Church of the Pillar Fire," who now is in London, is telling Englishwomen that men are responsible for present day abbreviated styles and that women should revolt against them.

THE LINCOLN STAR Classified Advertising

The Lincoln Star is a member of The Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country, and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Lincoln Star as well as every other member of the Association endeavors to print only truthful Want Ads and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standard of honesty.

Ads ordered for seven times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Special rates for yearly advertising upon request.

Changing the Definition of "Lost"

We say it means "Not advertised for in the Star's Lost and Found Column."

And—judging from the results that these little Classified Ads are getting every day—it looks as though we were right!

It's not hard to account for the success of the Star's Lost and Found Classification. It's based on the simple facts that nearly every finder is honest and that his first move will be to look through these ads to find out who lost the article he has just found.

The real proof of this is in the trying—next time you lose something of value, call B1234 and ask for an ad-taker.

IN BEAUTIFUL LINCOLN
FAR FIELDS LOOK GREENER

Perhaps your neighbor's "field of life" seems just a bit greener than your own—his home radiates a sense of satisfaction and contentment from which you seem far removed. His children are happier—his wife is proud—he enjoys his work, and returning home.

Why is this? Isn't your position as good as his—your wife just as capable, and don't both of you love your children just as much as they do? Yes, to be sure—but HE OWNS HIS HOME.
His field is really greener, but it is not far removed. Your Realtor will gladly show you how to turn the dry field of a rented house into the joys and comforts of home ownership.

What Is The Value Of Unsolicited Advice?

People who give the most advice are generally the ones who are not in a position to know, and who therefore should not advise.

You probably have heard that "it is cheaper to rent than to buy" or "that it doesn't pay to own your home." Where does such advice come from? In practically every case it is from the one who has never owned a home, and knows nothing about it.

Seek the proper source for advice—talk to someone who knows more about the subject than you do yourself.
Ask your Realtor, your home expert. He will give you facts. (Ask the home-owner—he knows.)
Ask yourself this question: "If it were not cheaper to own than to rent, why should someone own the home I live in?"

For HOME BUILDERS and HOME OWNERS

THE ROOF ABOVE YOU!

Are its rafters spun from dreams, or are they solid timber that you actually own? Will your children be born and reared amid well-loved and familiar surroundings, or will various roofs shelter them as you move from house to house?

The man who owns his home creates another circle of life, adds another unit to the structure of the nation; he becomes a substantial citizen and an active force in the community in which he dwells. The man who owns his own home is satisfying a deep human desire—one so strong that it ranks as an instinct, and by satisfying this desire he is enlarging himself and adding happiness to the world.

If you want something to hold to, hold your home. Sacrifice for it, scrimp for it, put money into a Building and Loan Association for it. Then build it or buy it!

Roomy, Small House in a Beautiful Setting

Seven Rooms Well Arranged

The white portland cement stucco on this surprisingly roomy bungalow harmonizes charmingly with its background of green foliage.

The idea of wooded surroundings is enhanced by the clinging vines which are permitted to climb the columns forming the front porch. The location of this home, on a sloping corner in Lancaster, Pa., permits landscaping that is indeed attractive

Eighteen windows in seven rooms permit plenty of daylight. Many of these have the half-circle tops and iron grilles, so typical of Spanish design. Two of the windows off the dining room are contained in a short wing, the gabled top of which breaks the roof lines pleasingly.

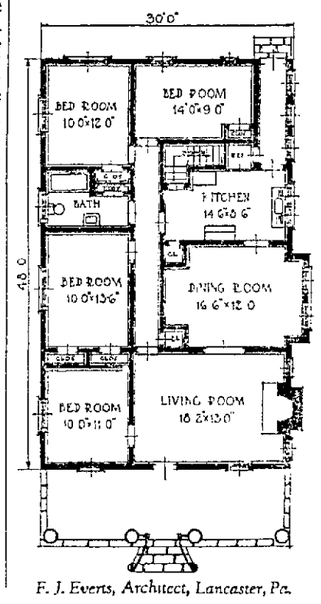

In the interior, the entire left side of the home is occupied by four bedrooms, two of which have cross ventilation. The living room, just off the front entrance, contains a large fireplace and has a double entrance to the dining room. The kitchen is ideally situated, adjacent to the dining room, and convenient to the rear entrance.

The use of permanent construction materials in this house cost very little more than would less durable construction and effectively reduced repair nad maintenance expense for years to come.

Concrete masonry was used in foundation and above grade walls. (Either hollow block or concrete structural tile may be used.) Such construction forms hollow spaces in the wall which provides insulation to resist outside temperature changes. Thus, the house is warm in winter and cool in summer.

The rough masonry units furnish an ideal backing for the stucco. These two—walls and stucco—are of almost identical materials and adhesion is perfect.

Such construction, topped with a roof of bright colored tile, makes this home at once firesafe, permanent and beautiful—a source of pride for the owner.

F. J. Everts, Architect, Lancaster, Pa.

Frank Gore Visits Sister in Lincoln After Three Years Helping Modern Rulers of Ancient Persia Balance Budget

FRANK H. GORE, DIRECTOR OF THE ACCOUNTING ADMINISTRATION WITH THE AMERICAN FINANCE MISSION

GATE IN THE WALL SURROUNDING HIS HOME.

HAMMIE HIMSELF.

MR. GORE IN HIS CALLING COSTUME

A PERSIAN RUG DEALER

HOSSAIN ALI KHAN, MR. GORE'S INTERPRETER

BY LULU MAE COE.

Persia, they tell us in those thick volumes they sell us has a history that goes back to mythical days before man learned to keep a record of his life.

Six centuries before Christ walked among men, its known history begins. For twenty-five centuries it has had its conflicts and its peace, its cruel rulers and its just, its triumphs and defeats.

It has progressed and retrogressed under the yoke of the conquetor. It has prospered, and suffered under its antiquarianism. It has rejoiced, and wept when plague and famine swept the land.

It has come from its savagery through barbarism to a modest civilization, from a primitive outlook, from rude living to a partial belief and acceptance of twentieth century offerings, judgments, and thought.

A history not unlike that of other countries, war and peace, plenty and destitution.

As we have taken our lands from the Indians, have erected buildings on the sites of tepees, have turned into stiff paved roads the wandering trails of the Red men, and have learned to run our motor cars across the old paths of the travois, so has that Persia, one-fifth the size of the United States, been finding its slow way from careless, momentary living to surface modernity.

More than a dozen times as old as our country, with its people striving for some goal, perhaps no more enshrouded than our own, it has never acquired a personal relationship to us. It has not even had the customary intriguing fascination of the far Orient.

Helped Persia Govern Self.

Persia, with the waves of the Caspian sea sliding over its shores a country that was old when Columbus set out to find his route to India has never become a part of our consciousness. Japan, China, India, Turkey are distant, but often in our thoughts. Different in language, race thought, ideals, they have somehow found their place in our minds; perhaps through their broader, continental life.

Persia, isolated from our little routine lives, hidden, mysterious, its people less considered than the Martians, less thought of, possibly in this scientific age. There seems to be no link between the veiled country lying on the Arabian sea and the country resting between the Atlantic and the Pacific.

Going about quietly here in Lincoln, watching a capitol rear itself toward the heavens, voting, paving a street, buying a bond, that Persia seems so far away. A story book country only, where a genie might pop out of a bottle and a Cyrus the Great was a man, a conqueror and not a name.

This week, however, it has become a little more real, a normal sort of place, a country that Mr. Ford has found profitable, where men are groping toward enlightment, even as we grope for things civic, a country where are budgets, and purchasing agents, stenographers and auditors.

Frank H. Gore, who is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Charles A. Sherman, at 823 South Twenty-seventh, has made it closer to Lincoln, that country in reality so distant over land and sea.

He's been there the last three years, a vital part of its administrative government. He's an American, a Nebraskan, raised right out here in Seward county, but a Teheran resident since 1922. Somehow Persia seems a more neighborly sort of place now.

Good Laws But Poor Executives.

September 3, 1922, Mr. Gore sailed from New York with the American Finance mission in the capacity of director of audits and accounts for the Persian government. The twelve members of the mission had five-year contracts, terminable by either the Persian government or the individual at the end of three years. Mr.Gore epressed his option, and returned to this country a couple of months ago. He has interesting letters from Dr. A. C. Millspaugh, administrator-general of the finances of Persia, and the Persian minister of finance, attesting to his ability and expressing their regret at his resignation.

For a number of years, Persia has felt the need of foreign advisors in its finances. It has excellent financial laws, based on those of France and Belgium, but it is weak in their administration. Having a friendly feeling for the United States, it asked the government to send a mission to administer its finances. A similar mission in 1911 failed in less than a year, owing to intrigues of foreign governments.

Dr. Millspaugh of Augusta, Mich., who is in charge of the mission, was an economic advisor in the state department. C. J. McCaskey of California, assistant manager of a bank in South America at the time he joined the mission, is treasurer-general and director of the mint and of the bank. D. W. McCormick, a captain in the army at the time of his appointment, is director of internal revenue. T. C. Mitchell, until three years ago administrator-general of the finances in Liberia, is provincial director of finances on special duty as advisor to the public works department.

E. O. Jones, provincial director of finances, is now auditor, having taken Mr. Gore's place. M. A. Hall is provincial director of finances at Meshed. J. A. Dunaway, provincial director of Homadon, J. H. Flannagan, provincial director of Kermanshah, Thomas Pearson, director of personnel, and Dr. E. L. Bogart, as director of the mint and bank remained only a year, when Mr. McCaskey took the work over.

Mr. Gore, as auditor, came from Santo Domingo, where he had been auditor for two years, resigning to accept the new position. During Mr. Millspaugh's absence of four months last summer, Mr. Gore served as administrator-general of finance.

The American mission was, and is, the administrative financial government of Persia. No money was paid out and no obligations were created without its consent. The signature of the minister of finance, Foroughi was required on all checks, but no payment was ever made without approval by the Americans.

According to Mr. Gore, the twelve had broader administrative powers than most administrative officers in any other country.

"The reform of any finance is a slow process," he explained, "but we accomplished many things, although many things remain to be done.

"The Persians are grasping their financial affairs faster than we expected, but they will need finance advisors for years. Lack of education and their inability to enforce their own laws has hampered them.

Mr. Gore simply says that "we reformed the financial system and modernized it, making it suitable for a country of that kind."

But there's a story behind that reformation.

The mission succeeded in balancing the budget not only on paper, but in actuality, so that the expenditures remained within the receipts. Persia's budget has amounted to $25,000,000, but through new legislation enacted shortly before Mr. Gore left, additional revenues approximating $5,000,000 were authorized to be used for roads and railways.

Mr. Gore was entrusted with examining all requisitions for expenditures, amounting to millions of tomans. A toman normally amounts to $1.00. All payments passed over his desk and none was made until altered to meet his approval if change were necessary. In addition, Mr. Gore was in charge of auditing.

Saving the Persian Taxpayer.

Of even greater importance to Persian finance was Mr. Gore's organization of a central purchasing agency, where all supplies for the civil government are purchased. The records of the mission show that supply prices were reduced from 30 to 60 per cent through the bureau. Within a brief period of time, printing alone showed a saving of $50,000.

Before the establishment of this bureau, Persia had had a cash, if not carry, system. Purchasing in small quantities had been the rule—a half dozen pencils at the cash on hand justified only such a quantity.

Mr. Gore sent buyers into the open market, who bought in competition, with consequent low prices. After the bureau was permanently established, all purchases were made by public bids. This plan has already saved the Persian government a substantial sum.

Through Mr. McCormick's department, an alimentation service for food control was established on far broader lines than was American food control during the war. To prevent famine and high food prices, he bought, transported, and sold grain to the bakers in the districts suffering from poor crops.

The mission, except the customs service, officered by Belgians under American control, was assisted by Persians, who really made a remarkable progress in learning modern methods. The Americans worked through interpreters. It wasn't a satisfactory method, but when men were working fourteen and sixteen hours a day to put a country on its financial feet, there was no time to spare for linguistic study.

Mirza Mohammed Ali Khan Foroughi, minister of finance during Mr. Gore's administration, and now prime minister of Persia, is the most able and progressive man there. He speaks English, French, and a number of other languages, is a law graduate and has been a member of the Supreme court.

Five members of the original mission remained to continue their work, and five additional members are to take over the work of those who left. The Persian government has also employed an agricultural expert and is negotiating for a railroad engineer and road engineer.

Falls Before the Ford Invasion.

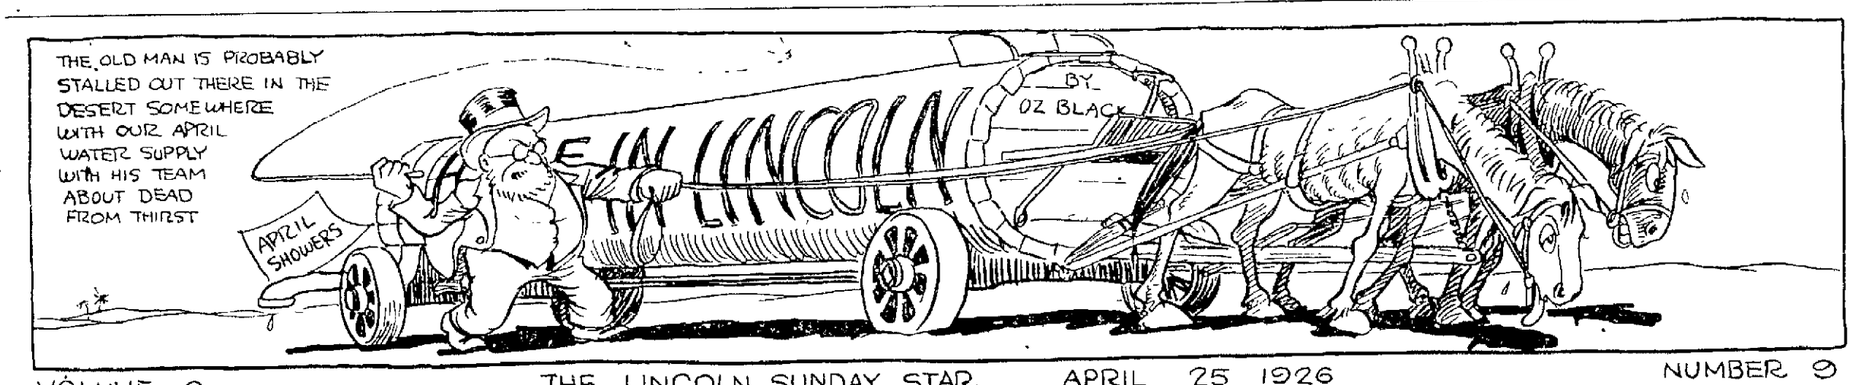

Progress is touching Persia, perhaps lightly, but certainly. To the layman, progress could be expressed in no surer fashion than that today Teheran has about 1200 motor cars where as three or four years ago, it could boast of but ten or a dozen. Seventy-five per cent of the cars are of American make and the remainder of foreign models. Of the 75 per cent, possibly 10 per cent are Fords and the others are rather evenly divided between other domestic makes.

There is no noticeable suffrage movement in Persia. The women remain in their seclusion, content perhaps in the very vital influence they do wield on the masculine members of their households, dreaming and longing inwardly perhaps of the day that they may step out on the street with unveiled faces, may work in the bazaars and offices as other women do.

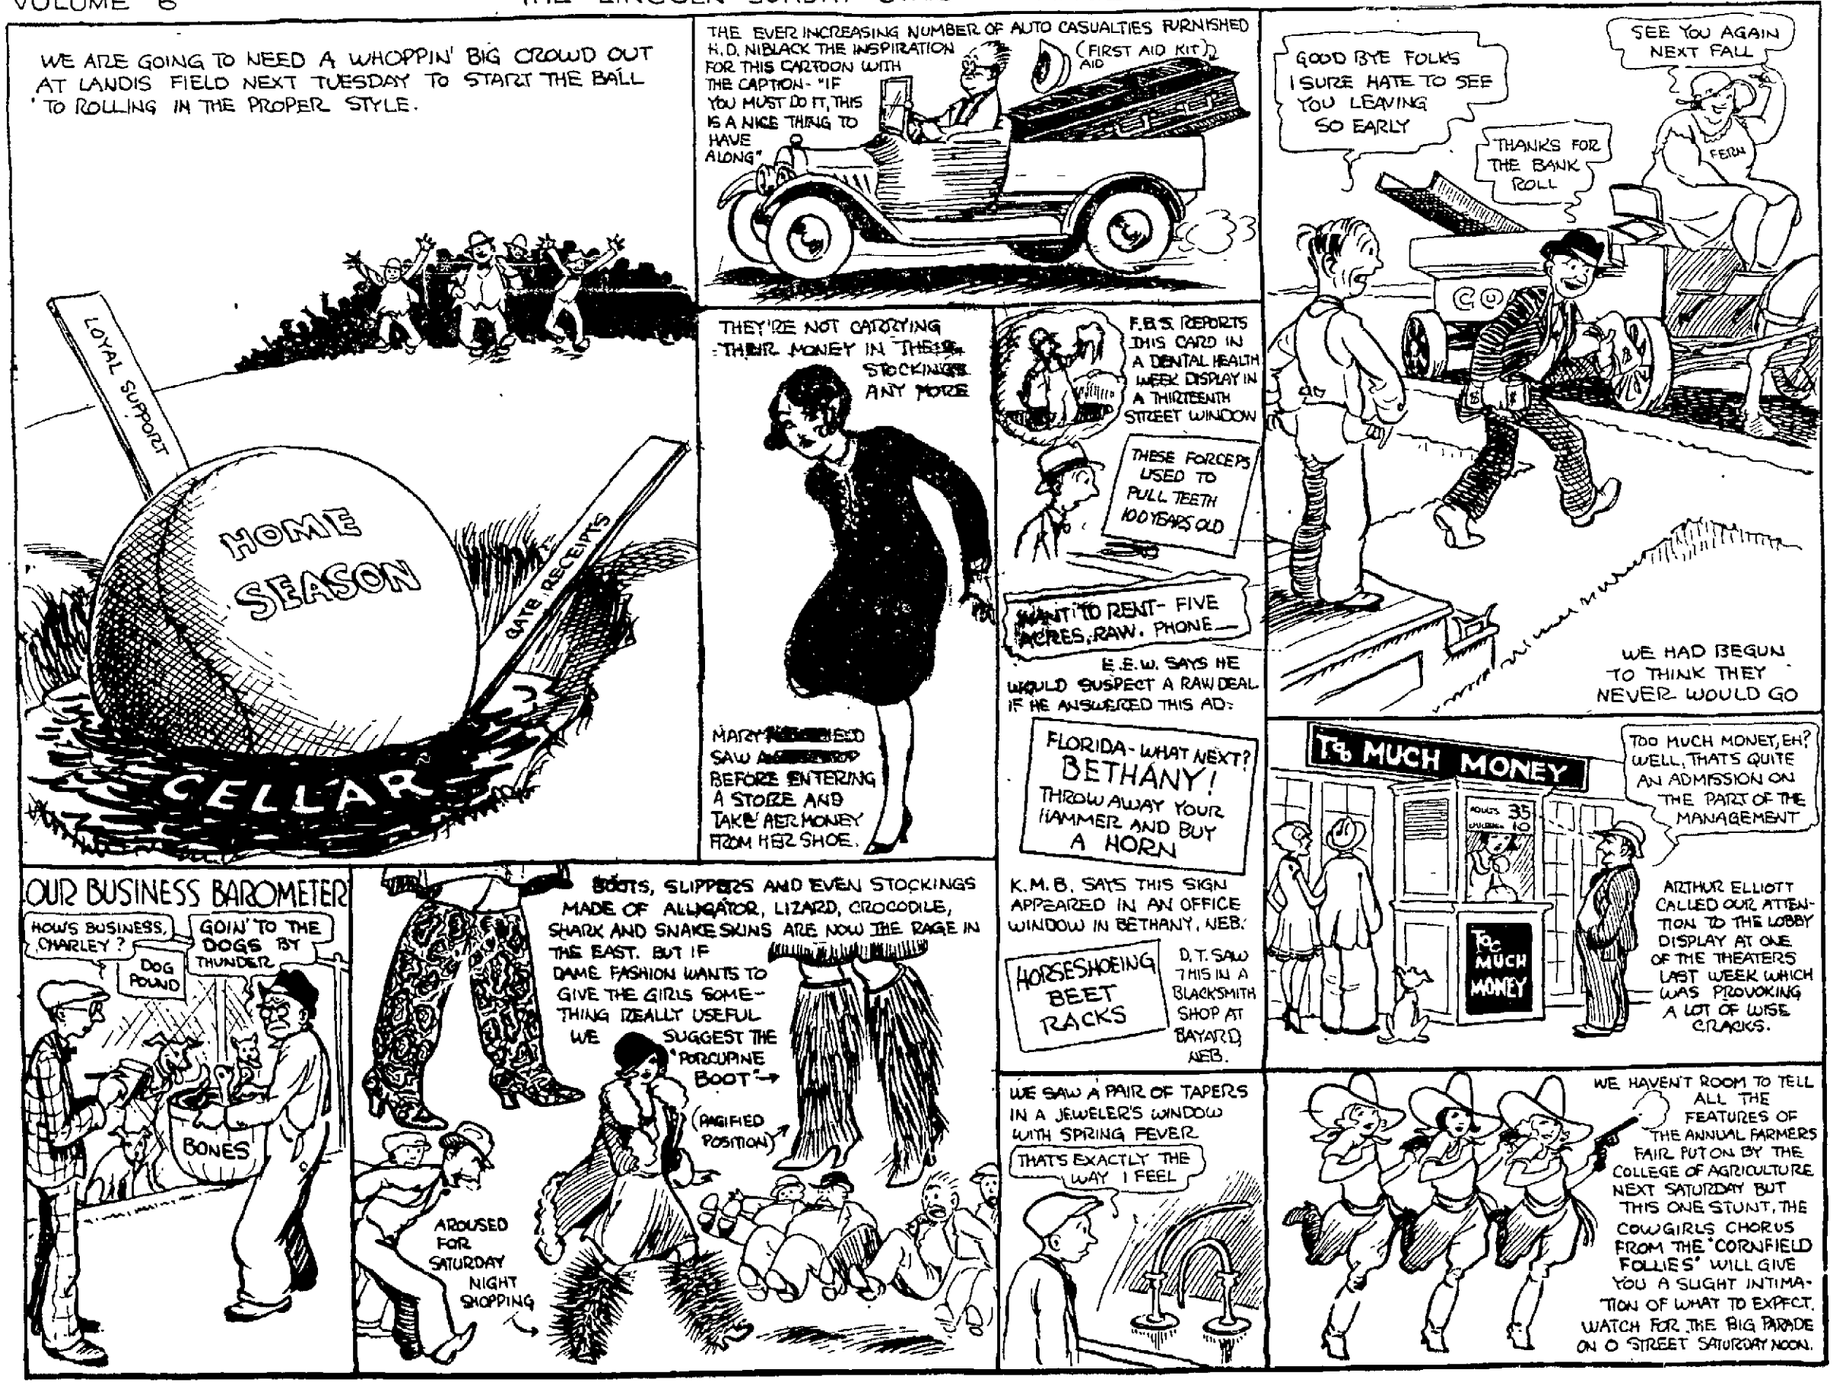

"Women in Persia have as great an influence as they do in America, even though there is no social intercourse between men and women and in spite of the fact that women never seem to take part in affairs."

Lincoln Council No. 4, Royal and Select Masters, held a special communication for the purpose of initiating candidates at the Masonic Temple, 236 South Eleventh street, Wednesday, April 21, beginning at 2.30 p. m. when the royal and select masters degrees were conferred by Illustrious Master Marcus L. Poteet and the regular officers of the council.

At 6:15, a banquet was given in the dining room. About 200 were there. Mr. Poteet introduced W. A. Hawes as toastmaster. Hanson's orchestra played. Addresses were given by Lewis E. Smith, grand recorder of the grand council in Nebraska, Frank D. Eager, W. A. Selleck and Governor McMullen.

The distinguished Masonic visitors were Mr. Smith, of the guard; Lute M. Savage, grand lecturer; M. W. John Wright, grand master of the grand lodge A. F. and A. M. in Nebraska; Rev. Charles M. Shepherd, grand chaplain of the grand lodge, Orville A. Andrews, grand senior deacon of the grand lodge; James C. Robinson, grand patron of the grand chapter of the Eastern Star in Nebraska, and O. E. Mickey, past grand patron of the grand chapter of the Eastern Star.

After the banquet, the company went to the lodge room where the superexcellent degree was conferred in full form under the direction of Past Illustrious Master James Tyler, jr., requiring 96 characters in robes. This was considered one of the finest exemplifications of the work ever seen here, and much credit was given to Mr. Tyler for its success.

Officers of the council are: Marcus L. Poteet, illustrious master; Jacob S. Baer, deputy master; Francis A. Robey, principal conductor of work; Joseph S Blair, treasurer. Fred W. Tyler, recorde; Charles E. Reilly, captain of the guard; Robert McKinney, conductor of council; John T. Martin, steward; Delmar Stover, Ahashur; James Tyler, jr., sentinel.

Nebraska Business Men See Benefits of Prohibition, Says Survey of W. C. T. U.

A survey by the Nebraska W. C. T. U. of opinions held by prominent men in this state concerning modification of the Volstead law has just been made, and is as follows:

R. E. Harrington, president of the Lincoln Real Estate board says.

"I will not attempt to speak for the board, but in giving you my personal opinion, I am sure it voices the sentiment not only of the board but of a large per cent of the business men of the state. After six years, we are impressed with the success of prohibition, reflected as it is in the building of more new homes than ever before in any six years, better conditions of housing and the different manner in which children and their parents are dressed. Family life is better and the fallacy we cherished that we must have the saloon to run our schools has been entirely exploded. The old buildings that were once the home of saloons and storage plants are now occupied by legitimate business concerns. I do not believe that Nebraska will ever consider the modification in any degree of this law, because we are too well satisfied with the effect in the six years o fits trial."

A. J. Weaver of Falls City, chairman of the recent constitutional convention and a prominent fruit grower, says: "I am opposed to any repeal or modification of the Volstead act, as I would consider it a backward step in the progress of our nation. I am sure public morals and public health has been improved by the enactment of this law and the economic condition is improved because of national saving through the effects of this legislation."

W. E. Bell, superintendent Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph company, states:

"Improved conditions under prohibition are probably no more marked in the telephone field than in any of the other public utilities of the country. So great has been this improvement that it is unthinkable that any one would advocate a return to pre-Volstead conditions."

P. F. Peterson of the Peterson Baking company, Omaha:

"My observation as well as actual experience since prohibition has been in effect has been that our people are much better off than before. They have better homes and they live better. More of our young men and women are attending institutions of learning and it is my judgment and belief that the prohibition law should never be repealed. Business conditions arem uch better than before."

North Believes Times Are Better.

Jacob North of the North Printing company, Lincoln:

"In the old saloon days some men were more or less under the influence of drink and until to work when most needed. That condition does not prevail now. I am in favor of the law as it stands. Can it be enforced? That's a hard question. But one outstanding reason against general drinking is the fact, that as now made, intoxicating liquors are deadly poison, and another thing, the price is too high for the average man to pay. The big fight is with the present generation used to the saloon. With the gradual dying off of this generation and the younger generation maturing it will be easier to control. The expense of enforcement, immense as it is, is worth all it costs."

J. F. Hansen, former president of the Fremont Chamber of Commerce:

"In but few counties can the long and persistent fight against liquor and the beneficent results arrived at be considered with more interest and advantage than in our own county of Dodge. Having lived in this county since 1884, I have seen the entire development of the county, and am familiar with the history of the liquor controversy in its educational and evolutionary effect. The adoption of state and national prohibition became the final beneficent culminatoin of sixty years of anti-liquor growth, and now finds our county law abiding and harmonious. Our elements of foreigners is now among the most active in the churches. Many children of saloon keepers are themselves active church leaders."

C. E. Reynolds, Federal Trust company, Lincoln:

"It has increased our business wonderfully. We are satisfied with the results of prohibition and wish for no modification of the law."

G. E. Carpenter, treasurer Carpenter Paper company, Omaha:

"We feel grateful that prohibition is still a matter of record and is one of the laws of this great country. Give us enforcement of this law and the country will become dearer yet to us all. Our employes, the last six years, are living and working on a higher plane. Prohibition has been a help to them."

Hastings Official Opposes Change.

William Madgett, former mayor of Hastings:

"The enactment of the Eighteenth amendment to the constitution was the greatest step forward taken by the nation since the emancipation proclamation, and is much farther reaching in its good effect. We hear much about the laxity of morals and crime waves due to the excessive use of bootleg liquor. I fear people are overlooking the fact that crime existed during the days of the saloon. Our city of 11,000 boasted of fourteen saloons, a large brewery and a dozen resorts protected by the authorities. When I was elected mayor, my first official act was to send orders by the chief of police to the proprietors of these resorts to close their places of business. To the best of my knowledge this evil has never again been protected by our city. During the last year of the saloons in Hastings, the police records show they handled over 3,000 drunks. The next year, under prohibition, I anxiously watched the records and found they handled fifty. No doubt, many people who advocate the return of light wine and beer overlooked the fact that these beverages must be dispensed through such places as the pool hall or the old time saloon. Should the day ever come when the repeal of the eighteenth amendment seems imminent, I believe every law abiding citizen and that means 80 per cent of our population—will be aroused to the awful consequences and every candidate who undertakes to sponsor such a movement will be 'sunk without a trace.'"

M. D. Cameron, president Peters National bank, Omaha:

"I feel just as strongly in favor of the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law as I did when I helped put the amendment in the constitution. If I were to be put on the witness stand, I could not name a single instance in which my business had been damaged or curtailed on account of prohibition. On the other hand, I have no doubt that it comparisons could be made, we would find our business was on a more satisfactory basis on account of prohibition. I am partisan in my belief that the laws of the land should be enforced all along the line and I would not curtail, in any degree the efforts now being put forth for the enforcement of the amendment. The recent newspaper referendum, relating to prohibition, is of course, misleading. Friends of the law generally refrained from voting. I trust the government and those in charge of enacting laws will hold a steady hand. In so doing they are serving the interests of a majority of the people and building for a better land for generations to come."

Law Gets Praise in Lincoln.

Dr. E. W. Rowe, Lincoln:

"I believe the benefits which people have received from prohibition have been immeasureable. There is less of crime and sickness, less of poverty, less of insanity and all the diseases which come from poverty, crime and degeneration."

Dr. Miles J. Breuer, Lincoln:

"Prohibition is a success and ninety-nine hundreths of our citizens are satisfied with it and proud of it. Most of the noise against it originates with the rantankerous one hundreth part of our people who can't forget the taste of it. Our country and city is cleaner, keener and stronger without the rotten stuff."

E. B. Sawyer, Cushman Motor Works, Lincoln:

"Effects of prohibition have been beneficial. We feel we need no modification of the law."

W. E. Reed, Omaha:

"My opinion is based on observation of conditions as they obtain in and around the stock yards and have a bearing upon business and an effect upon school children. I was at one time president of the Social Settlement association, whose activities are confined almost wholly to the yards and packing house districts, and have been in close touch with the homes of this area, and I know that since Nebraska went dry these homes have benefited in many ways. The children are better clothed and the homes are better furnished. For nine years I was a member of the board of education, a greater part of the time serving as its chairman and there was a noticeable improvement in the physical condition of the children as soon as prohibition was made effective. It is my opinion that business conditions would have been exceedingly bad after the closing of the World war, had it not been for the Volstead act.

Thinks Better Enforcement Possible

"While we had been going through an orgy of spending, much of it has been along constructive lines, hich could not be said of expenditures back in the days before prohibition became a law. I realize conditions at the present time are not ideal, but the fault is due more, in my opinion, to the lack of enforcement of the present law. I do not believe absolute prohibition is possible for a while, but I am sure a much better enforcement could have been had were our officers as honest and as active as they should have been."

J. Dean Ringer, former city commissioner of Omaha:

"For many years I have been a close observer of the problems involved in the liquor issue, and I do not hesitate to say, that in my opinion prohibition has been a great benefit to the people in every way. Since 1906, I have lived in South Omaha and have been familiar with its conditions before and since it merged with the city of Omaha. Until 1917, I conducted a law office in that great industrial district. Conditions in this district, since prohibition became effective, are so far in advance of those prior thereto, that the difference is more clearly expressed by contrast rather then by comparison. The working classes are better housed, better clad, better fed and financed and enjoying the luxuries of life where formerly the families of laborers waited for the pay check which found its way to the saloon till.

"From 1906 to 1908, during which time I was city prosecutor of South Omaha, I had an opportunity to get a close up view of conditions there. I found our biggest industries were handicapped with losses resulting from accidents due to drink, and that the labor problem was extremely difficult Monday due to the carqusals of Saturday night and Sunday. During this time I found it difficult to obtain convictions, even though I had the strongest proof.

Nearly 100 Per Cent Convictions.

Today, the county attorney's office is securing convictions in 90 to 95 per cent of the liquor cases tried to a jury. As compared to convictions of 8 or 10 per cent of those tried for murder, according to the district attorney's office, it would appear that the law can be enforced and is not breaking down. Since the adoption of prohibition there has been a wonderful advance in the number of savings bank accounts opened, to say nothing of the tremendous increase in these savings accounts. Furthermore, the laborers now enjoy the luxuries of life, where before there was suffering and want. In pre-prohibition days, in the same district, there was far more bootlegging than at the present time. Back doors of saloons required by law to close at midnight were open until the wee small hours. When the law changed and required saloons to close at 8 o'clock, many of them conducted a back door business until after midnight. It is not surprising that when saloons were closed entirely, some of this class of business continued selling liquor contrary to law. However, the closing of the saloon has brought about a greatly elevated moral condition, and while not perfect, it is so far beyond the pre-prohibition days that the contrast is noticeable.

"Omaha, as a whole has always been wet, but even under these conditions, it is surprising how well the prohibition law can be enforced. For instance, under the administration of Elmer E. Thomas, federal prohibition enforcement officer for Nebraska, at the July term of United States court in Omaha, 534 defendants came before the court for trial. Of this number 531 either pleaded guilty or were convicted. One was found not guilty by the jury; one was dismissed by the court, and one case resulted in a disagreement. With such a record in a community that has been consistently wet, it is easy to understand that the balance of the state is strongly in favor of prohibition, that the laws are being well enforced in the state at large, and in my opinion the state will not vote a return of the saloon either under the guise of light wine and beer or any other appellation."

RADIO DIGEST

For the Notebook.

Switches on a set sholu always be kept clean.

Do not tune a set by guessing; plan some kind of system.

A large "B" battery may last three or six months or even a year.

The plate voltage is too high when a soft bluish glow appears in a tube.

A "C" battery reduces the drain on "B" batteries in any set using audio frequency amplification.

The life of a "B" battery depends on the number of hours used, the number of tubes used and the way the grid return is connected.

All police stations in Cincinnati, O., are to be equipped with instruments for measuring the density of smoke abatement measure.

RADIO DIGEST

Testing the Battery.

When a battery is fully charged the hydrometer will show a reading of 1,280 to 1,300—that is, the "float" will sink only a small amount into the electrolyte which has been drawn up into the tube. A battery which is run down will show 1,150 or less. Under no consideration should a battery be allowed to get below 1,200, which represents about a 40 per cent charged condition.

Radiograms.

The Radio-Paris post of the Compaigne Francaise de Radiophonie is giving a course in the English language by radio.

More than 50 short -wave stations are operating throughout the world on wave lenths of from 13.5 meters to 50 meters.

Besides being broadcasting stations, the large transmitting studios must be information bureaus. All sorts of unrelated queries come in from all parts of the country.

The government of the Dutch East Indies has authorized the erection of a large radio broadcasting station and the private use of receiving sets under license.

Wireless telephone equipment is to be installed on 36 express trains in Germany, where telephone subscribers throughout the country will be able to get into prompt communication with relatives and friends traveling on any one of the trains.

Radio Digest

Insulating Wires.

Spaghetti or other insulation is not necessary for wires that are rigid and well separated fro other metal parts of the set. The rule is to use insulation when in doubt, but wiring with insulated conductor throughout is unnecessary.

The Straight Line Condenser.

The effect produced by the use of the straight line frequency condenser is that all stations are found equally along the dial. This accomplished by designing the shape of the condenser plates according to a formula involving a series of hyperbolic spirals.

Burnt Tubes Useful.

Use burnt-out tubes as a battery connector. Break the glass, solder leads from the battery to the wires inside the brass shell and fill the shell with sealing wax. Now connect the battery leads from the wiring of a set to a socket arranged conveniently on the back of the cabinet. It is a simple matter then to "plug in."

A Suggestion.

The failure of tubes to light may be brought about by a defective "A" battery or a defective "A" battery connection. It may also be due to a faulty battery switch that fails to make proper contact. A rheostat that does not make a proper contact will cause the same effect. Any loose connection in the "A" battery circuit of the set may cause the failure of the tubes to light. If this condition exists only in one or two tubes, it may be due to a burnt-out filament. A dirty contact on the tube will sometimes cause the failure of the tube to light. If the contact springs of the socket do not make a good contact to the tube pins, this condition may also occur If dry cells are used, check to see that the individual cells are connected in the circuit with the proper polarity.

Noises From Tubes.

Tubes sometimes produce noise which may be a howl, a squeal, sounds like atmospherics or a put-put-put, and again it may be a steady hum. Howling is usually the radio frequency tubes at fault, but this is due to making them oscillate and is corrected by turning down on the rheostat or the potentiometer if one is in the set. Sounds similar to atmospherics are usually caused by a poor connection in the plate circuit and in the majority of cases it is a poor contact between the socket and tube. Bend up the plate contact of the socket so it will make a firm contact with the prong of the tube. When a set emits a sound that is termed put-put-put it is most always due to the detector tube blocking. This means resistance of the grid leak is too high and a low value should be used. A steady hum is most always due to a poor grid leak connection and if the hum is continuous the grid circuit is more than likely open. The prongs of tubes very often become dirty and it is a good plan to clean them with fine sandpaper and as the same time brighten up the socket contacts.

household in Persia. Hammie, an otter hound, a most intelligent dog, belonged to Major Robert W. Imbrie, vice-consul for the United States at Teheran, who was murdered by a fanatical mob. After his death, Hammie would wait at the top of the stairs and cry piteously for Major Imbrie. Finally, Mrs. Imbrie gave Hammie to Mr and Mrs. Gore.

Mr. and Mrs. Gore left Teheran October 6, and were four months in returning to this country. Schola Cantorum Will Sing Sunday For Atwater Kent

The famous Schola Cantorum of New York will present the Atwater Kent radio program, Sunday, April 25, broadcasting from Station WEAF and fourteen other connected stations, at 9.15 p. m., eastern time.

This choral society now numbers 200 trained voices. It was founded in 1909 by Kurt Schindler, composer and former assistant director of the Metropolitan Opera. At that time it consisted of forty women's voices.

The original organization sang so successfully with the Philharmonic Orchestra that it was enlarged and male voices added in 1910, when in addition to singing with various orchestras it gave its first subscription concerts. Since then it has played a prominent part in the musical life of New York.

The program follows:

Church Music:
Glory to the Trinity, from the Liturgy—Rachmaninoff
O quam gloriosum, old—Victoria.
Jesu dulcis memoria, Spanish.
O vos omnes, Motets
For Women's Voices:
Song from Shakespeare's, "Twelfth Night—Brahms
The Gardner—Brahms.
Wedding Song from the opera "Sadko"—Rimsky-Korsakoff
Lyric Pastorals
To Lovely Groves Bergerette—Tessler.
Love Me Truly Sheperdess, Bergorette—Lefevre.
"Mon ami est monte', French-Swiss—Doret.
Hungarian Rhapsody for Chorus—D'Antalffy
English and American Songs:
In these Delightful Groves—Purcell.

BETTER HOMES WEEK

In Co-Operation with the National Better Homes Week—April 26 to May 1—the merchants who have united in the presentation of this page, are offering many timely suggestions for the improvement of our dwellings.

DECORATING THE HOME OF TODAY.

In this age, so completely equipped with everything ready to use, we are, I believe, inclined to stop thinking for ourselves (and that is almost fatal to the house beautiful and liveable).

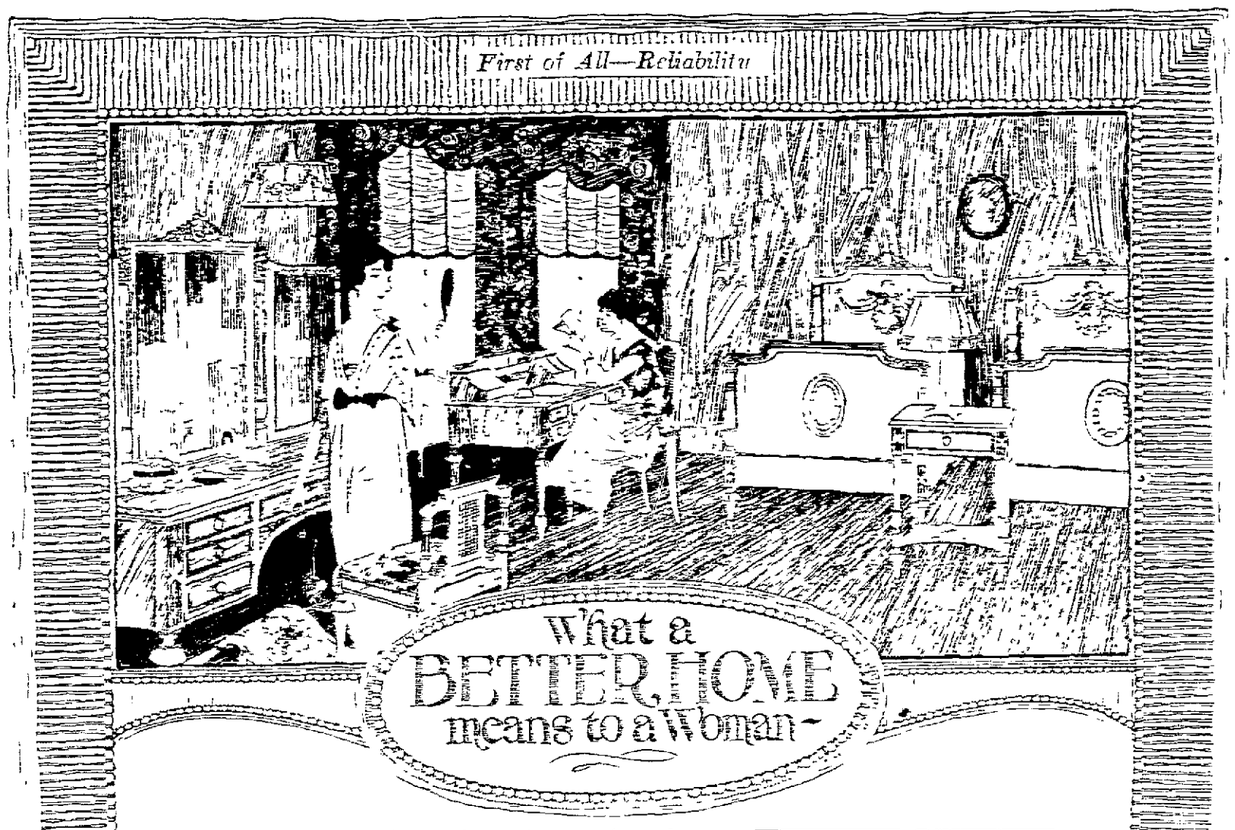

Because of that lack of individual thought we drift along with the tide and furnish our homes with what is so commonly called "the latest thing." Let me state that using the latest thing is simply not decorating.

On the other hand, costly furnishings will not alone make a house beautiful even if each piece in itself is a work of art. It might, however, make of it a museum.

No, the house you live in must be yours, simply and truthfully yours. With careful thought in selecting and arranging your furnishings in compliance with your needs and social standing you will achieve a home beautiful, liveable and loveable.

With the knowledge of a few underlying principles you will be able to solve your decorating proolems wisely.

"The basis of all good decoration is plan—well-selected and adhered to."

A home wherein there is the real pleasure of living: the love of the beautiful, the enjoyment of genuine comfort—the spirit of contentment and the attachment that binds the family circle firmly together—HOME! Oh, who does not find inspiration in such a home as that?

The secret of a well furnished home rests not so much in the amount spent, but in the judgment used in choosing what goes in it.

The average woman or man furnishes a home perhaps only once or twice in a life time. And yet it is an undertaking that requires long experience and practical knowledge of many things if results are to be satisfactory.

It is the mission of the Perkins-Huffman Co. to offer you the services of trained home-furnishing experts who know furniture, styles, color harmonies, and other essentials in every detail and to offer these services freely in return for your patronage, that you may avoid costly and disappointing mistakes.

Let us assist you in your home-furnishing problems.

Credit Terms

The wealth of the whole country has been vastly augmented by the installment buying of homes, furnishings, endowment insurance, cars, and even money saving institutions and the government bond campaigns relied upon installment payments.

Were it not for the sound financial plan of installment payments millions of Americans today would not have savings accounts in the banks, or own their own homes, there would be few automobiles on the streets, few educational encyclopedias in the homes, there would be few really comfortably furnished homes and little cultured refinement of music.

Installment buying has raised us all to better living conditions and better citizenship.

Convenient Credit Terms here make possible the buying of good furniture and fine rugs and draperies. How much better to pay such merchandise on monthly payments, than to pay cash for inferior short-lived qualities!

THE PUBLIC'S BUSINESS.

Apparently the adverse criticism, which was so stirred up recently in connection with statements attributed to two American representatives abroad, is still troubling Secretary of State Kellogg.

Mr. Kellogg's appearance before the American newspaper men attending the annual luncheon of the Associated Press in New York last Tuesday, provided him with a splendid opportunity to present a plea in defense of the policy of secrecy which has characterized so many of the governmental activities in recent months. He reminded his auditors that many of the negotiations carried on by the state department necessitate a certain measure of exclusion of the public until understandings have been reached which will insure success. In many instances, Mr. Kellogg said, success is jeopardized because popular sentiment is inflamed through ill-considered and unfair interpretation of the program.

So far, so good.

The secretary of state is upon solid ground when he suggests newspapers are intentionally or unintentionally committing a grave wrong by premature publication or discussion of pending arrangements with foreign countries. In this nation such action is unnecessary for the protection of its citizens since every treaty and convention entered into by its representatives shall be submitted to and receive the approval of the senate by a two-thirds vote. It has been the history of American diplomacy that no treaty or convention has been confirmed by the United States senate which did not have an overwhelming popular sentiment back of it. Moreover this hammer which has been held over the treaty-making authorities has been a most potent check against abuse of power. It is surprising how few treaties sent to the senate have been rejected, indicating a most scrupulous regard for popular sentiment.

The criticism, first directed at President Coolidge, and then at Secretary Kellogg, was not inspired by withholding of material but was due to the inability of correspondents to secure statements bearing upon public questions, in which they could place confidence.

It was Mr. Coolidge who originated the practice of a "White House spokesman." It has proved a very effective ruse for dodging and escaping responsibility for unpopular public utterances. The "White House spokesman" is an unknown, mysterious figure. Generally he speaks with approval of the president when public response to his words is favorable. When the "White House spokesman" makes the mistake of arousing the opposition of the voters, he is quick to feel the displeasure of Mr. Coolidge. He is rejected and the views which he gave voice to are repudiated.

Now that is not a manly or courageous method of handling public affairs. A president or any other public official should be willing to stand back of the opinions, which he expresses, even if given informal expression at a meeting with newspaper men. The practice which has been adopted at the White House in the contact with the press is not worthy of Mr. Coolidge and not characteristic of him. Ordinarily he has been direct, frank, and courageous. His plan of giving publicity to his views on public questions, through the medium of a White House spokesman reflects none of these attributes.

It should be a settled policy of government to give the fullest expression to its plans and its aims. Years ago we accepted the political philosophy that government derived its strength from the governed. That is, government takes permanent form only when it enjoys the confidence and trust of those who compose its citizenship.

On the other hand, fear and suspicion result from secrecy.

The greatest mistake which Woodrow Wilson made during his administration was his failure to take the American people, and more particularly the United States senate, into his confidence with reference to the plans and results of the Versailles conference. Had Mr. Wilson shown a little more generous attitude toward the United States senate, it might have been more favorably disposed toward the covenant which he brought back. If Mr. Wilson had taken the American people more fully into his confidence, no political alignment in the United States senate could have perfected the organization to defeat ratification of the league pact.

It would be difficult to take issue with Mr. Kellogg so far as he went, but he did not touch upon the one matter which has irritated and annoyed the newspaper men more than all of the others that have arisen. There has been a disposition to practice secrecy in the handling of public business at Washington—many times unnecessarily so—and invariably defeating the very purposes for which it was established. If Mr. Kellogg has been observant of the trend of events in this country, he cannot be unaware of that fact.

WASTEFUL ORGANIZATION.

Beckles Wilson in the New York Times furnishes a very excellent explanation of the economic condition in France in a current article dealing with labor.

Part of her trouble may be traced to the fact that two, three, and even four men are engaged in performing the work which one should do. There is a notorious "over-staffing" of practically every line of business and industry. Double and treble the number of people required to carry on work in Great Britain and America perform the same task in France and do it no more expeditiously or efficiently. France might have been able to bear up under the waste and extravagence seen in the conduct of public affairs had private industry and business been properly organized. But when the same inherent weakness is found in the privately-owned factories, jobbing houses, retail establishments, and financial institutions, it was only a question of time before the waste would become oppressive.

Recently 20,000 bank clerks in the larger cities of France walked out on a strike. The banking houses affected had been carrying such an over supply of labor they simply reorganized their employes and affairs went forward as smoothly as if nothing had happened. France will of necessity have to reorganize her entire industrial machine if she is to take her place in world commerce and recover from the shock of the war.

Her experience is not without application in this country. There has been a tendency on the part of labor to want three or four men to perform the same task which one used to handle. Industry cannot pay high wages, reduce hours and employ surplus help at the same time. If such an attempt is made, it will be but a question of time before industry in this country will be confronted with the conditions worrying France.

American industry has been able to pay higher wages than European countries because it has been more effectively organized and the American workman has been able and willing to turn out more than his cousin across the water.

TO HALT THE CRIMINAL.

Public opinion is slowly adapting itself to the conclusion its idealistic attitude toward the criminal gangs in America has been a sad mistake. Particularly in the eastern states, where the great cities have been suffering from the operations of criminal gangs, there is a strong demand for a temporary suspension of the parole and pardon law. More drastic measures of punishment seem assured.

The New York legislature has before it at this time a bill which will suspend the parole law for two years. This period, it is believed, will afford a sufficient time to determine whether there is any relationship between the present methods of handling criminals and the rapid and alarming increase in crime. The Empire state legislators believe there has been entirely too much coddling of vicious and depraved elements, given over to lawless ways of existence. In Pennsylvania a similar condition prevails. Massachusetts is likewise concerned.

It would be a most salutory measure of progress in the crime problem if concerted action by the various states with reference to free and easy paroles could be secured. Nebraska, New York, or any other commonwealth, may repeal its parole law or temporarily suspend its operation but the largest measure of benefits from its action will not be attainable until neighboring states follow in their footsteps. The most desperate type of criminals move from one state to another, particularly if out on parole. This tendency to flit from one great city to another makes concealment of identity comparatively simple. It is impossible to trace the hardened criminals who know full well how to take advantage of every opportunity which a sympathetic and indulgent public confers upon them.

Their parole in too many cases is conditioned upon behavior in the penitentiary. It is this knowledge that their freedom depends upon being good which so often defeats any real reformation. Too often the prisoners has his mind too much upon the matter of getting out of prison instead of sober contemplation of the weaknesses which led him into trouble and preparation for good citizenship.

The parole law should go.

The parole system should be abandoned.

Society may owe something to the unfortunate man who gets into trouble but its responsibility to the men and women who endeavor to lead honest and industrious lives is infinitely greater. We have been showing too grave a concern for the welfare and future of law-breakers and have given too little consideration to the great mass of citizenship which respects and reverse law.

NEBRASKA'S FRUIT OUTLOOK.

A survey of the fruit situation in southeastern Nebraska shows that the apple and grape crops this year will probably be the largest in the history of the state. It appears that fall apples may have been injured slightly by early freezes last autumn, but such loss as may have been sustained on this account is more than overcome by the increase in acreage.

Commercial orcharding is coming into vogue in Nebraska more rapidly than any other rural activity unless it be dairying and is adding millions of dollars to the income of the state every year. It is being carried on by men who thoroughly understand the business, not as an avocation or a sideline, but as a real industry. On this account it is meeting with such success as to astonish and bewilder the old timers who are inclined to the belief that this was not a fruit country.

The hills of the southeastern counties of the state are now covered with orchards or vinyards, the expansion in grape culture in recent years having run a close race with that of the apple. The demand for grapes, which it was thought would be curtailed by the outlawing of wine, has on the contrary grown by leaps and bounds and notwithstand the increased acreage in all grape growing sections, it has been found impossible to supply it.

There is reason to fear that peaches and apricots will not prove profitable in this section of the country, although the former were at one time raised rather extensively in some sections. They appear to be too easily winter killed, however, and those who were formerly engaged in their culture are now turning to apples.

The latter is the real king of Nebraska fruits and there is reason to believe that its reign will continue indefinitely. Nebraska apples have no superior anywhere in the world, either as to flavor or texture and growers have no difficulty in profitably marketing them. Train loads of them will leave the state next fall and in return will come millions of dollars, beside much good will and nation-wide advertising of inestimable value.

The people of Nebraska are just beginning to realize what a wonderful state they are privileged to inhabit.

FOR THE STUDY OF MAN.

One of the most important of the many philanthropies of John D. Rockefeller, jr., is the proposed gift of $10,000,000 to found a great museum in Egypt. In it shall be preserved the record of man from the earliest stages of his existence.

In spite of the great progress which has been made in this direction, there is at this time no laboratory in existence where a scientific study of the origin of man can be made. The excavations which have been made in recent years in the Valley of the kings, and in other parts of Asia, with the amazing and tremendously interesting discoveries, have not added to the knowledge concerning early man to the extent which they would had there been a central point for collection and study. Many of the priceless relics of antiquity have been scattered and lost to science, others preserved but under conditions not the most favorable for study. The sum total has been to lose much of the real value of the excavations. Because there has been no laboratory for this work very little is known of early man. What he ate, what he thought—how he lived—these are very largely unanswerable questions.

The Rockefeller gift is significant in another way. Mr. Rockefeller has been a devoted churchman for years. It has absorbed his attention to a larger degree than that of any other extremely rich man in America. His gift, it would be interpreted, would very definitely array him as a supporter of the modern school of religious thought. All of the facts which are being brought out through these excavations and studies lend support to the position taken by the modernists. It would appear that Mr. Rockefeller is not greatly disturbed by the possible effect upon the church of research into the records of early man, although it contradicts certain portions of the Scriptures.

The contributions which he has made to medical science, to welfare work, to religious undertakings have given him the right to be recognized as America's most philanthropic citizen.

Rogers Sees Coffeyville and Lorimer

BY WILL ROGERS.

Robbing is one profession that certainly has advanced.

All I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I encounter as I leap from crag to crag. Everybody will start reading the papers, now the baseball season has opened. I played Philadelphia the night before the season opened and was to to Princeton the next night, and as it's near, I was able to be at the baseball opening in Philadelphia, the Fillies and the Braves. Now, I know a lot of you will think I overlook a comedy crack if I don't say something about not really seeing a big league game yet. But there is where you are wrong. Both teams looked mighty good. Any team that has Bancroft on it is a ball team, and the Fillies got some great material in that trade with the Giants last year.

They had all the opening day ceremonies. All you need to open a baseball season nowdays is a band and a mayor, and most any town has both of them. Sometimes it's hard to tell which is the worst.

In some cities they meet at the plate and march to center field where the flag pole is, and raise last year's pennant. Well, Filly and Boston are original. They didn't do that. They met and marched out there and instead of raising a pennant they just stuck to the regulation stuff and raised the American flag. I don't care how low down a team gets in baseball, that is one thing that is never denied them. They are always allowed the same use of the flag as the good teams are. That's one thing that makes baseball as democratic as it is.

Well, the band led the parade to center field. It was led by a little fat guy that everybody thought was John McGraw. The players of both teams come next, all out of step. Somebody must have told them out there that they were all out of step and that they should lead off going back with the other foot, and as they come back they did all change and that made 'em just as much out of step as they had been going out. They had three umpires. One to correct the other two.

But the game I would have given a wad of gum to have seen that day was the one my old friend Walter Johnson pitched, when he beat the Athletics 1 to 0 in 15 innings. Twenty years in the big league and hold 'em runless for 15 innings! Well, I sure was tickled. And I know somewhere else they were tickled. That was in a nice, prosperous-looking brick house, just out towards the river from Coffeyville, Kan. I was right in that very house about four weeks ago when I played in Coffeyville. They certainly were nice to me, and everybody asked me what I wanted to do and where I wanted to go. I said, "I wanted to go see Walter Johnson's mother if she is here," and out John Ellis took me, and say what a treat! Honest, she is just Walter. Looks like him and acts just like him. What a fine pleasant old lady! There, right in the middle of the living room was the biggest loving cup in or out of captivity. It's the one that Washington fans filled full of money and gave him one time.

That's been the most wonderful part of this trip I am on. I have met the greatest lot of folks that I would never in the world have had a chance to meet otherwise. Now Coffeyville, that's just 40 miles from where I was born and have a ranch now. It used to be when I was growing up to about 10 or 12 years old, our trading place. We drove there in a buggy or wagon to do our trading. I met the old timers who knew my folks. The old hotel is there yet where we used to stop. It was run then by Kloehrs.

Saw and had a long talk with John Kloehr, the man that shot the Daltons. He showed me a wonderful medal that the Chicago bankers gave him with a big diamond in the center. And I want to tell you he don't show that to everybody. He is a very quiet, retiring fellow. He gave me the whole tale of the shooting. He is and always has been a very highly respected citizen of a great community. I saw the grave where they were buried all together, with just a piece of iron piping marking the spot. She is a real live, buzzing western city now. Harry Sinclair, the big oil millionaire, used to live there, and he has built a tremendous refinery that employs lots of people. They gave me a luncheon that was upstairs in one of the dining rooms, and right in the middle of the luncheon they brought in a real live bull. It's a great place. Fine people, and I can imagine the rejoicing there when "old Barney" set the Philadelphias down without a smell of the home plate.

Oh, yes, to show you how robberies have changed since the day of the Daltons. There had been a robbery three days before and the robbers had taken away the whole safe. And the man had advertised if they would bring the safe back there would be no questions asked. I asked John Kloehr why he didn't shoot some of the robbers nowadays. He said, "Lord, Will, I couldn't afford to buy enough ammunition!"

Robbing is one profession that certainly has advanced in this country. And the remarkable thing about it is that here no schools or anything to learn you to rob. No other line, outside of drinking, can show the progress that robbing has in the last five years. We spend billions of dollars on education, and we are no smarter today than 30 years ago, and we spend nothing to foster robbing, and here it is one of the most skille industries we have. So it sometimes makes you think what's the use learning people anything anyway. Let 'em alone, and they will progress quicker.

Speaking about what you read in the papers, we see where what the papers are pleased to call "bloody Herrin," the mining town down in Illinois, has broken out again. Now I played that section. There is several candy, nice little hustling towns of from 5,000 to 10,000 each, and we played Frankfort and also went down to Herrin, and we had a lot of their people up to our show, and I never was as surprised in my life. I had just got my impression of them from what I had read, and when I got there and met them they will stack up with any community in the country. There is not a lot of murderers and cut throats there. They are real people, congenial, hospitable. But instead of being like a lot of communities, fuss and argue, call each other names, they just shoot it out if it's necessary. I am mighty glad to have been in there and met them. I know I have a lot different opinion of them than from just reading about "bloody Williamson" county.

Well I have seen America from from top to bottom. I had lunch yesterday at Philadelphia with George Horace Lorimer, Editor of the Saturday Evening Post, and I am going over to Europe for the Post. I am going all around over there. I am really going to represent President Coolidge. You see, he hasn't a Colonel House to run over and fix up things, so that is what I am to be. I want to get away about the middle of May. I want to catch Mussolini while he is going good, and before some better shot gets in his work. I am also to go to Ireland and see what's keeping them so quiet, and if they really are happy, and into Germany and Russia and Spain. I want to see what reason they had for wanting to try to get into the next war by way of the League of Nations.

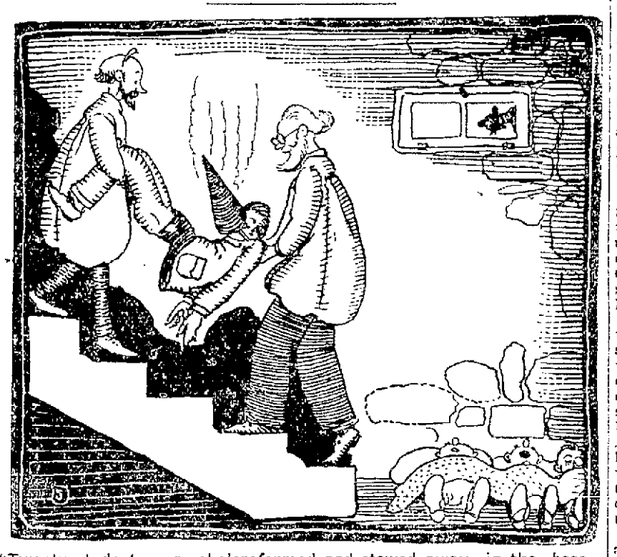

Oh yes, even next week I will have something to tell you about Canada. I am going up there in a couple of days. In the meantime my consolation goes out to Brookhart of Iowa, and McKinley of Illinois. They were both good boys when they had it. I look for quite a good many new member of next year's cast of our "Washington Follies." It's taken some of them three elections to lear that America didn't want to join any of Europe's luncheon clubs.

LO, THE POOR STUDENT

What Are They Doing to Him in the Effort to Test His Fitness to Get Fit For Anything?

"Twenty students were chloroformed and stowed away in the basement for a week."

Word has just come by the press that the University of Chicago—or perhaps it was Columbia, or Cincinnati—will conduct a test by measuring all the heads of the first year students (lengthwise and crosswise) to see what they are fit for. Those who fall below the others will be put out.

This item, having been so widely published, must be true. But even if not, it is typical of the kind of treatment that the unhappy students get in our colleges today.

In earlier days, the business of a student was to study. He was given a little room on the top floor of a boarding-house and a book and a lamp and gallon of coal-oil and was told to "go to it." When he had used up his oil and had finished his book he was brought down and given an examination paper.

Beautifully Simple, Simply Beautiful.

After he had written that, he was given an A. B. degree, and he would at once either open a law office in Kentucky or practice medicine at Bellows Falls, Vermont, or enlist in the United States navy. The whole thing was beautifully simple. The only test of his fitness for a thing was whether he could do it.

But this system, so it seems, is now all being changed. The colleges don't wait now to see whether the student learns anything. They try him out with a test to see whether he is fitted ever to get fit for anything. The exact dispatch about the students at Chicago—or Columbia, or wherever it was—ran as follows:

"Will Test Brain Power of Students."

"C—University—The university has just decided to carry out a comprehensive brain test of its students with a view to expelling them from the university. In order to see what students are to remain, the heads of all students will be submitted to anthropological measurement. Henceforth no undergraduate will be permitted to continue his studies unless his brain proves at least half as large again as that of a higher ape.

"At the same time sight tests will eliminate from college all students who fail to see in the dark at least as well as a cat. All students also will be requested to withdraw whose ears are more than four inches long and who are therefore in danger of hearing too much at lectures.

"The deans of the various faculties are enthusiastic over the new scheme which they claim will rid them at once of seventy per cent of their students. They hope to devise new tests for the other thirty per cent."

I find on further inquiry that this new method is not confined to the universities just mentioned. Nor does it always consist of the same form of tests. Other institutions are making bold experiments in directions entirely different. Thus:

"Yartmouth Institutes Bulk Test.

"Yartmouth college—Following on a decision of the faculty, Yartmouth will abolish altogether the system of written examinations as a test for entering college. Henceforth the college will use nothing but the bulk test, the students being admitted purely according to their bulk and avordupois weight.

Discoveries In Humans

Actress Recognized Paderewski's Genius; Rescued Him From Becoming Mere Teacher

"My dear sir," she said, "you play marvelously."

By Preston Wright.

To this recital came Ignace Jan Paderewski, a 26 year old Pole, who was professor of piano and counterpoint at the Conservatory of Strassburg.

Paderewski had made a devout pilgrimage of his journey to hear the celebrated Rubinstein. He never had had the chance before. His salary was so meager he could scarcely afford the cost of the trip to Dresden, yet his desire was so intense he set out, even though, after purchasing a third-class round trip ticket and a package of Russian cigarettes, he had no money with which to pay for admission to the concert hall.

The cigarettes, of the best quality, were to be a humble gift to the maestro, and as soon as the young professor arrived in Dresden he set out for Rubinstein's hotel to make the presentation.

His connection with the Conservatory of Strassburg gained him entree to the Russian's presence and to him he tendered the cigarettes together with the assurance of his profound and sincere admiration.

Rubinstein listened cordially. He appreciated homage as well as another, but as Paderewski went on his countenance changed.

Asked for Ticket.

"I have come all the way from Strassburg to hear you, Master," the young man was saying, "but upon arriving here I find the price of seats is not within my reach. Could you, as a favor, allow me to stand somewhere just so I might hear you?"

How was Rubinstein to know that this penniless stranger was destined to achievements beside which his own would be insignificant? It seems that, like many other historical personages, he was so immersed in his own greatness he could not see beyond his aura. At twenty-six Paderewski must have had much of that quality which was to mark him as one of the outstanding world personalities of his day. But Rubinstein saw none of this.

Had he granted the trivial favor asked of him and further interested himself in his young admirer he might have had the honor of first recognizing his genius and received the credit for launching Paderewski upon his memorable career.

But as he listened, Rubinstein's face became indifferent.

"I do not attend to such matters," he said coldly. "Ask my manager." And he ended the interview.

Was Refused Admission.

Paderewski was refused admission to the concert and returned to Strassburg heartbroken and humiliated.

Rubinstein had missed a great opportunity. But within a few months a more discerning person had recognized the genius of the young Pole and given impetus to its expression. It is a pleasant circumstance that this person was another Pole, the great actress, Helene Modjeska, well known to American theatergoers of twenty-five years ago through her frequent tours of this country.

At the period of Paderewski's unfortunate meeting with Rubinstein his musical fate hung in the balance.

Born in 1860 in the village of Kurylowka, province of Podolia, Poland, he had grown up under Russian suppression. His mother's father had been banished to Siberia for political activities and she was herself born in that desolate land. Paderewski, at three witnessed the imprisonment of his own father, Jan Paderewski, for insurrectionary efforts. His mother died at this time.

These circumstances made of Paderewski an intense patriot even before he became a musician. As a patriot it is probable he has been even greater than as a pianist.

Tried to Play at Five

At five he voluntarily tried to play upon an organ upon which his father sometimes performed. His aptitude impressed the parent, who soon placed him under the instruction of the only piano teacher in the village.

At thirteen Paderewski's talents seemed to demand larger scope and his father sent him to the Conservatory of Warsaw, where he might also become self-supporting. After four years of study he won the first prize in piano playing and became a teacher, at seventeen, in the institution.

It was in this year that Paderewski attempted a concert tour of some smaller Polish and Russian cities. It was a failure. His hopes of becoming a great recital artist seemingly destroyed, he went to Berlin and over a period of many years studied theory and composition. This brought him his professorship at Strasburg. He seemed doomed to teaching for the rest of his life. His experience with Rubinstein plunged him the deeper into gloom.

Some months later Madame Mod-

TAKE YOUR TROUBLES TO MINERVA

Youngsters Are a Wise Set These Days If They Will Only 'Fess Up, Says Minerva—One Youth Gives Advice To Others Today—Offset The Evil Influences of the Street Through An Attractive Home And Understanding Hearts.

Advice From Young.

Youngsters know a lot these days, if they will only "fess up." They know the end of the petting trail, but the thrill holds them, and if only Minerva would say it is harmless they'd slip down the hill a little faster. And they could "pass the buck" to me.

I knew all that before, but it is the first time one of our young friends has admitted it. Needless to say I am glad of her letter. Girls and boys in their teens will swap experiences and advice when they'd never listen to an older person. Just a few years make you a back number in their estimation, so maybe they'll lend an ear to the good advice listed below:

Dear Minerva: This question, is it wrong to pet, has finally gotten my goat. I couldn't stand by and let my worldly-wise sisters voice their opinions and me keep quiet. I know something about this art. I have had more than one lesson in it and here is my opinion of it summed up in two words, The Bunk.

I have gone out with every kind of fellow. I have been out with the kind that expects a good night kiss and no more. I have been with those who wanted to park in a dark street and pet until the wee small hours. Oh, I hated this species. They were disgusting, and I often wondered if they thought they were desirable young men.

Then there was the type that wouldn't think of kissing a girl until he had gone with her a while, and believe me, Minerva, those were the ones I appreciated. When you went with a boy like that you felt like you had something.

As far as a kiss goes, well of course, it doesn't hurt in itself But what it leads up to is where the kiss does its harm. The way boys and girls are today, if a girl allows a boy to kiss her and put his arms around her, he immediately takes it for granted that the day is his

Of course, a girl may have a good line and may be able to get home unscorched, but nine times out of ten, his line is better and he gets his own way. So I say, keep your kisses and your loving. Someday there will be a man that you love, and if you have allowed every Tom, Dick and Harry in the country to trespass, you will only have second-hand stuff to offer.

A girl connat flirt around and chase around with different crowds of young people and come out on top. It is impossible. "You can't have your pie and eat it too."

I have been through a lot, Minerva, and I realize what life is. It a girl doesn't know the tricks and ways of the world, well, she might as well sign off.

It makes me sick to hear all these pleas for petting. These kids all know what it leads up to and they are just trying to get some satisfaction out of it by getting you to side in with them. Let them go to it, Minerva; they'll learn if they are not too dumb I did.

You are all right, Minerva. I like you because you are so broadminded and understanding. A Certain Party.

Offset The Street.

There is only way I know of offsetting the "street" information children pick up. Make the home so liberal, so interesting and clean that the difference between dirty remarks and disgusting examples can't escape them.

Straight-laced virtue and audible preaching doesn't count. You've got to have understanding and wear shock-absorbing every minute as well as make the home life so attractive that it offsets the street.

That is my answer to this worried mother. What is yours?

Dear Minerva: How would your readers handle a subject like this?

My son has a friend (aged eight years) whose mother has been married and divorced five times since he was born. This boy's mother is a menace to decent society as she cares not whether her "toys" are married or single men. The boy is already spreading a hard outlook on life to other children.

I kept silent a long time, and listened to him telling my boy and other boys of the way his mother deceived his daddy. How she would be out with one, and use another to attract the husband's attention from the first man, etc. Her boy thought these things were clever. When he bragged that he had five daddies in his life, while others only had one or two and boasted that he could beat that "all hollow" when he grew to be a man, I said "No dear, you wouldn't be called a man, if you acted like that. It wouldn't be right. You choose carefully the girl you want, then marry her and stick to her, all your life. Then you will be beating your mother; because nobody around here likes her; nobody respects her. You want to be liked by everyone, don't you?

He evidently heard nothing of what I said. He answered "Well, I won't wait like mother did, so long between divorces. Where I will beat her, I am going to forget the getting married part. Then I can have a new wife as soon as I leave the old one."

What can be done for a child like that? My husband says I shouldn't interfere, but suppose a man like that started keeping company with one of our girls. What then What would you do, Minerva? M. L. X

A. Your intentions were of the best, but it was unkind to tell the poor child that no one likes or respects his mother. His life is hard enough without that. Better try to show him by example how happiness reigns in the home where there has always been but one "daddy." He can see the devotion of kiddies to their own father. All this will register and be worth much more to him than remarks that he'll remember and that will hurt when he is alone. If he is the right sort, his loyalty to his mother will make his boasts louder in the future. And through kindness and exampre you can often do a great deal to counteract in these neighbor children the unfortunate environment in which they are living.

If anyone knows a better plan, let us hear from them, please.

Are They Exceptions?

Dear Minerva: We are two pal sisters in our teens and are constant leaders of your Mail.

Although this is the first time we have written you, we had several times contemplated writing, but somehow couldn't get down to it any sooner. However we will now try to think of everything concerning which we seek advice and also give our opinions on problems discussed in your Mail.

In most of the letters there are some points on which we agree with the writers and others on which we don't. Among those are the letters of "Ardent" and "Roger" and—well we can't think of the others just at present. We do not agree with their opinions on dancing and kissing under certain conditions. We will try to say now in what respect before some little petters or soul-less creatures will be beginning to think we are taking their part—far from it

Although petting parties are not held in this part of the country—at least not to our knowledge, we understand how destructive they must be to the morals of the partakers. We do not think kissing under certain conditions is harmful and do not see why a girl should not allow a boy, whom she likes a great deal, to kiss her occasionally, not constantly. Surely Minerva you do not think that kissing under these conditions is harmful We feel positive that any girl who has been taught high ideals and is old enough ahs sufficient will power to know where to head off at and she will not bring herself to commit what she knows is wrong. The boy we believe feels the same way about it although we think that a boy has less power to control his emotions than a girl and it is hard for him to behave himself when he happens to fall in company with an immoral girl. This does not excuse him however, for he should remember that he is a human being and stick to his high ideals which we hope he has.

Many of your writers also condemn public dance halls and we don't say but what they are right about some in large cities, although since they are so closely supervised they cannot be very harmful after all. We have attended dances at the Antelope pavilion and danced with strangers, but saw no harm in merely dancing with them. The class of people is the better apparently and they are seemingly refined and clean-minded. We don't think it as bad to dance with a stranger who looks and acts a gentleman as to dance with boys who are positively known to be of poor character, just because the girl knows him, and therefore hates to refuse him, or because she wants to appear popular.

We live in the vicinity of small towns and have practically all our lives and although we attend public dances we know about everybody there and have a wide range of dance friends, who we know personally to be decent. Of course there always has to be some trash there that comes from distant towns. These usually act vulgar and drunk, but with these it is unnecessary to mix.

Recreation, plenty of it, but keep your ideals high;
Don't answer to the unclean ways
or to the devil's sigh.
It's not too late to yet reform, if you've failed to do;
Keep clean minds and spotless souls, if falled, may God keep you.

SHORT AND TALL.

A. Your theory is that as long as the fire has not burned you, it is quite all right to play with it.

It is a pretty difficult thing to say "We will go so far, no further," and to limit laxities within a safe circle. The girl who commences giving an occasional kiss will find it easier and easier to kiss, it will become more than an episode in her life. And even though these kisses do not lead to immorality, they lead to vulgarity ,to over-emotionalism. They bring an element into a girl's life which she is much better off without. She becomes cheapened, emboldened, "hard-boiled," in the language of the day.

Nor does the fact that you have never danced with a man who insulted you make it all right and proper for you to dance with strange men in public dance halls. Again you are cheapening yourself, becoming less refined and immaculate and desirable. Some of the men you meet in that way may be desirable enough men, but they aren't going to have a very exalted opinion of the girl who permits herself to be so casually "picked up" as an acquaintance .

Say Not So.

My introductory comments on a recent letter from "A. Virtous Wife" appealed to one reader as being a defense of vice. Rather a unique role for the conductress of Minerva's Mail to fill, isn't it?

The comments in question were certainly not a defense of lawlessness, but a plea for tolerance, for individual consideration of cases rather than a cold blooded lumping of all irregularities as vice, and a condemning of women (and men) on circumstantial evidence as sinners when they are often more sinned against than sinning.

I should have thought my frequent preachments against moral laxities would have so emphasized my viewpoints that no question would have arisen from even an infrequent reader of The Mail. It amazes me to be accused of being an upholder of, or even an apologist for, vice of any sort.

But I just can't abide smug, complacent self-righteausness combined with narrow, sweeping criticisms of other people. Our Christianity should above all teach us philanthropy and humanity.

The "women who are not big enough to pay the price of love" to whom I made reference are chiefly those who shirk in their homes, who are cold materialists always ready to desert a foundering ship rather than fight shoulder to shoulder with their chosen mates to save the matrimonial craft, those who live only for show and surface excitements. When the husband of such a woman finds sympathy elsewhere,—well, his is then an individual case requiring special consideration.

The home life described in the following letter is ideal. I am sorry "Louella" so grossly misinterpreted the spirit of the reply which she criticised. Perhaps I took too much for granted in the way of the readers being able to read between the lines and around them.

Dear Minerva: Well of all things, the answer you gave "Virtuous Wife" in April sixth issue of The Star beats all husband and I ever heard in defense of lawlessness and sin. I presume that you thought by having your comment printed before the letter by "Virtuous Wife" we would all be converted to your way of thinking. But husband and I read and re-read, both sizzling.

Well, thank the Lord there are a few people left in the world who do not approve and uphold such slimy serpents as the "home wreckers," just such women as you defend have brought more sorrow, disgrace and despair upon loving wives and poor, innocent children than any other cause we can think of. Stop and think, if you will, of the wrecked and ruined homes, where these low, heartless women have coiled their slimy tentacles around some good woman's husband. He's soon staying out nights, then the woman and this man go away and establish a home? that the laws of our land forbid, while the heart-broken wife and children suffer and bear the disgrace and humiliation I can think of a number of just such sad, pitiful cases. Some children have remained with their mothers and tried to live down the disgrace, some run away from it all and some have gone down into the depths of sin, as their father before them. I recall talking to a beautiful young woman one day about the life she was living. She said "Huh, when I have illegitimate brothers and sisters scattered all over the state what could people expect of me? Can they expect more of me than of my father? I can't go out and hold my head up and be anybody."

It is true "Virtuous Wife" that in the past that kind of woman was kept in restricted districts and decent men knew they had to stay away from the district. But now such women live right among us. You don't know but your next-door neighbor is one of them. They strut around with their heads up in the air with so-called decent women and take them riding around with them in their cars. Of course they think they are all right. I heard of one who boasted of going out with the cream of society, when she had broken up several homes and was then living in an apartment with the husband of a fine Christian woman who had four lovely children by him. I fear as long as we treat such women with respect and consideration we will see immorality increase as it has the last few years They think if they can get by with it, why not? My husband would not allow me to go out in company with such women because he knows men would say "why, is she that kind of of a woman? She must be or she wouldn't be running around with a woman of that character

When the Lord said "Ye without sin cast the first stone" remember the woman was willing to forsake her evil ways and Christ said "Go and sin no more." Unless they are willing to do this and live clean lives, I say shun them like you would a serpent.

Minerva I wonder what you would have said to the Lord had you been there when he told Abraham to send Hagar away with her illegitimate child, drive her from home out into the world. Read it in Gen 21:9-21 Hagar called on the Lord when she thought her child would starve and die, that's why he blessed them! Poor old Abraham thought as Sarah was so old, he would have to help the Lord to fulfill His promise that his seed should fill the earth. God could wink at Abraham's ignorance and sin because his motive was right, he was trying to please God.

So Minerva thinks most of us are not "big" enough to pay the price of love. I am thankful that I am big enough to stand up for right, truth and principle, and for the love of the finest, cleanest husband in the world. When he has to leave home in the evening, wife knows just where he is and about what time he will be home, and he knows the same when I go out without him. We are so happy in our home, spend our evenings reading, talking over the happenings of the day or listening to something good over the radio. Had we children old enough to read the newspaper we would hardly allow them to read and be influenced by such propaganda as Minerva put out in this instance.

This is the first letter I have written and perhaps the last as I am no writer as you who read will agree.

You are right "Hater of Faith," they should want to hide their heads in shame for they have forfeited all decency and consideration by their conduct and unless they turn from mtheir evil wicked ways and repent and live clean they will reap the reward the Lord prosises all adultresses, liars, murders and the like. Not only women are home wreckers but there are plenty of men in the same business—LUELLA.

Suffer the Bruises.

Dear Minerva: Permit a father of a comparatively large family to write in your Mail. I have one son and two daughters in the teens and it is very interesting and often perplexing to decide the issues raised in the course of their home instruction. However, there s always a safe and an unsafe way to proceed along the path of life. Society was organized and given a collection of social laws when "social man" was created. One may break those laws but always to their detiment. Those laws are divinely authorized to create perfect social harmony among men and women. We may break them but we cannot repeal them nor escape the consequences of disobeying them. We can take our choice and of course must accept the consequences.

If modern young men and young ladies expect to create a new social law and alter the social relations of the sexes they are attempting the impossible. The effect to do that feat has been tried throughout the ages but always to the impoverishment of the races and the breaking down of the social order. God will not be mocked and his ten commandments canno be repealed.—H. I.

A.—We are always glad to hear from the fathers. Yours is an interesting thought and one that should prove to be an anchor to the drifting that our moral laws are as fixed as are our laws of nature and of mathematics, that they cannot be repealed or altered and that when we oppose them, we suffer disintegration. The fundamental laws of morality and cleanliness are indeed fixed, and when we in our puny blindness ignore or defy them, we suffer the bruises from bumping against an immovable force.

Frank Lee Crow jr., who celebrated his first birthday April 11, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Crow, 212 West 18 street, University Place

ONE YEAR OLD

University Notes

The department of geography recently received a request from the state department of education of Pennsylvania for 20 copies of the summer session bulletin for 1926, for the outline of courses in geography to be given this year. The director of geography of Pennsylvania is urging teachers to attend summer sessions where special stress is placed on geography, and the University of Nebraska is included in the list of recommended institutions.

PRACTICAL

A mighty practical home is being constructed by PIERSON BROS. for Mr C. C. Campbell at 36th and J streets. To accomplish insulation from heat and cold, Mr. Campbell has chosen CELOTEX, the new insulating lumber you hear so much about. This home also is assured an unusual length of roof life by the application of vertical grain Bear Brand shingles nailed with zinc coated nails supplied by

SANICO

Convenient Terms Can Be Arranged

Clean, Sparkling and Sanitary

No trouble to keep a Sanico Porcelain Gas Range clean. Simply wipe it with a damp cloth and it shines like new.

Now on Display in the Furniture Department

No Better Store Offered at an Ordinary Store Price

THE NEW SANICO PORCELAIN GAS RANGE will delight every woman who becomes it's possessor. In baking and cooking quality it cannot be surpassed—a beautiful range, always gleaming and spotless It is a Range for a life time, only porcelain range with a

25-Year Guarantee

The Sanico Gas Range is made for permanence. The lasting qualities of its sturdy construction is built into it from the floor up The iron sheets are pure ingot iron which in itself is practically rust proof. These are coated on both sides with SANICO PORCELAIN so that no metal is left bare, not even in the oven—it cannot rust out. Only violent abuse or accident can injure a SANICO.

Sanico Metallic Porcelain

IS HEAT PROOF--RUST PROOF--ELASTIC

This Sanico Porcelain is the only porcelain that is safe to use on a range, because it is the only porcelain that is so largely made of metal that it is elastic, and because it expands and contracts with heat or cold. HEAT IT RED HOT—COOL INSTANTLY IN WATER—that will not hurt it. Sanico porcelain is made of a mixture of six metals to which a small quantity of the ordinary porcelain ingredients have been added, just enough to give it a glaze. It is tough, elastic, everlasting.

Specifications

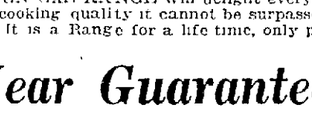

These specifications apply to all SANICO GAS RANGES whether 18 or 11 inch oven size BODY RUST PROOF PORCELAIN INSIDE AND OUT. PORCELAIN OVENS, MANIFOLDS AND DOOR FRAMES. Brilliantly polished heavy nickel. It has 4 pinetree gas burners. Rutz automatic lighter, right or left hand ovens, black porcelain grids and burner and lacquered wood door handles.

A Special Free Offer

For This Week Only With the Purchase of a Sanico Range, Your Choice

Of one of our regular $8.85 Porcelain top kitchen tables. A regular $8.85 Polychrome lamp base (Shade not included) or an $8.85 Polychrome buffet mirror. Your Choice Absolutely Free with every SANICO GAS RANGE SOLD DURING THIS WEEK. Plan to attend this unusual demonstration.

Here is a MESSAGE to the Woman who desires a SLENDER FIGURE

A French Formula for reducing called SAN-CRI-NA has been introduced in America, and has met with such success that Doctors, Specialists, Nurses, and Dr. Rudolph, former Health Commissioner, recommend it to fat people as harmless and effective. If you have been fat for years; if your case is most obstinate; if you have tried everything advertised without success; if you suffer from puffing, high blood pressure, tired feeling, due to obesity you owe it to yourself to get a package of SAN-GRI-NA, take two small tablets before each meal and just see what it can do. Not only should SAN-GRI-NA do away with fat, but you should feel a change in your entire system. A great many people have been benefited by SAN-GRI-NA, and are sending in most gratifying reports. These cases vary in reduction, some in a remarkably short time. Patients have said that after taking SAN GRI-NA they felt 100 per cent better. SAN-GRI-NA is guaranteed harmless, and positive to reduce you or money refunded. Sold at all good drug or department stores or you can send direct to the SANGRINA CO., 1841 Broadway, N. Y. C.

"What a difference excess fat makes in a woman—By using SAN-GRI-NA I lost 30 lbs. and my friends all say how beautiful I look again." —writes Mrs. Zollo, Chicago woman.

"Have taken one box of SAN-GRI-NA, taking from one to two tablets daily and have lost 20 pounds in one month and I don't have that stuffy feeling after eating." Mrs. P. Smallwood, Butte Falls, Oregon.

On sale at Harley s, Villers', Meier's, Sun or Terminal drug stores.

University Notes

Entrance requirements for the College of Law are raised from 60 credit hours to 65 in the 1926-1927 College of Law bulletin just out. Among other administrative changes are included raising of the requirements for one degree of doctor of jurisprudence. Adult special students must be at least 24 years old under new regulations in the bulletin. The former minimum was 23.

The rostor of students in the new Law bulletin shows an increased proportion of those holding degrees before entering the College of Law. The graduating class and the junior class have slightly less than 25 per cent holding degrees, while in the freshman class more than half have degrees or are candidates this June. The number of graduates in the rostor has been growing steadily each year since the enactment of the two-year entrance requirement in 1922.

Preliminary contests for the fourth annual Interscholastic Academic contests of Nebraska high schools were held Saturday, April 24, in twelve towns, Kearney, Ogallala, McCook, Holdredge, and Alma, under direction of Kearney State Teachers College; Chadron and Bridgeport by Chadron State Teachers' College; Wayne and Ainsworth by Wayne State Teachers College; Peru by Peru State Teachers College; York by York College; and Hastings by Hastings college. The question was mailed out from the university and will be graded by the staffs of the state college under whose supervision the tests were given. Winners will probably not be known for a week, said Prof. A. A. Reed, director of extension. Appropriate certificates of award will be sent from Lincoln to all the district winners. The final contest will be held in Lincoln at the University of Nebraska on May 8. Schools near Lincoln and Omaha did not have preliminary contests, but will come direct to the final contests to save expense of preliminary contests.

Dean J. E. LeRossignol of the college of business administration, left yesterday for Hanover, N. H., where he will attend the annual convention of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, April 28, 30, and May 1. Dean LeRossignol is president of the association, and the program for the convention has been prepared under his direction. Problems to be considered in the opening day's discussion will be. Personnel work in the college. Relation of the college of business to the arts college. How to train and find teachers; and Business ethics

The University Players gave a four act comedy, "Little Women," by Mirian De Forest at the Lincoln high school Thursday, April 22. Leon H. Connell, instructor in the department of dramatic art and elocution directed the play. The cast included Mr. March, Henry Ley, '26 Wayne; Mrs. March, Martha Farrar, '28, Twin Falls, Ida.; Meg, Esther Zinnecker, '27, Lincoln; Jo, Alyce Connell, '27, Lincoln; Beth, Elizabeth Woodbury, '27, Council Bluffs; Aunt March, Helene Phillips, '26, Omaha; Mr. Laurence, Thad Cone, '28, Omaha; Laurie, Werner Mall, '27, Clay Center, Kas.; Prof. Frederich Bhaer, Donald Helmsdoerfer, '28, Ulysses; John Brooke, Kenneth Cook, '27, Randolph; and Hannah Mullett, Helen Cowan, '26, Albion.

For actual field experience in determining geological strata, the advanced paleontology class of Prof. E. D. McEwan went to Bennet Wednesday, April 21, to collect fossils and identify the age of the fossil beds. The class applied in actual field exploration work, the lessons it has been taught in class and laboratory during the year. More trips are being planned.

Seventy-five high school students from Waverly consolidated school chaperoned by A. B. Jacobs, made an inspection trip through the university museum April 16. They were conducted through the exhibits by E. G. Collins, assistant curator, who made explanatory talks. Another delegation of high school seniors from Springfield, chaperoned by O. G. Yaeger, visited the museum on April 20.

"Pinkie and the Fairies" will be given at the Temple theater, May 1, by the Children's Theater.

STEPHEN LEACOCK

"'We are enthusiastic over the new plan,' says a representative of the college. 'We do not believe in the lean student. Our experience teaches us that the fat student not only holds more, but carries it better.

"At the same time, we are not prejudiced. We admit that there is a difference in the specific gravity of students. Weight must count as well as bulk in a well-coordinated university.

"'If need be, we are prepared to remove the bones of the students till we get what we want. In the meantime we think we have found a way of keeping the students away from college—the aim of every great institution of today.'

The Call of the Mild.

What is more striking still is that even after the students are admitted to study, the same methods of accurate scientific tests are applied to their grogress step by step. In some of the western colleges, bold measures are being taken.

"Michisota Will Chloroform Students.

'University of Michisota—An interesting experiment has just been carried to completion among the students of the psychologic department of the University of Michisota. With a view to testing their relative reaction against fatigue, twenty students of the class were chloroformed and stored away in the basement for a week.

"The most gratifying results have been obtained. Ten of the twenty, after being revived, showed no sign of anything unusual having happened to them and presented the same appearance as if their week had been spent in listening to lectures.

"Five showed slightly increased temperature, as if from undue excitement of the brain. The remaining five were distinctly exhilarated.

"Professor Killem, who designed and carried out the experiment, speaks with the greatest enthusiasm. He says that it forebodes the end of the lecture system. All he needs is more chloroform."

The Matrimonial Leap.

Nor does it appear that the new methds are being put into force only in the men's colleges. I find on investigation a number of news items showing that the leading women's colleges are carrying on exactly the same kind of work.

"Vassley Girls Undergo Marriage Test.

"Vassley College—Professor Mary Jane Gotoit, head of the department of anthropological ornithology, has just devised a series of tests among the girl students of the colleges with a view to estimating, their fitness for matrimony Fifty girls, selected from the different college years, were led in a line down the college avenue past a point where two men were stationed by previous arrangement at the side of the road.

"The idea of the test was to see how far each girl would jump at the sight of a man. The result showed an average side-ways jump of six-and-a-half inches. The longest jump was made by a first year girl from Ungava, who jumped four feet.

"In most of the girls of the fourth year, no perceptible motion could be detected. They will graduate this spring.

"It is more than evident that the new way of treating college students obviates all need of giving them degrees at the end of their course. It is plain that much more accurate indications of their capacity are now available."

"Degrees Abolished at Halevard.

"Halevard university—The corporation of Halevard university has voted to abolish degrees. In their opinion designations as A. B. and Ph. D. are entirely out of date and do not correspond at all to the modern environment.

"In place of the old-time 'parchment' which he used to receive at graduation, each student will receive a chart or 'graph' of himself which will show exactly what the amounts to.

"The graph will indicate the pressure of his blood and the weight (if any) of his brain, together with his internal cubic capacity, his initial electrical energy. A student looking for employment will now only need to present his graph without showing his face. This is regarded as a great advance."

But the largest and final result of the test systems is its application to the highest field of study, the work of graduate research. That it is actually being extended into this field is evident from such news items as the following:

"Topkins Graduate Undertakes Interesting Work.

Edward Topkins university—Mr. Edward Enditall, A. B., a graduate student in the department of dietetics, will carry out a series of interesting tests in his own person with a view to estimating to what extent the human body is dependent on food. Mr. Enditall will go without his breakfast for three months, during which time he will see how he reacts to an empty stomach.

"During the second three months he will also go without his lunch, during which period he will plot himself into a chart to show how badly he misses his lunch.

"The more crucial part of the test will follow in the third semester during which time Mr. Enditall will go without his dinner also. At the end of this test Mr. Enditall will probably have plotted himself into a plot in the cemetery, where his degree of D. F. will be engraved on his head stone.

"There is no doubt that the final result of this student's work will be of benefit to the world. It is hoped that others will follow his example."

No Cut Price For State Oil Leases

Request to have the regular oil and mineral leasing fee of $25 on each 40-acre tract lowerd in the case of several sections of state school land near Crawford, made by C. V. Hickman of that place on behalf of a number of its business men who contemplate prospecting operations, will not be granted by the board of educational lands and funds. The board met in special session Saturday and listened to Mr. Hickman's proposal but took no action thereon. Its members see no reason for making an exception to the rule in this instance.

Hickman said the Crawford people think $100 a quarter, or $400 a section, is a rather stiff price to pay for the privileve of finding out whether or not there may be oil on the land. Leases have been taken on some acreage privately owned, at a less figure.

Under rules adopted by the state board several years ago, anyone desiring to lease school lands for mineral or oil rights must pay a $25 initial fee on each 40-acre tract and also agree to pay the state 12½ per cent royalty on whatever is subsequently taken out.

Bids Received For Basement Vault In Capitol Building

Bids on physical protective equipment and electrical protection for a basement vault in the capitol, to be used by the trade and commerce department for the storage of several million dollars of securities in the possession of the insurance bureau and the guaranty fund commission, were received Saturday by the capitol commission at a session held in Governor McMullen's office.

There were 3 bids, ranging from $7,500 up to $8,300, on the steel apparatus, including a large timelocking door 10 inches thick, a smaller emergency door circular in shape and 20 inches in diameter, steel lining 1 inch thick for the inside of the entire vault, and a spiral staircase to connect it with the offices above. The Mosler Safe Co., which has a branch house at Omaha, filed the low bid. Other propositions were submitted by the DeWright Safe Co., Omaha, and the National Safe Co., Cleveland.

On the electriacl equipment, the low bid was $1,700 by O. B. McClintock. One other firm made a price of $2,300, but did not enclose a certified check. This part of the installation will comprise burglar alarms and also a microphone arrangement enabling anyone who may be caught accidentally inside of the vault to communicate with the outside and make his plight known.

There will be a fan arrangement for suppying fresh air to the chamber. The approximate size of the vault is 10 feet long, 9 feet wide, and 7 feet high.

jeska happened to be present in a house where Paderewski also was a guest. He was invited to play the piano and complied.

Modjeska Encouraged Him.

The tragedienne led the applause that finished his rendition.

"My dear sir," she said, "you play marvelously. Why are you not on the concert stage?"

Paderewski explained.

"You must waste no more time at the ungrateful task of teaching," Modjeska declared. "You must give yourself and your art to the world."

The young musician did not believe himself ready for the role his friend envisioned.

"Then study some more, but study with the best," she advised him.

In 1887 Paderewski became a pupil of his fellow countryman, the greatest teacher in the world, Theodor Leschetitsky, at Vienna. Two years later he made his debut in Vienna and scored a triumph. London, Paris, Berlin, and New York followed and soon he was a world figure.

Established Friendships Everywhere

At master pianist and internationally known personality, he established many friendships with the great of all countries. As patriot he became a student of all things and all persons so that he might the better serve his oppressed country. When the world war broke out it was Paderewski who uited all Paris in throwing off the yoke and it was Paderewski who enlisted the aid and sympathy of the Allies. He became the country's first premier and, as the world's finest orator, speaking four languages, and profound thinker, he played a foremost part in the peace conference following the war. He became, in fact, the father of his country.

Paderewski had the good sense to renounce statesmanship at a time when his fame was secure. At sixty-five he is a concert pianist again. And the world pays him homage such as is given to few men.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Both houses, for Friday and Saturday nights of the fun fest, "Joy Night," were sold out before the Saturday performance.

Burke Smith, president of the Orpheons club, tendered his resignation at the regular meeting. A new president has not yet been chosen. Several members gave musical numbers and some gave current events about some phase of music.

Tryouts for valedictorians of the senior class will be held next week. A boy and a girl will be selected to give speeches at the annual commencement.

A visit to the A street pumping station was a feature of the work of Mr. Young's physics class last week.

As the physiology class of Miss Helen Schemel has undertaken to build a model dairy for a project, the class visited the dairy barns at the state agricultural college Monday.

"The Relation of Improved Highways to Education" is the topic of the essay contest promoted by H. S. Firestone. First prize in this contest will give any high school boy or girl full college tuition for four years.

"Cave Formation and the Petrifying of Trees and Bones" was the topic of the lecture given by Prof. E. H. Barbour at a meeting of the Chemistry club Thursday. His talk was illustrated by lantern slides. It dealt with the composition of stalactites and stalagmites and with underground rivers in caves.

Eleanor Blvins and Fred Jisa have been added to the Advocate staff. Eleanor is a special reporter and Fred an advertising solicitor. This completes the Advocate staff for the semester.

White dresses will be worn at commencement by senior girls, they decided Thursday morning. The dress should not cost more than $12 and should be of a smart tailored or sport style.

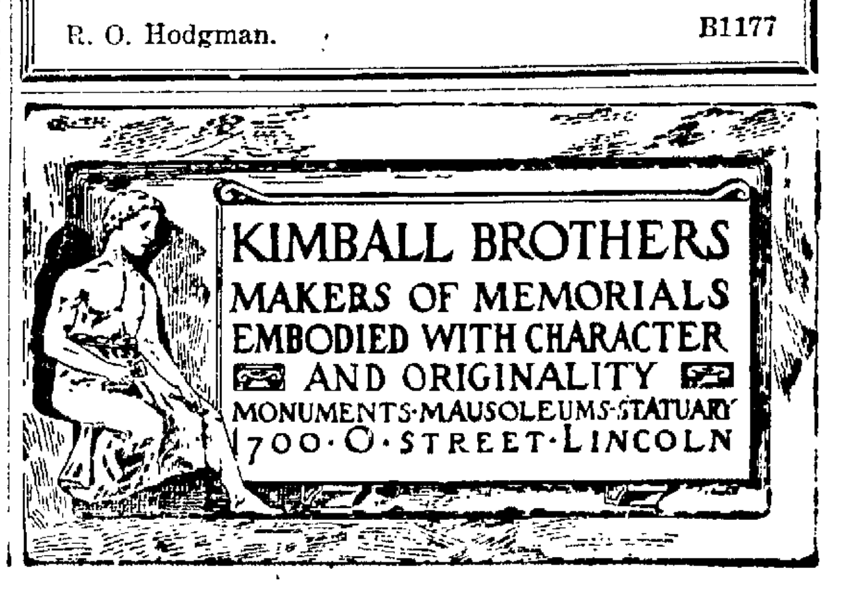

A balloon sent up by the students of the science classes of J. D. Young was found last Tuesday at Baldwin, Kas., 150 miles from Lincoln. A postal card attached to the balloon was to be filled out and mailed to Mr. Young. It was released here about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, and found at 8:30 the next morning on a farm owned by Arthur O. Sullivan. The balloon was filled with hydrogen.

Schumann-Heink, the "Golden Voice," Will Be Here May 5

The best loved of all voices will be heard in Lincoln again, May 5, when the best loved of all artists will appear once more before a Lincoln audience and give to it her great voice.

The "golden voice" has Schumann-Heink's been called, because of the depths it reached into the very souls of those who heard her. It has been almost fifty years that Schumann-Heink has sung to her beloved public, fifty years that have brought with them great sorrows, greater joys, and most of all an almost perfect understanding of humanity.

"Yes," said this great artist," there have been sorrows, many of them, but they have been good for me. One cannot be too happy, for then one could not understand life."

Is An Austrian.

And right there is the secret of the great bond between Schumann-Heink and the vast audiences who hear her—she understands everyone of them, rich, poor, old, young, and she loves them all.

Schumann-Heink is an Austrian by birth. There was not a great deal of money in the family, and thhe young girl was abitious. She had a rich, deep contralto voice that needed cultivating, but it took funds to do it. A vocal teacher became interested in the young Ernestine, and gave her voice lessons four years without charging a cent.

When she was seventeen years of age she made her first public appearance. When she was nineteen years of age she was married. Whether she was happy or not in her marriage, Schumann-Heink did not say, but she did tell of the hardships she underwent in order to support herself and her seven children.

Family Of Seven.

"It was not such an easy thing to do, to care for seven children and practice and sing at any place I could get to sing to bring in enough money to feed my family. But I did it. I would sit at the piano and pick out the air of a new song with one hand and hold a baby in the other arm. I would sing tra-la-la, practice all the time when I found a clean handkerchief for Hans, brushed Lotta's hair and saw to it that the other children's wants were being cared for. It was 'mamma' for this, and 'mamma' for that, but they were my babies and I loved them so much that they could never worry me."

It was not a question of turning the children over to a housekeeper or a governess with Schumann-Heink. It was a question of doing all her own house work, cooking sewing, besides working outside to earn the family bread and butter.

The singer is an advocate of families "Every woman should have children," she said. That is what God intended and they should not go against God's law. There would be fewer divorces, fewer dissatisfied and disrupted homes if there were more children."

Sang For Soldiers.

During the war it would seem that Schumann-Heink's cup of sorrow was filled to the brim and ran clear over. Her eldest son, August, was in Germany and fought with the German army, while her baby son, Hans, was with the American expeditionary forces, and brother fought brother on French soil. Both were killed.

Schumann-Heink spent her time during the war, singing to the boys at the various camps throughout the United States. She would sing a while and weep a while, thinking always what was ahead for these young men, all of whom she loved.

"I never sing but what I see my boys," Schumann-Heink said. They are in front of me, their faces, and all around me. I sing out to the audience, but my boys are there, and really I sing to them."

The great singer, who is first of all a mother, and a wonderful, wonderful specimen of true womanhood, will not permit her present concert tour to be labelled as "farewell." She demands that it be called a jubilee tour, in celebration of almost a golden anniversary of the beginning of her public career.

Years Add Charm.

Schumann-Heink comes to Lincoln Wednesday, May 5, under the auspices of the American Legion, and she will sing the songs that she has sung so many times before, and songs that every one loves.

"I had made up my mind that I would not hear Schumann-Heink this time," said a very prominent Lincoln woman "I thought I loved her and her voice so much that I wanted to remember both just as they were the last time I heard her, but as the time draws near I am weakening, and I am sure that I shall be among the audience that evening."

The years have done nothing to the great voice but mellow it into an almost unimaginable beauty, the years have strengthened the vivid personality, and made Schumann-Heink even greater than she ever was before.

Screen Siftings

Director Signs.—Clarence Brown, who recently directed "Kiki" with Norma Talmadge, and "The Eagle," with Rudolph Valentino, has been signed under a long term contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. His first production will be Robert W Service's romance, "The Trail of '98."

To Star Himself—Johnnie Walker, who is playing the role of Stephen Decatur in "Old Ironsides," which James Cruze is directing for Paramount, has purchased the film rights to Paul Anthony Kelly's "The Phantom Legion," and plans to produce the story on the screen with himself as the star.

Side-kicks in "Sunny." — Vera Reynolds and Edmund Burns, who teamed together so nicely in "The Million Dollar Handicap," are playing side by side again in "Sunny Ducrow." Miss Reynolds' first picture as a star for Cecil B. De Mille. Donald Crisp is directing.

Young Man to Start South.—"Riding Honor," will be Art Acord's last picture before he starts on his eight months' tour of South America and Mexico. Willy Wiler is directing the production, and Louise Lorraine, who in private life is Mrs. Acord, plays opposite her husband.

SPEAKS ON ART AMONG INDIANS

Alexander Says Their Work Compares With That Early Greeks.

Dr. Hartley B. Alexander spoke Saturday evening before the Professional Men's club at the Lincoln hotel on the development of appreciation of American Indian art.

He pointed out that there are at least four groups of Indians that have marked art ability, comparable to that produced by other civilizations. The art of the Pueblo Indians may be compared to that of Greek and Roman civilizations, he declared.

The Indians have greatest talent in decoration, but are weak in sculpture, he said, adding that "although for 100 years the white man in America has been actively engaged in stamping out every trace of Indian art, now an attempt is being made to salvage at least a part of it." The American Institute of Archeology, at Santa Fe, is particularly active in this work, he stated.

The summer session program for the School of American Research, at Santa Fe, includes a series of lectures which will cover the entire development of the southwest country, Dr. Alexander said. The lectures begin July 5, and continue to August 1, when the three day fiesta starts. The geology, biology, paleontology and ethnology of the desert region will be discussed Dr Alexander, who was last week at Santa Fe conferring with Dr. Hewitt concerning the school, will deliver several lectures on the art and symbolism of the Indians. The program will include numerous field trips, with a four or five day tour at the end of the session.

LINCOLN ROTARY CLUB COMMENDED

Meeting Which Closed Friday High Light In Society's History.

A resolution, expressing the appreciation of the Rotarians and Rotary Anns of the efforts put forth by the members of the Lincoln club and other persons who aided in making the recent Nineteenth district convention a success, was adopted by the resolutions committee at the closing session Friday. The committee was headed by C. W. Pugsley, of Brookings, S. D., former Lincoln man. George Sokel, Sibley, Ia., and George Gard, Ord, were the other members. Following is the text of the resolution:

Words can but feebly express the praise and thanks the Rotarians and Rotary Anns of the Nineteenth district desire to extend to those who have made this conference one of the high lights of all our Rotary experience. If we attempted to single out the individuals who deserve special mention we would have a list that would lose its impressiveness because of its size.

Appreciate Address.

It is very fitting, however, that we extend our thanks to International Rotary for sending to us Carl Faust, director of International Rotary. We thank him personally for accepting the arrangement. His splendid address and his helpful presence is greatly appreciated by us all. Rotary will be better in the Nineteenth district because he has been with us.

We extend to our governor Burton Sawin, our sincere thanks and deep appreciation for his untiring efforts and the earnest work he has given to the nineteenth district. He has given generously and willingly of his valuable services. Special mention should be made of the fact that through his leadership the clubs of the district are more solidly united and the work more clearly unified and standardized than ever before. The fine success of this meeting and the attendance at this program testify to the spirit of progress our governor has left with us.

Praise for Ronald.

We also extend cordial greetings to our newly nominated governor, Roy Ronald, and pledge to him our hearty support and confidence. With his record in Rotary we have faith to believe that Rotary in the nineteenth district will continue to move forward under his leadership.

We want our district conference secretary, Ed Danielson, to know that we appreciate the efficient way in which he has handled the business of this conference.

Time is too short to thank individually all the persons and groups who have made up the splendid program so we must content ourselves by doing it collectively. The program has been helpful, interesting and completely worth while from start to finish.

The real burden of a successful conference rests upon the host club. Where is there ever been a club in the history of Rotary which has fulfilled its duties in this connection in a better manner than the Lincoln Rotary club.

Conference High Points.

The high points of the conference have been the splendid well-balanced programs, the wonderful smoothness of registration, assignment and transportation arrangements, the delightful banquet and the beautiful pageant and ball. The sum total of thought and energy required to organize and carry out such a conference as this is enormous and not to rise by any but those who have been parties to it, but the results are plainly apparent and greatly appreciated. We extend our sincere thanks and take this method of recording our deep appreciation of the splendid work of the members of the Lincoln Rotary club.

Praise Rotary Families

When we speak of members of the Lincoln Rotary club we have in mind Rotary families. The Lincoln Rotary Anns and their helpers arranged the program and functions for visiting Rotary Anns in such a splendid manner that we have some indication of the reason for the success of the entire conference arrangement.

We have observed with delight and received with pleasure the co-operative service of other Lincoln clubs and express our appreciation and thanks to the Lincoln chamber of commerce, the Kiwanis club, the Lions club, the Optimists club and the Cosmopolitan club.

Be it resolved that we spread these expressions of appreciation on the records of this meeting and direct the secretary to send copies to those who have so faithfully served our interests and comforts.

TO GIVE CONCERT

The "Revue Beautiful" Headlines a Splendid Bill Opening at the Liberty Monday Matinee.

The program at the Liberty the first half of this week should prove to be joyous entertainment. The "Revue Beautiful" is a spectacular singing and dancing offering, featuring Eva Prout, a singing comedienne, who has been featured in the Schubert productions and has also appeared in the movies. Miss Prout is supported by three young men of singing and dancing attainment and four charming and shapely dancing girls; everybody enjoys the recollections of the good, old school days, "Seven Flashes," a septette of clever youngsters will present a satire on school days; Harry Sylvester and Maida Vance, a duo of well-known funsters in a comedy skit oddity called "Horses;" Ed E. Ford, an Australian and one of the foremost entertainers from the Antipodes; Corrine Villa and Bill Strigo in a novel singing and instrumental offering; on the screen, Dorothy Phillips in "The Bar C Mystery,' a thrilling romance laid in the land of the setting sun; news and comedy pictures and Babich and his orchestra. Coming —Thursday—Estelle Dudley and her Dance Lords and an excellent supporting bill.

The popular star Dorothy Phillips, star of "The Bar C Mystery," is returning to the screen after a retirement after the death of her husband Allen Holubar. "The Bar C Mystery" is a story of romance, mystery, and intrigue in which the East meets West in a fight for riches.

Endorsed by the Boy Scouts of America, "The Radio Detective" Comes to the Liberty Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

"The Radio Dectective," starring Jack Daugherty and Margaret Quimby, is an adventure picture, a thrilling mystery story of the radio. Bonomo, the world's strongest man, as Easton Evans, a crack football player and senior at college, Scoutmaster and wireless genius par excellence, becomes a real, romantic hero. The combination of athlete-inventor is one that will appeal strongly to all chapter-play followers, for Easton Evans is not only a man of enormous strength and athletic ability, a great boxer, wrestler and swimmer, but also a radio wizard, who will become the idol of all the Boy Scouts of America.

This Is Jubilee Week at the Lyric. The Hollywood Redheads and "His People" Are the Feature Attractions.

Manager Garman has booked two feature attractions for the Jubilee week celebration at the Lyric this week, that he feels confident will receive th praise of all. On the stage, Babe Egan's "Hollywood Redheads," an octette of versatile, auburn-haired beauties, coming direct from the studios, will be seen in an elaborate revue of music and dance. The feature picture, "His People," is one of the best photoplays that has appeared in Lincoln this season. It has received the unstinted praise of all magazine and metropolitan newspaper critics. The New York Daily News states, "It is a rich, glowing picture that fairly breaks your heart-strings, a photoplay for everybody. Visualized news and travel, with a brilliant musical program by Ernest Harrison's Lyric orchestra and Mrs. May M. Mills, organist, completes a program that you will regret if you miss it.

Douglas Fairbanks in "The Thief of Bagdad," at the Orpheum All This Week Except Friday.

"The Thief of Bagdad" is Mr. Fairbanks' most stupendous and entertaining production. It is a spectacular phantasy of glittering romance when the salt of life was love and the wine of life adventure ,a kaleidoscope of wonders, minarets of Bagdad fanciful lands and seas, exotic corners of the earth, beautiful princesses, grotesque monsters and a delirium of marvelous adventure. Four shows daily, at one, three, seven and nine. Never before at these low prices, adults, all shows, twenty-five cents, children, ten cents.

Rin-Tin-Tin in His Greatest Picture, "The Night Cry," at the Colonial This Week.

Uttering its weird cry, the giant condor circles over the Martin ranch and the sheep were herded to cover. In the yard a baby was playing. The great bird swooped down, and, in its talons, caught the screaming child. Off toward the mountain tops the great vulture soared with its prey. Running desperately, a dog—you'll find yourself thrilled to the marrow when you see Rin-Tin-Tin in "The Night Cry," the best of his Warner starring pictures. "Two Lips in Holland," a merry, mirth-provoking comedy, "The Were Tiger," a story of the jungles, and International News, interpretive music by J. C. N. Richards and D. Frank Easterday.

"The Gorilla," the New York, Chicago, and London Comedy Hit Coming to the Orpheum May 14th and 15th.

Local theater-goers will soon be afforded an opportunity to see the contemporaneous sensational laughing hit of New York, Chicago, Boston and London, England, when "The Gorilla" comes to the Orpheum Friday and Saturday, May 14 and 15.

This laughing sensation by Ralph Spence, which is playing at present to capacity audiences at the Selwyn Theatre, New York, The Plymouth Theatre, Boston, the Oxford Theatre, London, England, and the cities played by the company coming to this city whic hhas just closed a six months run in Chicago, made the greatest appeal to the public achieved by any theatrical production of the last decade. The original long run Chicago cast that will interpret Ralph Spence's "Scream of a Mystery Play," here includes: Lon Hascall, Harry T. Shannon, Elizabeth Carmichael, John Stokes, Wilbur Cox, Bert Kay, Jullan Noa, Thomas Bell John Grey, Carl Rosa and Ralph Theadore.

Latest Director Imported For Movie Work Hands the Palm to American Lasses

"American girls have the best features for the screen.

"They are more petite than their European sisters, have smaller bodies, and have more interesting faces."

Thus speaketh Benjamin Christianson, Danish director imported for a little work in this country.

"The American girl has a dainty form. Her body is well balanced with slender arms and legs.

"Probably because of the great intermixture of varied bloods, there are more interesting faces among American girls. They do not run to type as they do in the older countries. For instance, thirty beautiful German girls would look fairly much alike, but thirty beautiful American girls would offer a diversity of types that greatly enhance the interest when they appear in pictures."

Benjamin does not say how he is to explain his remarks to the three blondes, Anna Q. Nilsson, Greta Garbo and Greta Nissen, who hail from his own part of the world and who have managed to keep the wolf from the mansion since their arrival in this country.

Jacqueline Logan has taken the freelance trail. Her finest number as an independent player is the feminine lead in "Footloose Widows" for Warner. She has been under contract to Fox, but mutual consent allowed her to go over to Warner, as it is close to the end of her first year with Fox.

Eric Builds Huge Set.

Eric Von Stroheim is doing things in a large way. Two of the largest sets to be used during the current movie year are now under construction at the Associated studios. The first represents is a Viennese wine garden, surrounded by an apple orchard in bloom. The garden is a city block in length, nearly as deep, and it is being surrounded with hundreds of apple trees, clothed with millions of pink and white blossoms, guaranteed to remain forever fresh. Much of the romantic action takes place in this garden. In another part of the studios St. Stephens cathedral of Vienna is being duplicated. This set will rise to the height of 75 feet and will be surrounded by the buildings that encircle the original in the Austrian capitol.

Connie Talmadge is doing a little funning right now in "The Duchess of Buffalo"—not New York, but Russia. Hans Kraly wrote the story, with Constance as his model, Tullio Carminati, Italian by birth and stage training, has turned himself into a Russian nobleman for Connie's sake.

Now we are going to have a little peek and a little glimpse of heaven and of hell. Norman Bel Geddes, creator of the cathedral background for the New York showing of "The Miracle," has been engaged by D. W. Griffith for the creation of effects for "The Sorrows of Satan." He will design scenes showing the expulsion of Lucifer from heaven and his fall to earth.

Since Connie is to have Carminati as her leading man, Norma is to have Walter Pidgeon as hers, as yet untitled. When the first casting was completed, Norma was to have Tullio for her opposite, and Constance was given Walter. But the best laid plans of men, you know.

Roles Seeking a Star.

Producers are tearing their hair over the scarcity of big names in the movies. Good scripts, financial backing, time, but no one for any role. Of course, a little publicity does develop many a star—remember Vilma Banky—but the public prefers a well known name in the cast, or it is entirely disinterested. No matter if the cast is composed of nine top notch players, and has not a star, the public shrugs and goes to a lesser picture with a luminous name for the lead. It takes some time to develop a name, and it can not always be done in time for use in a big picture. Fox takes as many chances as any on the unknowns, and every now and again picks a winner.

Dorothy Seastrom has come back to First National. A year ago she left, knowing that she might never be permitted to return, and that her little candle that had burned so brightly might be snuffed out sharply. For a year she has lived quietly and in the open, fighting the illness that threatened her, and now she has returned, and signed the contract that awaited her.

Motion picture folk say you can peek through a keyhole into the Mack Sennett studio where Pathe comedies are made, and see what the fashions in actors are going to be. Sennett seems to have an insight into the public's fickle heart.

So, if he be right this time, the handsome willowy romantic looking shieks are going out of fashion and a new type of motion picture hero is coming.

The new type is a little smiling Irish boy with freckles and a clean heart and a disarming grin.

From time to time, Sennett has picked a lot of girls, nearly all of whom have become famous stars. But during his entire career he has only staked a bet on a few boys—Charlie Chaplin, Wallace Beery, and Raymond Griffith.

Picks Two Lads for Fame.

This year he made two new picks, two little Irish boys, oh so Irish—Eddie Quillan and Daniel Patrick O'Shea.

Many motion picture artists handled spades last Sunday for the first time and they were silver spades at that. The digging was done as part of the groundbreaking ceremony at the new First National west coast studio site in Burbank. Colleen Moore, Lewis Stone, Lloyd Hughes, Corinne Griffith, Harry Langdon, Mary Astor, Constance Talmadge and Richard Marthelmess were a few of the stars and executives who found what a little manual labor is.

Dorothy Mackaill, who last fall planned to sail for Merrie England in the merry month of April, has discovered that stars plan but managers arrange. She is in New York now to have the feminine lead in "Subway Sadie," to be followed in short order by "The Charleston Kid," meaning that Dorothy remains with us for some time yet.

"Spooks" At The Orpheum, May 7th and 8th.

Of all the mysterious, bloodcurdling and yet screamingly funny productions ever presented upon the American stage, "Spooks," which will be presented May 7 and 8 by the Uni. Players, has them all beaten to a frazzle. "Spooks" is a play that will make you hang tight to your chair. It will make you forget all the other thrillers, no matter how much you liked them, no matter how they sent cold waves up and down, your spinal column, and no matter how much they made you laugh. "Spooks" out-thrills and out-laughs all the rest of them put together and multiplied by ten. If you miss it, you'll miss half your life.

Rex Lets Man Ride Him Five Minutes at Time.

Only five men have been able to ride Rex, the wild stallion starred in "Black Cyclone," showing now at the Strand theatre, since he was taken by Hal Roach out of a Colorado reformatory, where he was branded as a "killer." Before that, no one could ride him. Although regenerated through kindness and no longer given to viciousness, Rex is still a wild horse and not a little temperamental.

Guinn Williams, who has known horses all his life, rides Rex in a scene that is said to surpass in real thrills any race that was ever run.

Screen Siftings

New Red-Haired Player.—Doris Hill, the new titian-haired Warner Brothers' player, is considered a very forunate young lady in Hollywood circles. Without one close-up or a day's extra work in motion pictures, she was chosen by Syd Chaplin for the major feminine role in his forthcoming picture, "The Better Ole." Syd will lay aside feminine paraphernalia in the new comedy, and interpret "Old Bill," the lovable sergeant in Capt. Bruce Bairnsfather's successful play.

Handsome but Funny—Joseph Schildkraut, who has been called "the handsomest man" on the screen, and who has hitherto played romantic leads, is to have an opportunity to shw what he can do in the comedy field in his new metropolitan production, "Meet the Prince." The story is a film version of "The American Sex," by Frank Adams. Marguerite de la Motte plays opposite Mr. Schildkraut, and others in the cast are Julia Faye, Vera Stedman, David Butler and Helen Dunbar.

A Hollandish Air.—Marion Davies has returned frm her vacation in New York and is preparing to start work on "The Red Mill," which will be filmed at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios in Culver City, Calif. Most of the scenes for the new picture are laid in Holland, and Miss Davies will wear a number of elaborate costumes ranging from Dutch peasant garb to French frocks. "The Red Mill," is a screen version of the famous musical comedy and will be screened on the same lavish scale as "The Merry Widow."

Signed Up in Advance.—Colleen Moore won't have to worry over what stories she will film for a while at least. She is working on "Ella Cinders" at present, with Lloyd Hughes opposite her. As soon as she completes that picture, Alfred Green will direct her in "Delicatessen." Miss Moore will follow "Delicatessen" with Thomas Burke's "Twinkletoes," and now Carey Wilson has written an original story for her, titled "Orchids and Ermine." John McCormick, general manager of First National's west coast units, anticipates that "Orchids and Ermine" will be followed by "Naughty but Nice," an adaptation of "Daphne Grows Down." Taking it all in all, Miss Moore considers herself pretty lucky to have found such a fund of good material available for her.

REVIVAL SEASON STRIKES GOTHAM THEATER STAGES

Happiest of Rejuvenated Old Timers Is "What Every Woman Knows."

Another Presentation of "The Bells" Under Lloyd Not So Good.

BY BUSHNELL DIMOND.

NEW YORK, April 24.—The second week in April brings to town our favorite comedienne, Madge Kennedy, in a new play by Amelie Rivers (Princess Troubetzkoy) and Gilbert Emery. We found it a pleasant, short-winded little comedy about a girl who lies and lies and lies. Miss Kennedy plays with unfailing freshness, spontaneity, zest—fluttering and winsome always. Sidney Blackmer and Tom Powers as her persistent suitors are capital, I think, and Frieda Innescourt plays the part of the other girl quite capably.

It seems to be a season of revivals. Tuesday night brought two. Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows," written in support of Barrie's favorite conviction that all women have the wisdom of the serpent and that all men are lummoxes, gives Helen Hayes the role of Maggie Wylie. For this role Miss Hayes has found just the right tide of loving kindness—just the lacy quality of a prim old valentine. The play creaks a bit as most old plays do, but on the whole it was distinctly worth reviving and we hardly could have a better revival of it.

Tuesday's second revival was "The Bells," one time success and standby of Sir Henry Irving. After watching its ancient length slowly unfold, those of the present generation there wished they might have seen Irving. He must have been an actor who could make "The Bells" ring true. All this, of course, is perhaps a little hard on Rollo Lloyd. It was he who directed the production and he who played Mathias. He plays it with a great deal of energy and no little skill. We doubt, however, that there is an actor on earth who could bring the play to life.

Shows Its Age.

"The Bells" is a type of severely dated melodrama in which the star halts the whole action for five minutes to point out in soliloquy what has happened fifteen years before the first curtain rose. In this case it happens that he committed murder and the action of the piece consists in the development of a relentless conscience which tracks him down.

The locale is Alsace about 100 years ago. Here and there moments of atmospheric color catch the attention, supplemented by sparser moments of rugged melodrama which time cannot destroy. But these bits of color and sudden spurts of energy could not begin to mask the wrinkles on the old play's cheek.

Another intimate revue will open this week. The International Theater Arts will give "Cherry Pie" at the Cherry Lane theater. The sketches and lyrics have been done by a variety of people. William S. Hainey will be master of ceremonies and Harry Wagstaffe Gribble staged the show.

The all star cast of the revival of "The Two Orphans" at the Cosmopolitan Theater is arranging a special matinee bill to be given on an afternoon other than the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinee days. The bill is to consist of scenes from the great starring successes of the various members of the cast. Fay Bainter will play some of her scenes from "East is West," the other members of the all star cast supporting her.

Proceeds to Charity.

Mary Nash and Florence will appear in some of their scenes from a "Lady's Virtue." May Robson will use some of her scenes from "The Rejuvenations of Aunt Mary" and Henrietta Crosman will play scenes from "Sweet Kitty Bellaires." Mrs. Thomas Whiffen will add variety to the bill by singing little "Buttercups" songs from "Pinafore," Mrs. Whiffen having been the original New York "Buttercup."

Robert Lorraine will use a part of "Arms and the Man" and Robert Warwick some of the best scenes of "In the Night Watch." Jose Ruben, Henry E. Dixey, Wilton Lackaye and William Seymour will also have parts of their best known plays.

The proceeds are to go to the orphan asylums of New York.

Marion Davies comes back to Broadway next week in her latest screen production "Beverly of Graustark." Sidney Franklin directed the production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer from the famous novel by George Barr McCutcheon. In the role of the heroine, a cousin to the crown prince of a European kingdom, Miss Davies is obliged to assume a male masquerade, in which she achieves one of the most charming and attractive portraits of her screen career. Extreme care was exercised in choosing the cast in order to present the picture in as nearly an accord with the spirit of the original novel as possible.

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I am another of your silent readers, but am now in the mood for questions.

The Colman-Gilbert contest is very interesting. Personally, Ronald Colman is my favorite. I can see, though, why the Gilbert fans are so ardent. However, he is out of the running so far as I am concerned. His eyes are too black, too bold and too prominent. He has that sensual appearance. He and Aileen Pringle make a perfect pair for Elinor Glyn. They are the three characters of the screen that I abominate.

I once read a letter in your department from a man who deplored she showing of Colleen Moore in "Flaming Youth." It was a good picture. I heard a man curse his little 12-year-old daughter because she wanted to see "The White Sister." He couldn't bear to have his child see a picture of that sort, and yet he did take his family to see "Three Weeks," "His Hour," and some more of Elinor Glyn's "crimes." I saw those pictures. I am an ardent fan (not Glyn's) but the whispering and giggling during certain scenes in those pictures did far more harm than little harmless Colleen Moore and Lilian Gish.

Enough for this, but I do want to say that it takes more than "he mannishness" to make a go of married life. I'd rather try with Ronald Colman's type.

How old is Bertram Grassby? Is he married and to whom? I think he is the most fascinating man I ever saw. Why isn't he starred? He has such unique features. Please give me his address. Ardently, Strang Fan, Strang, Neb.

Please don't "hide your light" as a silent reader any more. We are glad to know that there are such ardent fans in Strang.

If we all liked the same thing on the screen, the movies would lose their interest and the producers would have no worries because they would know just what to make. But since there are so many different varieties of taste in pictures, we have a vast assortment to choose from, and if we don't see the kind we like it's our own fault. Just because we don't all agree is no reason why we have a right to curtail the pleasure of others, however, I agree with you. I don't see what possible harm could come from "The White Sister." It was a good clean picture, and its heroine is one of the nicest girls in the picture colony. I think the man was unjust to condemn the picture without even seeing it.

Bertram Grassby was born in Lincolnshire, England, forty-six years ago. There is a Mrs. Grassby. He has been in pictures for several years but evidently prefers playing featured roles to the honors and griefs of stardom. Address him at 2026 Highland Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.

Dear Movie Editor—This is the first letter I have written to you, but I read your mail every Sunday and like it very much.

Will you give me the addresses of Alberta Vaughn, Colleen Moore, Norma Shearer, Patsy Ruth Miller, Lois Wilson, Mary Brian, George O'Hara, Norma Talmadge, Esther Ralston and Richard Dix?

How old is Alberta Vaughn? Tell me the age of Lois Wilson, Norma Shearer and Richard Dix. I saw Mr. Dix in "The Vanishing American and I think he did very well. I am going to ask you if Lois Wilson is married and if so to whom? Is Richard Dix married? Is Alberta Vaughn married?

Will you give me the cast to "The Pacemakers?"

Maybe I have asked too many questions to answer, but I will look for my letter next Sunday. Thank you, I remain SNOOKLY, Sterling, Neb.

I hope you were not disappointed when you failed to see your letter just when you expected it. Please don't get discouraged if you don't see it the Sunday after you write, or even the second Sunday, because when there are many letters ahead of you, it's sometimes three weeks before your letter appears, as it is in this case.

Address Alberta Vaughn and George O'Hara at the F. B. O. Studios, 780 Gower street, Hollywood, Calif. Colleen Moore is with First National Productions, United Studios 5341 Melrose avenue, Hollywood. Norma Talmadge will receive letters at the same address Patsy Ruth Miller is with Warner Brothers, 5842 Sunset boulevard, Hollywood. Norma Shearer parks her car at he Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, Culver City, Calif. and the remainder of your favorites receive their mail at the Lasky studio,, 1520 Vine street, Hollywood.

Miss Vaughn was born in 1906, and Norma Shearer is two years her senior. Lois Wilson was born in 1896 and Richard Dix in 1894. None of your four favorites are married.

Alberta Vaughn and George O'Hara had the featured roles in "The Pacemakers," but I fail to find the cast for the picture.

Tex. Yeast, Twenty Gilbert Fans, Blue Eyed Tillie, Lois, Viola, Kitty and Just Bobby, "a bad hardriding and shooting cofgirl": Your letters are among those that will have to be left over again. I'll do my best to answer them all next week, but there's been such an avalanche of mail I can't seem to get "caught up."

Clive, Jr., Announced.—Mr. and Clive Brook have added a little new son to their family. He will be called Clive, jr. The Brooks have a little daughter, 4 years old.

Grinding Out "Mantrap." — The cameras have started grinding on "Mantrap" the picturization of Sinclair Lewis' latest novel. Ernest Torrence has the role of a Canadian woodsman in the picture, Clara Bow is a manicurist and Percy Marmont plays the role of a bachelor lawyer who has become tired of listening to the woes of the wealthy women who want divorces. The company will go to Lake Arrowhead for the exteriors of the picture.

Paramount Has Birthday.—Paramount recently celebrated its fifteenth anniversary as an organization. The coming year is expected to be the biggest in the history of the company to date. Six big road show productions head the list of the forthcoming production schedule and seventy-five other pictures will be released during the year. Florence Vidor and Esther Ralston have been added to the list of stars in Paramount pictures, which also includes such players as Gloria Swanson, Thomas Meighan, Bebe Daniels, Pola Negri, Richard Dix and others of equal prominence.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Lloyd, Irvin Willat and Marshall Neilan.

The ten greatest pictures in my opinion are "The Ten Commandments," "The Covered Wagon," "Robin Hood," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "The Sea Hawk," "The Thief of Bagdad," "Scaramouche," "The Vanishing American," "The Merry Widow," and "Enemies of Women."

How's that for a list. How close do you come to agreeing with me?

Now I'll ask you a few questions. In the scene of the cleansing of the leper in "The Ten Commandments" who was Christ?

What has become of Charles de Roche nowadays? I haven't seen him since "Madame Sans Gene!"

Do you know how I can get a picture of the last scene of "The Ten Commandments?" That of Richard Dix reading to Leatrice Joy from the Bible.

I would surely like to get it. I only saw the picture four times and I could see it again.

It seems funny to me that the Universal company don't get a better set of stars than they have. They have a few, I'll admit, but they have no Barrymores, Fairbanks, Dixs or Gilberts. When they made "The Phantom of the Opera," and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" Lon Chaney was borrowed.

Can you give me the cast of the picture that they made in New York with the pupils in the Paramount School? Are there any noted actors in it?

I see Cecil B. De Mille is staging a contest like the one in 1923 when he began "The Ten Commandments." Has he picked out the winner yet? How old is he, Cecil?

How many churches are there in Hollywood?

How old are the two Barrymores?

Have "Ben Hur," "The Sea Beast," "The Black Pirate," and "Mare Nostrum" been booked here yet? Will "The Gold Rush" come back? Are there going to be pictures shown at the Orpheum for the rest of the season, or are any plays coming on?

Well, I believe this is enough to drive even you crazy, so I'll stop. Thanking you in advance, INQUISITIVE.

While I do not agree with you entirely, your lists are all well chosen. I'd make at least three changes in your list of actors, but I'm not going to tell you who they are. You have only named four actresses that I would place as my favorites. Your list of directors is imposing. There are some new directors springing into prominence at present who are very popular, and you left out Donald Crisp, who was responsible for "Don Q." Eddie Sutherland and Monta Bell are among the younger directors who deserve special notice.

It's easier to pick your ten favorite actors, actresses and directors, than it is to decide which are the ten greatest pictures out of the many, many great pictures that have been produced. Your choice is good, even though I do not agree with you in several instances. Our tastes in pictures differ. That's all. I'll give you one instance in which we differ. I didn't like "The Sea Hawk" at all, but it proves to be a very popular picture with most of the picture going public. I thought the story was too conventional in the first place, and the sea battles lost strength through too much repetition. I did enjoy Wallace Beery, and the scenes of the galley slaves were realistic and dramatic.

The man who played the Christ in the cleansing of the leper is not mentioned in the cast of "The Ten Commandments." I doubt whether you will be able to secure a picture of the last scene in the picture, but you might try writing to Arch Reeves, director of publicity, Lasky Studio, Hollywood, Calif. If you are not successful there, perhaps Mr. De Mille could help you out. He is now located at Culver City, Calif.

Charles de Roche is a Frenchman, you know, and he is now appearing in films in his native land. "Madame Sans Gene" was shot over there, so that is the reason he appeared in it.

Universal seems to think it is cheaper to employ the big stars for their special feature productions than it is to keep them under contract at the enormous salary that is demanded by a player with a reputation. A great many of the companies who have high priced stars under contract make more money by "hiring them out" than they do in using them in their own productions. Universal, as a rule, does not go in for big feature productions, as do some of the other companies. They make only or two super specials a year and spend the rest of the time with general run and western pictures.

In "Fascinating Youth," the picture which Paramount is making that features their "Junior Stars," Richard Dix, Adolphe Menjou, Percy Marmont and Clara Bow play "bits." Ralph Lewis, Norval Beptie, Gladys Lamb and Julia Mursley have roles in the picture, and the balance of the cast is made up of the graduates of the Paramount School, Dorothy Nourse, Mona Palma, Harriet Krauth, Thelma Todd, Ethelda Kenvin, Marian Harris, Josephine Dunn, Ewing Hardley, Robert Andrews, Jack Luden, Charles Rogers, Charles Brokaw and Walter Gosa.

Catherine Comstock, a young Baptist Sunday School teacher of Long Beach, Calif., was the lucky winner of the $1,000 prize offered by Cecil B. De Mille for a suggestion for his next picture. Miss Comstock's suggestion was the story of Noah, his Ark and the famous "Deluge." Mr. De Mille will film the picture on the same scale as "The Ten Commandments" and it will be the only personally directed picture made by him this year.

Mr. De Mille is 44 years old.

I could come nearer to telling you how many studios there are in Hollywood than how many churches there are there. My interest is in the studios and not in its churches, but I do know that it has a great many, because the motion picture people are on a whole religious, in spite of all you may hear to the contrary. They represent nearly every sect, too. Conrad Nagel ushers in the Christian Science church in Hollywood, and Ramon Navarro sings in the choir at Our Lady of Guadalupe church in Los Angeles.

John Barrymore was born in 1882, and Lionel gives 1880 as his birthdate.

Ben Hur is booked for the Orpheum the week of November 10 as a road show. "The Sea Beast" is coming to the Lincoln, probably the week of May 17. "The Black Pirate" is not to be released in this territory until fall, when it comes as a road show. "Mare Nostrum" is booked for a road show at the Orpheum, but not for some time. "The Gold Rush" will return to the Orpheum this spring. The remainder of the season at the Orpheum is to be devoted to pictures. The management is trying to secure road shows on the legitimate stage for next season, but the companies generally object to Lincoln's one night stands.

Screen Siftings

Off For the Big Town—Three of First National's featured players have left Hollywood for New York. They are Jack Mulhall, Dorothy Mackaill and Charlie Murray, who will appear in "Subway Sadie," to be made in the east under the direction of Alfred Santell. Jack Mulhall and Charlie Murray have just completed featured roles in "Sweet Daddies," while Dorothy Mackaill played opposite Richard Barthelmess in "Ranson's Folly," his first West Coast production under his new contract.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor.—I have just seen "The Road to Yesterday" and I thought it was wonderful. It was so unusual. Please give me the cast and tell me what you thought of it.

I saw Rudolph Valentino in "The Eagle" not long ago, and enjoyed it very much, although I do not care for Vilma Banky. Miss Banky has the brains, but she isn't pretty. I like a combination of brains and beauty.

Must "Beverly of Graustark" be completed? Can you give me the cast for it?

Everyone is quite "riled up" over the Ronald Colman-Jack Gilbert controversy, aren't they? I don't care particularly for either, so I won't take part in the fray. I'll be perfectly satisfied as long as I can see Ricardo Cortez, Madge Bellamy, Richard Dix and Vera Reynolds once in a while. I always enjoy Jack Holt, Rudy, Neil Hamilton and Zasu Pitts.

Please tell me all you can about Claire Adams and Vera Reynolds.

I was never so disappointed before in my life as I was when I saw Tom Mix in "The Rainbow Trail." He simply ruined it, made hash of it. It seems like I saw "The Rainbow Trail" several years ago. Was it ever filmed before? If so, I would like to have the cast.

Will some of the readers please express their opinions as to which they like the best, Tom Mix or Buck Jones? That is a constant source of debate for Dad and me and we would like to hear what others have to say on the subject.

Well, if I don't stop soon, you will never want me to come again, so I'll put a damper on this explosion of questions. Thank you.—BLUE EYES, from Imavale, Neb.

An interesting "explosion" is always a novelty, and we hope you will come often.

The cast for "The Road to Yesterday" is "Kenneth Paulton," Joseph Schildkraut; "Milena Paulton," Jetta Goudal; "Beth Tyrell," Vera Reynolds; "Jack Moreland," William Boyd; "Dolly Foules," Julia Faye; "Adrian Tompkins," Casson Ferguson; "Harriett Tyrell," Trixie Friganza; "Hugh Armstrong," Clarence Burton; "Anne Vener," Josephine Norman; "Watt Earnshaw," Charles West.

I enjoyed the picture for the same reason you did, because it was a little out of the ordinary. The meaning was not quite clear at times, probably due to a little too much cutting, but the scenes were thrilling and the cast was well chosen.

Personality and brains are considered a better combination than beauty and brains in Hollywood. The city is filled with beauties who are anxious to become screen stars, but there are not many of them who have brains and personality enough to get through the "extra" lines.

"Beverly of Graustark" is completed, but not yet released. Marion Davies and Antonio Moreno are the featured players, and I have not yet received the entire cast of the picture.

Claire Adams spent her early childhood in Canada and received her early education at St. Hilda's Academy, Calgary, Canada. She made her first stage appearance in college dramatics and later appeared in London, Toronto, and New York. She started her screen career in Benjamin Hampton's production of Zane Grey's "The Desert of Wheat," and Winston Churchill's "Dwelling Place of Light." She later played leading roles in Goldwyn pictures. She excels in the cold weather sports of Canada such as skating and snow-shoeing. She is an all-around athlete, however. Miss Adams is 5 feet 4 inches tall and has red-brown hair and brown eyes.

Vera Reynolds is a native of Richmond, Va., but has spent the greater part of her life in southern California. She made her first appearance on the screen when she was only 11 years old, when she danced in "The Chorus Girl's Romance," featuring Wallace Reid and Cleo Ridgely. Vera's father didn't want her to play in pictures, so she used to play "hookey" from school whenever a "bit" came her way.

She worked in comedies with Al St. Johns, and later on the Sennett and Christie lots. It was while she was in Christie comedies that Sam Wood, who was looking for someone to play the kid sister to Gloria Swanson in "Prodigal Daughters," spied Vera and gave her the role.

She got her big chance in "Feet of Clay," with Cecil B. De Mille. Estelle Taylor was to have the part, but she couldn't learn to swim, and Vera was chosen because she was a regular duck in the water.

She went with De Mille as a featured player when he organized his own company, and is now a star in that company. Her first starring vehicle is called "Sunny Morrow" from Henry St. John Cooper's novel.

"The Rainbow Trail" was released in 1917 by Fox Film Corporation with William Farnum in the leading role. I have no cast for the old picture.

From your comments I should judge that you are partial to Buck Jones. I'll gladly publish any views on the subject of Tom Mix or Buck Jones which the fans may wish to express.

Dear Movie Editor—I find the "Answers to Movie Fans" very interesting. I have never written before, but now I have a few questions to ask.

Who took the part of Dirk in "So Big," in the latter part of the picture? Who was the gentleman who married Colleen in this picture and died when Dirk was just a child?

Are Tom Moore and Owen Moore brothers? Are they related to Colleen?

What is the name of the gentleman that took the leading part in "The Son of His Father?"

Hoping I haven't taken up too much of your space, I am JUST A MOVIE FAN, Deykin, Neb.

We are happy to have a caller from Deykin, and hope you will visit us often.

Ben Lyon was Dirk De Jonkr in "So Big." John Bowers had the role of Purvis De Jonk, Dirk's father and the husband of Colleen.

Tom and Owen are brothers but they are not related to Colleen. She has a brother who sometimes plays in pictures, Cleve Moore. Their real name is Morrison.

Warner Baxter had the role of "Big Boy" Morgan in "A Son of His Father."

Dear Editor: Most of your fans give their opinions as to their favorite stars and pictures, so I'll give mine. My favorite actors are: Jack Holt, John Barrymore, Lionel Barrymore, Raymond Griffith, Ronald Colman, John Gilbert, Richard Dix, Douglas Fairbanks, Ricardo Cortez, and Ramon Novarro.

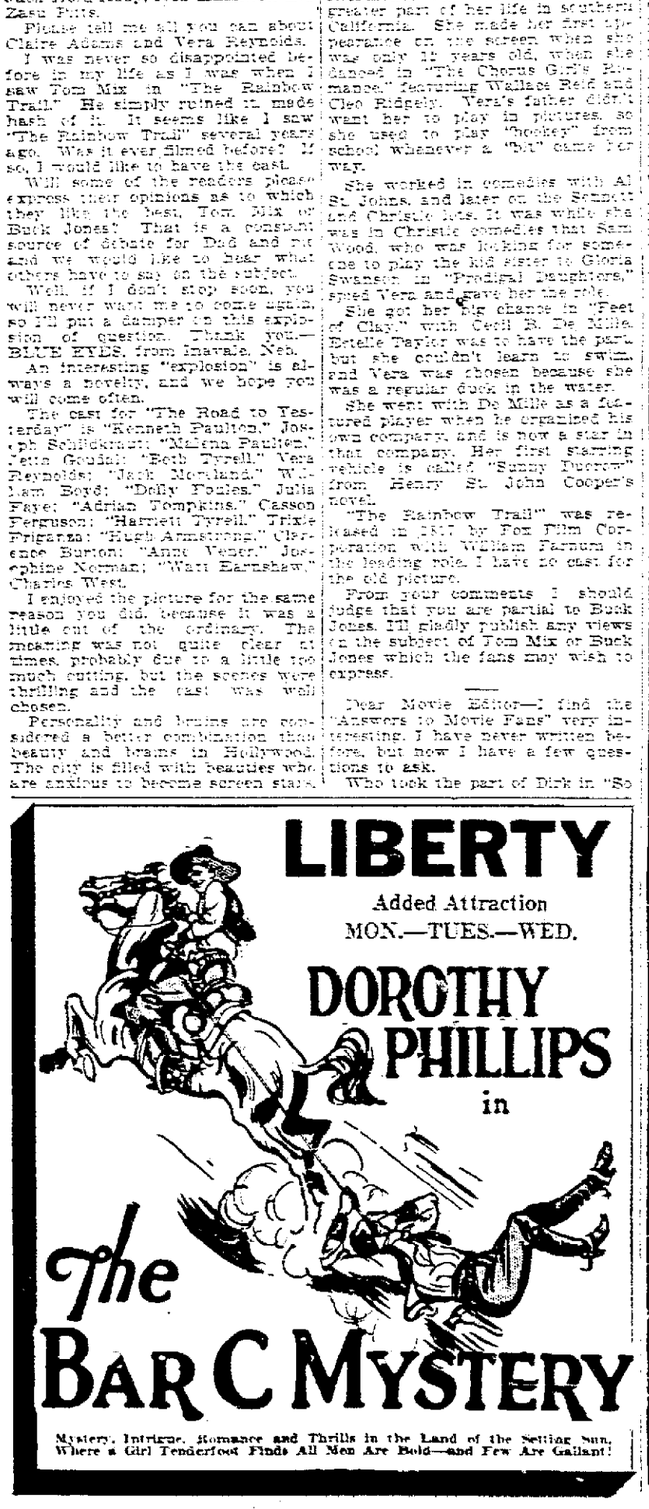

Actresses: Mary Pickford, Pola Negri, Doris Kenyon, Vilma Banky, Claire Windsor, Lois Wilson, Bebe Daniels, Constance Talmadge, Betty Compson and Leatrice Joy.

Directors: James Cruze, Cecil B. De Mille, D. W. Griffith, George Fitzmaurice, Rex Ingram, Allan Dwan, Eric Von Stroheim, Frank

GENASCO Solves the Roofing Problem for Farm and City Buildings

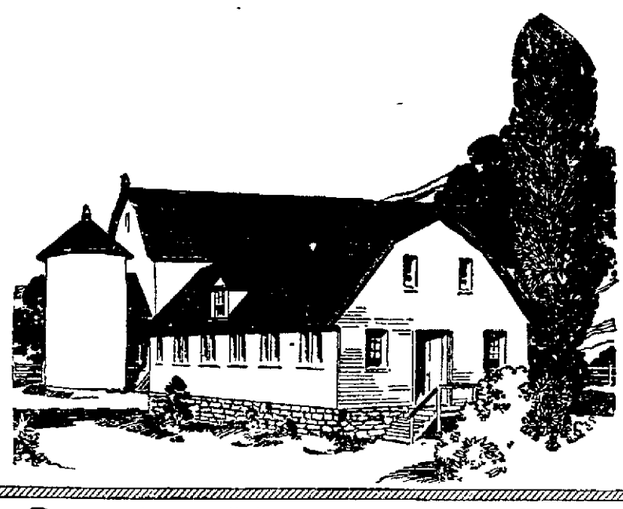

For the Farm

Farmers demand roofings that are leak-proof, storm-tight and fire-resisting—that are low in cost, easy to lay, easy to repair and that will last for years. That's why Genasco Roll Roofing—smooth surface and slate surface—is standard today in all parts of the world. It is the rofing waterproofed with the famous Trinidad Lake Asphalt Cement—a product of the ages.

For any building where a roofing less ornamental than asphalt shingles is desired, put on Genasco Roll Roofing. A full supply of the celebrated Kant-Leak Kleets supplied with each roll.

For the City

The owners of city building choose Genasco because of the added dignified appearance. Because of it's fire resisting qualities. Because it lays flat and does not warp or curl. Easy to apply over old shingles and outwears the ordinary roofing by years. The three colors give a wide range to carry out color schemes. Talk to owner of a Genasco roof and let him tell you why he is satisfied.

What Will It Cost To Build?

Isn't it about time to stop guessing about the present cost of building and find out what the home you are promising yourself and family will actually cost—NOW?

Many more people would be building with lumber if they knew the facts about the present cost of construction.

But don't build by rule of thumb. Come in and examine carefully considered, well executed plans.

We have many such plans to show you, from which you may select a home that will be just right for your needs and means.

A California Bungalow That Features Privacy

TYPICALLY California this bungalow puts a premium on privacy. In every feature it is planned to that end. Looking at this perspective no one would suspect for a moment that the kitchen was tucked away in that attractive right hand corner at the front. But there was method in this the bedrooms are given complete privacy, relieved of street noise.

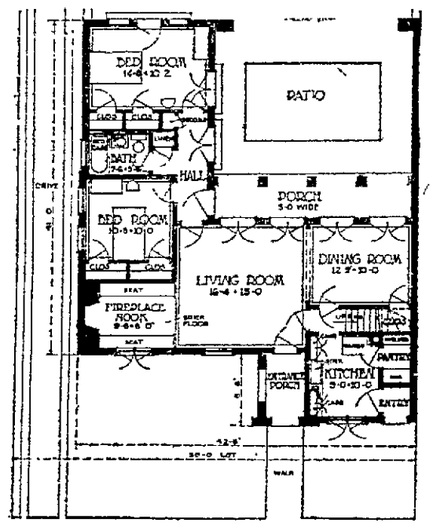

Living and dining rooms are practically one continuous room. From either French doors open upon a porch facin gthe patio. Insuring privacy in the patio is an extension of the house wall to the depth of the bedrooms on the left.

For cool evenings is a delightful little nook with open fire place off the living room. Built in seats increase its comfort and an added touch of friendliness comes from a floor of vari-colored brick, laid roughly. It was a happy thought.

The two bedrooms in the rear are reached through a miniature hallway from the living room. Between them is the bath. Both are well lighted and open upon the patio.

THE CORONADO—DESIGN NO. 206

Built of skintled brickwork and roofed with tile of a harmonious color this bungalow, when adequately dressed with shrubbery, presents an appearance and extends an appeal that is irresistable.

Distinctly a bungalow for a warm region it could be fitted with heating system and basement to meet the climatic conditions of any section. As shown it has neither. It is distinctly of that peculiar type, one hundred thousand strong, which has made California peculiarly its home and the bungalow the reigning favorite.

The Common Brick Manufacturers' Association, Cleveland, Ohio, can furnish complete drawings for this design Leaflet on brick construction sent upon request.

Tournament Will End Bridge Season At University Club

With the closing of the bridge season at the University club comes the one great occasion of the year, the tournament, which is to be held Tuesday morning at the University club.

Mrs. E. J. Faulkner, the chairman of the ladies' day luncheon and bridge festivities which have been held each week, is also in charge of the tournament.

The players will be twelve in number and include those who have made the highest scores during the season's games. The playing will begin at [illegible] o'clock Tuesday morning, and the tournament should be finished by noon. Twelve hands will be played. The same rules that have prevailed all season will govern the play.

Those who will compete for the grand prize which is to be given are Mesdames.

Earle Fisher, L. A. Ricketts, H. B. Miles, Ralph Weaverling, Frank Quick, Raymond Bauer, Roswell Weeks, Leonard Flansburg, Thomas Woods, Otto Dumwitz[illegible], Wayne Prindle, Miss Anne Stuart.

The season has been a most successful one, according to Mrs. Faulkner, and the women have enjoyed the games played each Tuesday. The hands will be progressive Tuesday morning, and the players will cut for partners.

The grand prize will not be decided upon until after the play is ended.

It is Mrs. Faulkner's idea that who ever wins should have something she really wants rather than some article that someone presumes she might like.

Bridge is the one diversion that stands winter snows and summer rains; it is good the entire year around. No sooner does the University club season close than the Country club season opens, and bridge goes merrily on with scarcely a pause.

Wednesday is the chosen day at the Country club usually for ladies' day, and many will be the bridge table in the lounge, and on the veranda. Mrs. C. J. [illegible] will have charge this summer.

Assisting Mrs. Faulkner at the University club the past season were Miss Anne Stuart, Mrs. Thomas Woods and Mrs. Raymond Bauer.

Educational Club To Hold Spring Meeting May 1

The Nebraskan Woman's Educational club will hold its spring meeting in the form of a luncheon Saturday, May 1, at 12:30 o'clock at the Hotel Lincoln. The committee in charge plans to make this meeting particularly interesting. The principal speakers will be Mrs. Mary Bradford, state superintendent of Colorado. Miss Ruth Pyrtle of Lincoln will give a report on the work of the committee on [illegible] of the National Education association. There will be a report also on the work of the legislative committee of the Nebraska Educational Woman's club, of which Miss Alma Hosic of the State Teachers' college, Kearney, is president.

This organization has in all approximately [illegible] members. The club is divided into six districts, corresponding to the districts of the state teachers association.

Recently the club made a study of educational standards and the results, according to the committee, were far from comforting. It was found that [illegible] per cent of the teachers of the state are below the minimum standard of preparation and that 44 per cent of the teachers are either inexperienced or new in location each year; Nebraska ranks thirtieth in the average salary, and twenty-eight in willingness to support education, although, according to its ability to support schools, it should rank seventeenth.

Engagement Announcements

Mr. and Mrs. William Chapline Ross of Roundup, Mont., formerly of Omaha, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emily Ross, to Dr. Floyd Clayton Harwood of Lincoln. The wedding will take place June 2, at Roundup.

Both Miss Ross and Dr. Harwood are well known in Omaha. Miss Ross was reared in Omaha. She was graduated from the University of Nebraska in the class of 1924, and is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority, also of the honorary society of Mortarboard, and of Phi Beta Kappa. Dr. Harwood is a graduate of Yale university where he taught previous to his coming to the University of Nebraska last fall. He is a member of Zeta Psi and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Varney of Broken Bow announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Vivian Varney, to John C. Whitten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Whitten of Lincoln. The wedding will take place June 8, at the home of Miss Varney's parents in Broken Bow.

Miss Varney attended La Salle seminary in Auburndale, Mass., and also attended the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Mr. Whitten was graduated from the University of Nebraska in the class of 1924 and is a member of Beta Theta Pi. He is engaged in the practice of law with the firm of Mann and Whitten.

Dean and Mrs. Carl C. Engberg announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Charlotte Engberg, to William Allen Trout of New Orleans, La. The wedding will take place June 4.

Miss Engberg will be graduated from the University of Nebraska in the class of 1926, and is a member of Chi Omega sorority. Mr. Trout was graduated from the Nebraska university in the class of 1923 and received his master's degree in 1924.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Seacrest announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Seacrest, to Victor F. Foss of Lincoln. The wedding will take place May 29, at the home.

Both Miss Seacrest and Mr. Foss have attended the University of Nebraska, where Miss Seacrest is a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority, and Mr. Foss of Phi Alpha Delta fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Doherty of University Place, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Nadine Doherty to Floyd D. Anderson of Lexington, Neb.

Miss Doherty is a member of Alpha Kappa Delta at Nebraska Wesleyan, and Mr. Anderson is a member of Theta Phi Sigma, also at Wesleyan university.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Soklyn announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sarah Soklyn, to Emanuel Sawslak, of Los Angeles. The wedding will take place May 2, in Los Angeles.

Last Number Junior League Entertainment

The Lincoln Junior league will close its lecture series next Tuesday evening, when Lieut.-Col. E. Alexander Powell will give his famous lecture, "The Riddle of the Riff" at the Lincoln high school auditorium.

Colonel Powell returned last September from the fifth of a series of African expeditions during which he has completely covered the dark continent. Thanks to the extraordinary facilities placed at his disposal by the French military authorities, he is able to bring to American audiences the inside story of the momentous struggle which is being waged in the Riff between the mountain warriors of Abd-el-Krim and the French armies under Marshall Petain. His story deals not only with the actual fighting but with the broader and more significant aspects of this "war for civilization" which as Col. Powell points out, owes its inception to the machinations of Moscow and which is shaking the whole world of Islam.

Col. Powell is truly an interesting speaker. He really does what the most of us merely dream about and he has journeyed up and down the world for more than a quarter of a century, plunging into each new travel adventure with the zest and enthusiasm of a boy.

Willard Yates of Lincoln had the opportunity to meet Col. Powell while traveling in the east some time ago, and was very much impressed with the lecturer. During his brief stay in Lincoln, Col. Powell will be the luncheon guest of Mr. Yates.

Whethere the Junior league will sponsor another lecture course is not known, but it has been definitely decided not to do so the coming year. The coming lecture will close the second lecture season which members of the league and those who have heard each number of the series, have enjoyed.

Instead of the lecture course, or a home talent review, the league will formally open the new Cornhusker hotel next September.

The marriage of Miss Priscilla Poindexter of Denver, to Raymond Tottenhoff of North Platte was announced the past week by Mrs. Louise Poindexter, mother of the bride. The marriage took place Monday, December 21, in Kansas City. Mrs. Tottenhoff is attending the University of Nebraska and is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Mr. Tottenhoff was graduated from the University of Nebraska mid-year and is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. They are at home in the Donald apartments.

Patronesses of Schumann-Heink Appearance Here

Lincoln people are making great preparations for welcoming Schumann-Heink, who appears at the city auditorium Wednesday evening, May 5, under the auspices of the American Legion. There has been no other singer in recent years who has held the love of audiences throughout the country as has Schumann-Heink, and now, at the age of 64 years and past, she is making her jubilee tour, which she will not permit any one to call a "farewell" tour. And there are thousands of men and women throughout the country who are hoping that it is not.

Twenty Lincoln women who are socially prominent and who are actively interested in music and in Schumann-Heink are acting as patronesses for the Legion benefit. They are as follows:

Mesdames—
E. J. Faulkner

Marion Talley Comes In Great Artists Course

Marion Talley, the nineteen-year-old Kansas City girl who startled the country with her debut into grand opera the past season at the Metropolitan Opera house, New York City, will open the Great Artist course in Lincoln Monday, October 4. Miss Talley will be heard in Lincoln, which will be the only concert she will give for many miles around. Willard Kimball, director of the Artist course, secured the only open date for Miss Talley.

Since her wonderful success in grand opera, Miss Talley has given several concerts, the most recent one having been given at Hartford, Conn., where she was given an ovation at the station when she arrived, and presented with the keys to the city by Mayor Norman C. Stevens. Later a reception was held for Miss Talley in the famous [illegible] reception room, where such noted personages as Marshall Foch and few others, have been received.

At the close of the lecture, Mrs. H. S. Franklin, on behalf of the department, presented Mrs. Sheldon with a bouquet of roses.

"The United States and Its Possessions" will be the subject for study next season.

PROFESSIONAL AND BUSINESS WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Crete Axis club's annual attraction this year, called "The Jollies of 1926," was presented to a capacity house April 15. The proceeds added substantially to the fund for the piano recently purchased for the club rooms. The first act, a thirty minute mixed minstrel, started the show with a dash that carried all through the entertainment. Other acts were dancing acts and a playlet under the supervision of Mary Ellen Inglis, dramatic director of Doane college. The stunt which the Crete girls put on at the state convention in Fairbury recently, was repeated by request. The talent in the club was used to the fullest in this show and all feel well pleased with the success of the undertaking.

Members of the Business and the Professional Women's club of Aurora were pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Anna Petty and daughter Verdah, Wednesday evening. A salamagundi dinner was served at 7 o'clock, each member having brought an article of food beginning with the first letter of her last name. The food not served was auctioned off by Edna Clark after the dinner hour. Cards and conversation furnished the entertainment the balance of the evening.

Reports from the state convention at Fairbury were given by the delegates from Fremont at the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club in its rooms last night. The reports were given in the form of a little impromptu play.

An innovation entering into the club activities was the introduction of the "Club Booster" a paper that is being issued for each meting of the club.

Refresments and general sociability concluded the evening's entertainment.

The members of the Beatrice Business Women's club held a very enjoyable meeting on Friday evening. Delegates to the state convention held at Fairbury recently gave some very good reports. An interesting address by Professor Carey followed the reports. Alice Parsons won the attendance prize for the month of March.

ORIGIN, DEVELOPMENT OF RUSSIAN COMMUNISM.

"Communism vs. Americanism" was the subject of a talk to the Axis club Tuesday evening by John Curtiss of the state railway commission. Mr. Curtiss traced the origin and development of communism in Russian history, and told various ways in which he said the communists are now working in America. His talk was an appeal to loyal American citizens to be alert to the activities of such organizations as the communist party.

Dr. M. E. Vance gave a short talk in keeping with the dental health week campaign.

A shop-talk was given by Miss Lillie Peterson of Folsom Brothers Co.

After the program, the stunt which was given at the Fairbury convention was repeated and reports given by the following delegates: Blanche Mahannah, Fay Sherwin, Elizabeth Geeting, Kate Field, Erma Johnston, Merle Lowder.

Mrs. Pearl King Clark, national vice-president for Nebraska, was present and outlined plans for the national convention to be held in Des Moines in July. Mrs. Clark is chairman of the Nebraska "pep" committee.

New members who joined were, Anna Rankin, Rosalie Vopat, Minnie Wright, Esther Eppens, Charlotte Kling.

The dramatic art department of the Lincoln Woman's club met for the closing party of the year at the home of Mrs. P. T. McGerr, Tuesday afternoon. A one o'clock luncheon was served and this was followed with a program consisting of several vocal numbers by Miss Hazel Wehrman; a group of readings by Mrs. Regina Holcomb, instructor in the dramatic department of the University School of Music and interpretive dances by little Roberta Brown and Harriett Byron, pupils of Miss Marjorie Barstow.

Between sixty and seventy members attended, besides a number of guests, among them Mrs. E. L. Marty, retiring president, and Miss Helen Tuttle new president of the Lincoln Woman's club.

The hostess was assisted by the following: Mrs. A. W. Miller, Mrs. Ed Wood, Mrs. W. H. Moore, Mrs. J. G. McBride, Mrs. J. R. Roberts, Mrs. F. M. McElrath.

The department gave a bridge tea at 1122 O street, Wednesday afternoon. A program of vocal numbers was given at this time by Miss Helen Hille and readings by Mrs. J. L. Kohler.

FRENCH DRAMA OF THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY.

The Lincoln Alpha Delphian chapter met in Y. W. C. A. rooms, Monday April 19. Mrs. Fred Bricka had charge of current events. The study of "The French Drama of the Seventeenth Century" was in charge of Mrs. J. C. Munger. Text reports were presented by the following:

"The Bourgeois Gentleman"—
....Mrs. William Cunningham
"Alceste and Celimente"—
...............Mrs. R. J. Slater
"Lartuffe"........Mrs. A. V. Perry

The next meeting will be May 3 with Mrs. W. C. VanAndel as leader.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Davis, 2223 R street, who will celebrate their fifty-second wedding anniversary, Monday, April 26. In the evening Ray Davis, a son, and Mrs. Davis will entertain at dinner at their home, 3004 Wendover, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Davis. Covers will be arranged for eight.

COLUMBIA MEMBERS ELECT NEW OFFICERS.

The Columbia Chautauqua circle met Wednesday morning with Mrs. George Campbell, 1129 North Thirty-seventh street. After a short business meeting and a lesson on current events the club took up the principle feature of the meeting which was the election of officers, resulting as follows: president, Mrs. V. B. Mays; vice-president, Mrs. William Wilson; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. G. Dixon.

At one o'clock the hostess served luncheon. Mrs. B. A. Cosner and Mrs. M. Posson were guests.

KAPPA DELPHIANS IN STUDY GREEK HISTORY.

Kappa Delphian chapter met Thursday morning at the Y. W. C. A., for the study of Greek history. The leader, Mrs. V. M. Fenton, spoke on "The Rise of the Athenian State" and Miss Emma Wittman followed with a discussion of "Sources of Greek History and Early Migrations of the Greeks." The topic "Early Sparta," was given a general study and "Early Athens" was considered by Mrs. Floyd Pegler; other topics were: "Development of Athenian Government," by Mrs. J. R. Roberts.

"The Struggle with Persia," Mrs. V. M. Fenton.

"The Athenian Empire," Mrs. S. A. Sanderson.

"Greek Statesmen," Mrs. F. N. Blanchard.

CHAUTAUQUA ADDS FOUR NEW MEMBERS.

The members of Alexandrian Chautauqua circle met for the last time at a luncheon, Friday held in Y. W. C. A. in honor of Mesdames W. W. Curfman, W. A. Scott, J. P. Thompson, L. W. Wilkins who are new members and will aid in the programs next year. Also Mesdames G. E. Barber, H. R. Beeson, G. H. Buer, B. A. Cosner, James I Davis, L. J. Hyde.

A vase of brown-eyed Susans formed the centerpiece and carried out the yellow and brown color motif used in the table decorations.

The program was in charge of Mrs. C. J. Campbell and consisted of the following:

"The Nature, History and Practice of Art, Part I," by Mrs. C. J. Campbell; "Part II," Mrs. L. J. Hyde.

"How to Live," Mrs. J. A. Nicholson.

"Life of the Ancient East, Babylonia," Mrs. Irwin Blunk.

"Palestine," Mrs. L. F. Meier.

"Life and Times of Cleopatra," Mrs. J. O. Murphy.

"Chautauqua," Mrs. B. A. Cosner.

DELPHIAN CHAPTER REVIEWS "KING LEAR."

The Delta Delphian chapter met Thursday morning in the city library parlor for a study of "King Lear," Mrs. W. A. Sahn, leader.

"The Tempest" will be the subject of study on May 12.

STATE W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The executive committee of Lancaster county W C T U met at state headquarters Monday noon After a covered dish luncheon considerable busines was dispatched. Mrs. Stella Moler was made secretary to young people's work and will begin to promote interest in "Patriotic Roll," a national enterprise to enlist young people to active support of the eighteenth amendment. More than a thousand signatures were secured in the county last autumn and the state is set to go better during the next few months College View is ready to organize a second chapter of young people's branch and Capitol union has a membership ready to organize. Plans were made on Monday for the celebration of mother's day and flower mission day.

University Place union met at the home of Mrs. A. W. Medlar on Friday afternoon. Plans were completed for the dinner to be given on Thursday. The roll of allegiance was initiated A mother's program was the order of the day Mrs. O. H Binson sang "Victory," a favorite song, written for Miss Willard and used at national conventions for years A very interesting paper upon "Proper Foods for Children," prepared by Mrs. C. C Nichols was read by Mrs. E. H Linquist and a talk upon "The Ethics of Dress" by Mrs. Albert Sharp, both subjects elicited very lively discussion. The petition for the abolition of compulsory military drill was presented and signatures obtained.

A mother's meeting at the City Mission on Friday was under the sponsorship of the county W. C. T. U. Bennet union was to have contributed the program but the rain prevented them from coming However, Mrs Mary Glover, of Bennet, aided by Mrs. Bristow and others, improvised a program. Mrs Bessie Johnson, county president presided, and ladies from the county served refreshments About forty mothers were present.

BUSINESS WOMEN'S LEAGUE.

From the Matterhorn to Long's Peak was the journey by pictures on Thursday evening following the dinner, conducted by Walter Kiener. The Matterhorn, the most beautiful and the loneliest peak in the world, was pictured from all sides, showing the routes and ways by which it has been climbed Valleys were shown at some high altitudes, and the peasants with their cattle, sheep and goats A hospice which for 3,000 years as a haven for travelers up the heights, still stands and performs its work of mercy Pictures of Geneva were shown, and clumps of white and blue gentian and other mountain flowers, including the rare Edelweiss. The program will consist of addresses by Clifford L. Rem. B. Rosalie Crabtree and vocal and instrumental music followed by a party.

The first lodge was founded in Baltimore by Thomas Wildy and five members, April 26, 1819. All members of Odd Fellow and Rebekah lodges are invited to attend the entertainment given Monday.

The Lincoln '61 club commemorated the anniversary of the birthday of General U. S. Grant at its regular luncheon Friday at the Lindell hotel. In additional to the regular business of the club, Mrs. Robert Felders of Omaha gave a group of musical numbers. Rev. Frank F. Travis, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, himself a son of a Union veteran, gave an address on General Grant's career as a citizen, soldier and statesman paying tribute to his rugged honesty and his kindness in victory to the defeated foe.

The Swedish Independent Order of Vikings held a banquet at Walsh hall, Thursday evening, April 22 in honor of the officers o fthe grand lodge who were here from Chicago. About seventy-five members attended. Senator C. J. Warner acted as toastmaster for the evening.

Mr. John Lindeen of Chicago, who is attorney for the order, gave a talk about the old peoples' home in Gurnee, Ill. This address was followed by short talks by Past Chief Gust Carlson, Past Grand Chief Henry Nordholm, Grand Secretary, Erick Thorlin and Swan Larson of Omaha. Brief talks were made by Grand Chief Deputy E. D. Forsberg, Dr. E. J. Fleetwood, J. F. Nelson and Financial Secretary Frank Edwards, all members of Norman Lodge 38.

The meeting was concluded by J. Mail chief of Norman lodge 38, on behalf of the members, with a word of thanks and appreciation to the visiting brothers for their visit.

Sergeant Richard L. Harris, post 131, V. F. W. held its regular meeting April 23 and discussed plans for Memorial Day. Commander Franklin E. Taylor will represent the post in co-operating with the Memorial Day committees. The following committees were appointed: Grave decorating, Comrades Jewett, Brink, Weyant; floral committee, comrade Frank Knore. Comrade Jewett will be in charge of the V. F. W. part in the parade.

Students Give Annual Farmers' Fair May 1

Above, a photograph of the Follies of the 1925 Farmers Fair. The Follies will present "The Cowgirl Chorus" at this year's far.

May 1 is the big day at the college of agriculture campus for the students of that institution. Farmers Fair, the annual educational exposition and fun frolic, is scheduled for that day. The college will throw open the doors of all its departments to the public.

Farmers Fair came into being in 1916, when the first fair was put on successfully. Since that time, with the exception of the two years during the war, a greater fair has been shown each year than that preceding. With the 1926 fair but a week away, the stage is being set for the largest crowd of visitors yet. The fair is not only the largest all-student activity in the university but of the country, the college claims. Its average yearly attendance is over 10,000

In opening up the doors to all people on the day of May 1, the college of agriculture will present exhibits which have been planned and worked upon for the last two or three months. They are to have something that appeals to the minds of everyone.

The agricultural engineering department students will put on an auto show. At this show will be shown all the late and popular models of automobiles. Open-cut models will also be shown. In connection with this there will be a tractor show of all the kinds used in this country. Students will be in charge of the tractors and autos and will demonstrate them to the visitors. One of the two tractor testing stations in the United States is located at Nebraska, and a tractor will be on test during the day of the fair.

But the engineering department is only one of the nineteen which will have displays. Some of these departments are horticulture, agricultural chemistry animal pathology, home management, institutional management, animal husbandry, vocational education, soils, and dairy.

The home economics students have planned a model kitchen that will save some of the million steps that every housewife takes during a year. A dress "clinic" will also be in operation.

Fun Frolic.

On the midway of Farmers Fair there will be amusements of many kinds. The fair classic this year will be the pageant, "The Piper," is the title of this year's production. More than seventy girls are in the cast and many talented singers and dancers are among them. The costumes are designed by the women of the home economics department.

The Follies and Snorpheum have their day May 1. The Follies, composed entirely of girls, will present "The Cowgirl Chorus," a protrayal of western life. The Snorpheum, the show made up of men will give "Cornhusker Cappers."

Two dances will be in progress during the afternoon and evening. A big floor is being laid and it will be covered by a huge tent.

National Meeting Grand Lodge B. P. O. Does Here May 5 and 6

The fifth annual convention of the grand lodge, Benovelent and Patriotic Order of Does of the United States will be held in Lincoln Wednesday and Thursday, May 5 and 6. The convention will be held in the Elks club convention hall. Headquarters for the guests will be at the Lincoln hotel.

The order is in its infancy in Lincoln and the local order is putting forth every effort to make this national convention interesting and entertaining to the delegates.

The nominating committee for the grand lodge officers of the national order will meet Tuesday, May 4. At this time there will also be a meeting of the supreme trustees and judiciary committee of the grand lodge. A club of past presidents will be organized at this convention.

Committees Named.

The committees for the convention are as follows: Motor corps, Mrs. M. P. Caplan, chairman with Mrs. F. P. Marlow, Mrs. Ralph Ward, Mrs. J. H. Rosenstock, Mrs. John Chapman, Mrs. G. E. Doerck, Mrs. C. E. Spangler, Miss Mary Reha. Luncheon committee Mrs. Harry Dolen, chairman, with Mrs. F. E. Brubaker and Mrs. A. J. Kurz. Ball and banquet committee, Mrs. Louis Hansen, chairman, with Mrs. E. S. Wolfenbarger, Mrs. J. P. Hanson, Mrs. O. C. Denny, Mrs. Nick Paper, Mrs. May Kreigh Mrs. P. M. Plamondon, Mrs. Jack Zelmer, Mrs. F. E. Brubaker, Mrs. F. P. Riordan. Reception at governor's mansion Mrs. Dan Needham, and Mrs. M. S. Bacon, chairmen, with Mrs. F. P. Marlow, Mrs. W. E. DeButts Mrs. C. F. Coy, Mrs. W. F. Splain, Mrs. E T. Schmitt, Mrs. Ben Wolf, Mrs. W. R. Oliver, Mrs. P. J. Cosgrave and Mrs Harry Dolen. Committee on songs and cheers, Mrs. Phil O. Van Keuren. Press committee, Mrs. Harry Detweiler.

University Notes

The 1926 Cornhusker, the "Cornhusker of the Future," is in the last stages of preparation. Plans for future development of the campus will be featured. All the pictures for the book are in, and most of the cuts from them are complete. Several sections have already been set, and ar eready to be printe. The annual will be same size as last year, 9 by 12 and will be bound in black and gold. An "N" monogram will be on the outside cover. The staff expects to have the book finished by May 20. Donald F. Sampson, Law '27, Central City, is editor-in-chief; Tom Varney, '27, Broken Bow, is business manager; and W. F. Jone, '27, McCook, is managing editor.

One of the leading articles in the April issue of the Journal of Geography is "The Selection of Geographical Material for the Junior High School," by Prof. E. E. Lackey of the department of Geography. The author discusses the particular function which geography fills in the general objective of junior high school education, and gives criteria for the proper selection of geographical material to meet the aims he outlines.

A special convocation will be called Friday, April 30, to hear Dr. T. S. Quigley, professor of political science at the University of Minnesota, speak on "The Chinese Political Puzzle."

Among recent visitors at the alumni office were Dr. David A. Doty, '25, Denver; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie H. Noble, '25, Beatrice; Carl H. Swanson, '20, Culbertson; Harold P. Miller, '16, Shanghai, China; and Edgar H. Stretter, Muscatine, Ia.

Phi Lambda Upsilon, honorary chemical fraternity, held an open meeting Thursday, April 22, to hear Prof. C. S. Hamilton of the department of chemistry, speak on "Chemistry and Medicine."

The department of dramatics gave the play. "A Pair of Sixes," at the Temple theater, Saturday, April 24, for the Lincoln Woman's club.

P. H. Patton telephone engineer of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company at Omaha, was in Lincoln last week to consult with Dean O. J. Ferguson concerning the Nebraska section of the American Institute of Electrical engineers, of which Dean Ferguson was recently elected chairman.

Miss Marjorie Shanafelt of the museum staff will give a talk on "Peacocks All" at the museum this afternoon at 3 and again at 4. Slides will be used to illustrate the lecture.

In place of a variety show originally billed for the American Legion, May 7, at the Orpheum theater, the University Players have been asked to give a play. "Spooks" a mystery play similar to the "Cat and the Canary," and "The Bat." The presentation will be one of the first in the west. Popular prices will prevail.

Hastings Notes

Hastings college was represented at the Kansas relays April 17 by mile and half mile relay teams and two individual entrants in the 3,000 meter run. The relay team composed of Butler Isaman, Hastings, Harold Hamil, Sterling, Colo., Malcolm Keiry, Monte Vista, Colo., and Ned Greensilt, Hastings failed to place in either event. The men entered in the 3,000 meter run were Howard Welch, Berwyr, and Lowell Evans, Hastings. Welch placed fourth.

President Calvin H. French visited Omaha and other Nebraska cities last week in the interests of the college.

A picnic supper was held in Heartwell park, north of the campus, Tuesday evening, April 20. A short program was given by Prof. H. M. Cunningham and his band. Clayton Harry, '28, Stamford, gave several readings.

The officers-elect for the Student Association for the coming year are: Lyle Ashby, '27, Hastings, president; Sterling Harris, '27, Alliance, vice president, and Helen Fine, '27, Ong secretary. The election was held in chapel Tuesday morning.

Saturday afternoon the Bronco trackmen met the Doane Tigers in a dual track meet. It was the first time that the new track, which has been recently cindered, was used.

Members of the 1927 college Y. M. C. A. cabinet will go to Fremont next Saturday and Sunday to attend the spring training conference for cabinets, being held in connection with the state convention of the Y. M. C. A. Several of the men will appear on the program of the conference.

Another tradition was upheld when the students pledged practically $500 for the Alice Carpenter fund last week. Miss Carpenter, who graduated from Hastings in 1920, is a teacher in China and the Student Association of the college has raised $500 for her support every year.

Miss Alberta Axtell, '27, Scottsbluff, left Monday morning for Milwaukee, Wis., where she will attend the national Y. W. C. A. conference held in that city April 21 to 27. Miss Axtell was the only delegate from Hastings College.

Prof. Franklin Knower and Roland Propst attended the meeting of the state forensic association in Lincoln April 17.

Miss Beulah Halsted, '25, Hastings, directed the musical comedy "In Old Vienna," which was presented by the Sutton public schools April 15 and 16. The cast consisted of the high school glee club assisted by sixteen grade children making a total of sixty-one people.

MODERN EVE

MORNING THOUGHT

Arguments never have settled a question.

Battles never have built anything.

Guns never have won a victory.

Might is right only when it is spiritual power generated by one force—love.

Two persons may argue pro and con forever and never come to an agreement unless one is so filled with generosity, kindness, and nobleness of spirit that by his own nobility he brings right to his side, or he is brought to the side of right. Nothing less than such an adjustment—which is love—ever will settle an argument.

Let us not think then that we must fight for our rights, or that we must argue bitterly for any reason whatsoever. We reap what we have sown, and harsh words produce bitter fruit. Kind, just words produce harmony and supply.

—ADELAIDE HENSLEY

Spring Brides Are With Us.

It Makes a Difference

It makes a great difference, since the dresses are so short, what kind of hose one wears. I have been searching recently for the best hose at the least price and I surely do like the Holeproof that I found at Ben Simon & Sons. They are very strongly made although they look like gossamer. The reinforcements around the foot and heel are of lisle but the lisle is on the inside, covered with silk. Then the reinforcement at the top is silk. The all-to-the top-silk are $2. The lisle tops or service silk are $1.75. Your choice depends on whether you wear supporters or roll your hose. The silk to the top, of course, rolls much more neatly and if the dress comes above the knees in walking no lisle line can show. Just ask to see the fourteen new shades of Holeproof hose at Ben Simon & Sons.

Mothers

We read about the Mothers of the Days of long ago.
With their gentle, wrinkled faces
And their hair as white as snow
They were "middle aged" at forty,
And at fifty donned lace caps,
And at sixty clung to shoulder shawls
And loved their little naps.

But I love the modern mothers who,
Can share in all the joys.
And who understand the problems of
Her growing girls and boys:
She may boast that she is sixty.
But her heart is twenty-three—
My glorious bright-eyed mother,
Who is keeping young with me.

Remember Your Mother

Walter Johnson, at the Sugar Bowl, 1552 O street, always prepares for events. Never have I seen more appropriate gifts for Mothers' Day than the boxes of McDonald's and Richmond's delicious candy Mr. Johnson has ready for you Not just candy, but candy in a box with a verse of sentiment under a glass or a beautiful picture. The box looks like a framed gift for the wall and, indeed, the cover of the box could very nicely be used for that very purpose. Be sure to see these unusual gifts ranging in price from $2 to $7 before you buy elsewhere.

That Cup of Coffee!

So many folks had remarked about the cup of coffee one gets at the Grand hotel that I felt the urge to find out why it is so much better than the average. why it has that mellowness without bitterness. When I saw the tricolator, learned that the boiling water went through the grounds only twice and was never allowed to draw the caffine or bitterness into the beverage. I understood the difference. And this coffee comes with the 25c lunch of chicken pie or the more elaborate 35c lunch. You must admit that you get more and better lunches at the Grand than at—well, comparisons are not fair. But go to the Grand hotel for lunch and see for yourself.

Evening Appointments

During this warm weather when so many folks are wanting permanent waves, Mrs. Lewis at the Giffen Beaute Shoppe, 1340 M street, will take evening appointments for busy girls who have not the time for appointments during the day and who prefer Giffen Service. "Each permanent wave we give," said Mrs. Lewis, "pleases me more than the ones preceding it. We take great pains and the results are so satisfactory that we feel fully repaid for the extra time and trouble. In the permanent waving, too, of course, we give 'Giffen Service.'"

Busy girls will be glad to know about this new ruling. I suggest that you call B3273 and talk with Mrs. Lewis about an appointment if you are a business girl.

Sport Shoes Now

Sports clothes are way in the lead right now. Even at afternoon affairs one sees white, white and black and other combinations in beautiful sports clothes. This calls for sports shoes and I have found nothing to equal the new "Pegasus" white oxford at Ben Simon & Sons. It is a combination of white kid and whitish-gray lizard trim — a dandy combination for dressy-sports wear. Then the new "Wimbleton" straw-calf with crepe rubber sole, or with flexible leather sole are the latest dictates of fashion for the golf links, for the tennis courts and for street wear. They range in price from $4.85 to $6.85. Ask to see the "Pegasus" and the "Wimbleton" advance models.

White kid with lizard trim are the newest.

Since Mrs. Breen Came

Since Mrs. Breen, of Chicago's most exclusive section, came to take charge of Orkin's millinery department, Lincoln women have been finding the loveliest hats imaginable to suit their particular types and coloring. Now the hats at Orkin's for Madame and Mademoiselle, are the last word in elegance and dash. New ones arrive daily.

A Bright New Touch

Even if you have a coat made into a suit, or a suit made over, or if you purchase a brand new suit, any one of them will need smart neckwear to give the right touch of chic. I found new things you never thought of in the neckwear department at Gold & Company. Those smart new vests with collars attached and a bow at the side, the lace vests with dainty collars and ties of original smartness. None of these accessories are expensive. They range in price from 50 cents up, and just going through the department will give you an idea for brightening up your old garments. The scarfs ranging in price from $1.95 up are simply indispensable and they are as colorful and pretty as they are necessary. Every girl needs one or more of these inexpensive scarfs for her spring costumes.

Selecting Bridal Linen

Every bride expects linen among her wedding gifts—and she gets it. The problem now confronting her friends is, what to give that is new and different. I have found it. In the linen department at Herpolsheimer's I saw table linen that would make any bride exclaim with delight. For instance, the all linen Belgian breakfast cloth with colored border, or the Czechoslovakia pure linen barred breakfast cloth with four napkins to match for $2.50. The patterns are so different that they would start the day right.

Then the pure Scotch linen, "Strathmore" dinner cloth, alike on both sides and resembling heavy satin, in floral and conventional design, from $6.95 up, depending on size. There are napkins 20 inch to match.

Whether it is a dainty bordered or barred breakfast cloth or a handsome dinner cloth, one of those I saw at Herpolsheimer's would help to make any bride's new home a joy. The cost is small. You are sure to find a lovely gift for just any amount you wish to pay.

For the Cultured Class

Lincoln is known throughout the country as a city of culture and few cities this side of New York have such opportunities for satisfying the cultured tastes. The latest center of art is the Shurtleff Quality Furniture Home, 633 South Seventeenth street. It is just too New Yorky for words. It is a real home fitted up with the odd, unusual and artistic. It shows one just where mirrors, odd tables, the latest inventions in efficiency furniture, and tapestries belong. One learns how to fit up a hall landing as a smoking den, or to use the Venetian winged mirrors atop the highboy, or how to turn the latest oblong library table into a dining table with one slight of hand trick. My O! what one does learn about beautiful interiors at this place. And the beauty of it is that the prices are within the reach of everybody. It reminds one of those exclusive art shops in Greenwich Village and the ultra smart, upper east side in New York.

At the Harper Shop

Miss Martha Harper, originator of the Harper Method Shops, was skeptical about permanent waving machines. Her slogan is "Nothing to hurt the hair; everything to help it." But this year she has stamped with her approval the Eugene steam waving machine. So, of course, Mrs. Webster at the Harper Beauty Shop, 1130 N street, is putting in permanent waves guaranteed not to hurt the hair but to help it. The hair comes from the machine wet, so regardless of how much heat it has, the hair cannot be harmed. Call B1945 for an appointment if you want one of the beautiful Eugene permanent waves.

What Shall You Give?

Have you decided definitely what to give Mother for Mother's Day? Mr. Charles W. Fleming, 1311 O street, suggests that you give something that will last. A wrist watch perhaps, or a string of Navarre pearls with a permanent guarantee, or a beautiful filigree platinum and diamond broach, a cameo ring. Any one of these gifts cannot fail to please mother.

Memory's Album

Two of the most important events in a girl's life are approaching: graduation and marriage. And at these times most every girl has a good photograph taken. Spend an hour, as I did, in the Hauk Studio, 1216 O street, and you will be convinced that you are in an art gallery. The photographs are beautiful and alluring and you are sure to have pictures that you will be proud to send to friends and relatives. Select your frame right there and have your pictures tinted at a small cost. Each picture is a work of art at the Hauck Studio.

Says Champe:

"A recent convention of the American Master Hairdressers Association in New York brought to the fore some of the best permanent wave operators in the United States. And these operators used every kind of a machine that is made. For this permanent waving contest there were, five first and five second prizes which were all awarded by a jury. All of these prizes were given to Nestle operators with the exception of one second prize which went to Miss Leon who used the Leon process. If there are any machines as good as the improved Nestle Circuline where were they at this convention?"

Mr. Champe now has two expert operators doing permanent waving. One new operator did permanent waving in Los Angeles for movie actresses for five years and for the socially elect at Miami, Fla., for two years.

They are doing the very latest cured bobs at Champe's. You know that neat, short comfortable cut in the back with a few soft curls or swirls to form a pretty soft frame for the face. Not only coeds are having this bob but business girls and matrons—it's that pretty.

The Philanderer

Old Sol is a philanderer—
A clever, designing tempter,
Whose dazzling mantle
Of shimmering beauty
Casts a spell over me
And spins my sanest plans
All topsy-turvy.
He turns the glorious spot light
On the verdant park and budding trees
Across the way.
Where happy childish faces
Radiate such perfect joy
That my restraint is taxed.
I'd break the bonds of books and pen
And thoughts—
To dances with those young creatures
Wild and free.
Baby leaves are cooing—
A soft warm breeze is humming—
Roller skates are clanking—
Cement walks are chalked
By youngsters in their glee
My heart is like a cable
In a mighty tug of war.
O glorious sun!
Hide your smiling face behind a cloud
And tempt me not!
For the heart of me begs:
"Come on out and play."
But the head of me orders
"You stay in and write."

New Interiors For Spring

Do let me tell you about "Wallcrust" before you decide definitely on the new dressing for your walls this spring. I found a brand new wall treatment at Van Sickle Glass & Paint Co., 138 So. 10th St., and it isn't any more expensive than other wall finishes of merit. It is a product of master painters and furnishes every decorative effect known to the craft. It is made in eight tints, dries hard in twelve hours, it is washable and therefore more economical in the long run than the average wall finish. The variety of shades makes easy the matter of harmonizing your walls to other interior decoration. Since "Wallcrust" is the newest thing for modern homes, every home maker should see it whether or not "Wallcrust" becomes a part of the interior.

High Culture

The highest culture is to speak no ill;
The best reformer is the man whose eyes
Are quick to see all beauty and all worth;
And by his own discreet, well-ordered life
Alone reproves the erring.

A Good Idea

A good idea plus economy I found in the Excella patterns at Mayer Brothers. The price is now down to fifteen cents for this splendid bi-monthly fashion magazine. It carries a coupon which means that you get the magazine for five cents if you buy a pattern. The designs in this new book are stunning. Then right in that same section of the store you will find dress materials that are astonishingly beautiful and smartly colorful. The Excella patterns are easy to follow and there is always someone at the dress goods counter at Mayer Brothers to assist you in combining materials and to give you good ideas. I enjoy going there—you will too.

Your House Beautiful

Housecleaning time means that your home is to be a house beautiful. Of course you need new drapes for some of the windows or doors and I am sure you will be delighted with what I found at Vance and Holm's, 16th and M streets. They have exclusive patterns, exquisite materials and unusual ideas for drapes. They will also recover your upholstered furniture at exceptionally reasonable prices. Your house beautiful will be benefitted by your visit tomorrow at Vance & Holm's.

Mrs. Northrup's Permanent

Have you seen Mrs. Northrup's permanent waves? She uses the Edmond Oil permanent waving machine and if your hair is extra dry she gives you a hot, steam-oil shampoo. Mrs Northrup waves to the type. If you can wear fluffy hair she wraps the curls with the fluff in view. If you wear a close hair dress she wraps accordingly. This week, Mrs. Northrup, 1117 H street, will give you a wave for $8. Telephone for your appointment today if possible L7185, as Mrs. Northrup will give the waves this week only for that price.

Ask Modern Eve

Do you know how to care for your permanent?

Do you know where to purchase the best ready-to-wear, millinery, furs, shoes and underthings?

Do you know what the prevailing colors will be for spring?

This service is conducted for your benefit. There is no charge for it. Therefore,

ASK MODERN EVE.

A Happy Woman

A MAN dreams of wealth, success and power.
A woman dreams of a home of her own and babies to love.
Happy is the young woman whose dream is fulfilled. With good health, housework is not a burden. Her home echoes to the prattle of healthy children. She must not fail those tiny hands. Her husband is still her comrade and confidant, sharing her new responsibilities. She is content.
Happy, too, is the older woman who holds her children's children in her arms and lives to see a new generation dreaming dreams of its own.

A young girl in Iowa was in such a weakened condition that she had to leave school. One day, after being in poor health for about two years, she picked up an advertising booklet and read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
"I began to take your medicine," she writes. "Now I am a housekeeper with six children and I have taken it before each was born. I cannot tell you all the good I have received from it. I read all of your little books I can get and I tell everyone I know what the Vegetable Compound does for me."

Clue to Lost Races in Nebraska Ruins

BY A. M. BROOKING.
Curator Hastings College Museum.

No news item of recent years has created more intense interest with the general public than that concerning the opening of King "Tut's" tomb in far-off Egypt. During the time the newspapers were featuring it so strongly, we saw staid business men, eagerly scanning the daily papers to note the latest discoveries.

While listening to a lecture upon this subject by one who had recently come from there, I could but wonder why people are so interested in far-off discoveries and yet give so little heed to things of the same nature right heer at home.

In Arizona and New Mexico there is a veritable army of scientists engaged in excavating ancient Pueblo ruins, probably fully as old and interesting as those in the old countries, but these men toil day after day without notoriety of any sort. It is doubtful if the majority of our people even know that these ruins exist although the eastern universities and other institutions are yearly sending out expeditions to explore them.

Nebraska has a rich field in this line which is practically untouched, but it seems next to impossible to interest anyone sufficiently to secure financial assistance, and the few men in our state who are devoting their spare time and considerable of their own money to such pursuits rarely receive mention of their discoveries. Few people outside of scientific circles know of the intensive work carried on for years by Robert Gilder of Omaha, among the aboriginal earth-dwellings near that place.

Find Lost Indian Village.

Several items have been published in local papers recently concerning the discovery of an old Indian village near the town of Guide Rock, Webster county. This village was discovered by A. T. Hill of Hastings, who has been much interested in archaeology and the early history of our state. The historical significance of this discovery is the fact that in 1806, Zebulon Pike then a Captain in the United States army traveled to a certain Indian village near the present Kansas-Nebraska line for the purpose of securing the friendship of the Pawnee Indians, and obtaining their allegiance to the American government. He reached the village which he designated in his correspondence and narratives as the "Pawnee Republic" and on Sept. 29, 1806, took down the Spanish flag then flying over it, and hoisted the stars and stripes for the first time over the newly acquired territory of Louisiana.

The true location of this village was lost sight of for many years and the state of Kansas in the year 1901, erected a monument near Republic, as being the site of the village; however the finding of this ancient village by Mr. Hill, has raised a doubt about Republic being the right place. The Guide Rock village corresponds so nearly with Pike's description and the finding of what are undoubtedly rifle pits on the north bluff where Pike is said to have camped, has caused students of the subject to doubt seriously the Republic location. It is very probable that the state of Kansas has made a mistake.

Now Just a Field.

In June, 1924, Mr. Hill and myself again visited this site which we have now positively located to be upon section 13, township 1, range 10, Webster county, Nebraska.

Since the discovery of the village, J. T. Dewitt who is farming the ground at present, has turned over all the relics he has found and otherwise done everything in his power to assist u swith our investigations. He was able to furnish us with valuable data, as his father came to this vicinity many years ago. Mr. Dewitt has resided in the neighborhood continuously without realizing that perhaps he has been farming some of the most historical ground in the state.

During our stay, we opened three graves, being assisted by A. E. Dougherty, Harold, Glen, Otto and W. P. Shipman, who lives nearby. Mr. Dougherty displayed marked ability in locating graves, which at times seemed almost uncanny. In the north graveyard, he never once failed to point out the exact location of one and we were glad to give him full credit for finding those we opened. Dealizing that this ground is still in raw buffalo sod, with no depressions, and practically nothing to guide us, and that the bodies were not placed in rows or regular order, one does not wonder that the boys always deferred to his judgment in digging.

Children Buried Separately.

We have proven that the children and younger people are buried on the north hill, probably a quarter of a mile from those of the adults. We know of at least seven graves where the bodies of Indian children were found, and it is hard to tell just how many more have been excavated, for relic hunters have visited this place for years. In fact Mr. Hill suspicioned the village was located nearby when he heard the story of a man who told of two races of people being buried there, supposing that the children were dwarfs of some sort.

We know of only one adult man being found in this place. For some reason he was not given burial among the braves. Our supposition, borne out by our study of early Pawnee tration, is that this one must have been held in contempt by the other Indians, who considered a coward or physical weakling unfit to associate with fighting men and he was therefore buried ignominiously, as few relics were found in the grave.

I have since examined the skull taken from this grave and find that it is a typical Pawnee cranium, but above the temporal bones, what is evidently a scar extends back on both sides several inches. It seems to me very probable that this Indian was scalped. If this is so, it fully shows why he was buried apart from the rest. The Indians had a superstition that if one was scalped he was forever a lost soul and was banished from the happy hunting ground. This was also one reason that in battle Indians many times performed unusual acts of bravery to remove bodies of the slain.

The Graveyard of Children.

The first grave that we opened at this time contained one of the most perfect skeletons I have ever examined, and I was able to save every bone. It was that of a child of perhaps five or six years of age with a perfect set of teeth. The skull shows some distortion near the base of the brain, due perhaps to its having been bound upon a board or Indian cradle during its infancy. We found many glass beads about the body, but no implements or relics of any sort.

The next one we opened contained the body of an infant about 20 months old, so fragile and badly decayed that it was impossible to save but a few bones even with the great care we exercised. Buried with this child was a bronze bell three inches high, five copper rings and two bracelets of the same material, the rings and bells undoubtedly having been playthings during its short life. The finding of bronze and copper ornaments in these graves is significant, as it shows commerce with the Spanish of the southwest, being identical with some found in graves at the Skidi village on the Loup river. Pike's narrative speaks of the allied groups to the north.

My study of the early trade among our western Indians indicates that the Spanish traders of Pike's time used a much different grade of merchandise than those who were entering the country from the east, for while the Spanish were still trading them fairly high grade ornaments, the easterner introduced hoes, knives and other implements which, though cheaply made, were of much more real value to the Indians.

The ornaments further bear out our contention of this being the identical village of Pike's travels, as we know that the Spanish at that time were doing everything in their power to retain their hold upon the Pawnees.

Eagle Claws Form Link.

About the body of the infant could still be distinguished layer after layer of buffalo hide, with which it had been wrapped. The dirt from about it must have contained at least a quart of the early trader type trader beads, among which we also found a string of more ancient shell beads made from the dentalium or tusk shell. The shell beads still showed traces of the sinew upon which they had been strung. In the bottom of the hole lay a rotted bag of brilliant vermilion paint. We also found several eagle claws, but whether used as a necklace or thrown into the grave we could not determine. Thus it was evident that its parents belonged to the Eagle clan, the same as the one whose remains were found by Mr. Hill a month or so previous.

All the bodies found here are buried in a flexed position, facing the east. This is an Indian custom with most western tribes and presents nothing unusual.

During the time I had been engaged in opening the graves of these two children, which I found fairly shallow and easy digging, Mr. Hill had been laboring in the grave of a youth where he found nothing except bones and some badly rotted wooden implements, too far gone with decay even to show for certain what they had been. His morning's work resulted in nothing except two spoons made from the horn of a buffalo.

Some Graves Fifled.

My wife has often remarked that if I worked as hard in the garden as I do sometimes in digging up relics, we would have a better supply of winter vegetables—and I have never been able to dispute her word. It is truly surprising how much earth a man can shovel when he gets interested in such a place and although we had already done what some would consider a day's work, we set out after lunch to try our luck among the burials of the braves over on the south hill.

When we reached the hill which contained them we were chagrined to find that somebody had previously dug into some of the graves promiscuously, using no care in removing their contents, for scattered about on the ground nearby lay the remains of what had been most wonderful wooden mortars I have ever seen. It had stood upon three legs and measured about a foot in diameter with a fine deep depression in the top. These are very rare and Hill almost wept as he carefully gathered up every piece and endeavored to fit them together.

The excavating we have done has always been with the utmost care. We photograph everything in position when possible and endeavor to arrive at facts. It is a shame to find graves rifled just for the sake of relics of doubtful value, for it is possible that just the identical bit of evidence needed to connect this village with Pike's visit may be in some of these graves and be ruthlessly lost by someone who has no knowledge of how to remove it, or what it might be after they secure it. It is next to impossible for an untrained man to remove fragile articles or crania from the earth, unless they are found in exceedingly good condition.

Pre-historic Men Farther West.

The pottery collected here is similar to that found at the Loup river villages and evidently made by the same methods. We have noted an abundance of both smooth and basket weave, together with some few fragments of red ware. It is all tempered with minute particles of shell and stone. The sort known to us as basket weave ware was made by constructing a basket of grass and shaping the vessel inside of it. When it was fired the grass basket burned away, leaving the outside of the ware marked with the imprint of the grass. All the pottery found was well made and shows these people to have been first class workmen.

I cannot think that this village is extremely old or that it existed a great many years previous to the advent of the whites, for we found no trace of shell beads, such as we have further west at both Bladen and Bloomington. If proof of real prehistoric inhabitants (as I think there may be in time) is ever found in this section of the state, it is much more apt to be found near some of these latter places.

All of the crania I have examined from the Guide Rock village seem to be typical Pawnee. They compare very well with these obtained from graveyards on the Loup, but differ greatly from those found further west, not having the heavy super-orbital ridges, denoting great age, that is conspicuous in the I have from Bloomington. I conclude that those from Bloomngton are of an earlier and different race, and the fact that nothing of modern orgin was found with them, bears me out. What history we have read on the subject advances the theory that the Arikara Indians inhabited this section previous to the Pawnees and in a certain government bulletin I find a tradition, telling of their removal to the north about the time the Pawnees arrived.

Anti-Horsethief Society of Adams County Disbands After Its Usefulness Has Passed

(Special to The Star.)

HASTINGS, Neb., April 24.—The Anti-Horse Thief association of Adams county is no more.

One of the last of the pioneer organizations formed throughout the middlewest to "make it unhealthy" for the men who preyed upon the stock farmers, this association's funds were distributed during the past week to three cemeteries in which many of the members of the protective body now sleep. The survivors concede that the need of protection against horse thieves long since ceased to exist, so this phase of the early life in this section has passed to its place in history.

The last members to join the association paid their dollar fees as late as 1912, but since that year there had never been a meeting, nor a call for a meeting, until the following notice recalled that such an organization still existed:

Distribute Funds.

"There will be a meeting of the members of the Anti-Horse Thief association at Hansen on March 10, at 2 p. m., 1926 for the purpose of annulling the organization and transferring the funds bow in the treasury, amounting to about $225, as follows: $200 of said fund to the treasurer of Greenwood Cemetery association to become an endowment for the said association, the balance of the said fund, amounting to $2., to be transferred to the general fund of the association. The endowment to be controlled by the trustees of the association. Your absence will be considered as approval of said transfer."

Action Is Deferred.

March 10 was a cold, blistery day, with a high wind blowing across the level prairie from the northeast, chilling to the marrow all who chanced to be out. Farmers were unable to work in the fields, so a number of them made their way to Hansen to assist in the process of annulling.

In a hall, once the main room of a thriving early day cheese factory, the little gathering of about twenty-five grey haired men was called to order by the president, George Durkee, who had held the office for upwards of 25 years.

Mr. Durkee stated the reason for the called meeting and proposed that action be taken in line with the cards sent out to call in the members.

But the members were wary of hasty action.

"Why should we give it all to Greenwood?"

"Have we the right to take such action?"

"Where are the constitution and by-laws?"

"Have we a quorum?"

Barrage of Questions.

These were questions that came in rapid fire from around the cast iron stove in the middle of the center aisle. Its sides were already growing red and some of the chill of the hall was being crowded out. The fire had been started by the members after they assembled, for the Hansen hall does not boast of a janitor.

The call for the constitution and by-laws revealed that the secretary A. A. Stone, who but a short time before had celebrated his golden wedding anniversary here, had left them at his home.

The discussion waxed warm for a time but there was no display of hard feeling.

President Durkee brought a smile when he attempted to explain why the card suggested that the entire fund be given to the Greenwood cemetery.

"It just occurred to us that if the cemetery had an endowment—and $200 would just be the nucleus of such a fund—we might keep the cemetery looking a little better and perhaps folks would want to patronize it more."

Fund Had Grown.

The meeting was adjourned amid a deal of good natured banter and a later date was fixed for disbanding.

At the later meeting, it was learned through a new report by the treasurer, E. E. Ormsby of Trumbull, that the association was even richer than it had thought, due to the accumulation of interest through the years. A total of $318.70 rested in the Trumbull bank waiting to be drawn, and after much discussion, and the counting of names from the vicinity of each of the three cemeteries in the district from which the anti-horse thief association drew its members, it was finally decided to prorate the fund as follows:

Greenwood cemetery $177
Rosedale cemetery .....$ 88
Cathloic cemetery .....$ 18

The balance of the money was used in paying off a few minor expenses attendant upon the disbanding of the association.

The history of this and an earlier protective association is full of interesting sidelights of early days.

The Hansen organization was formed in 1904, after the Peter Johnson team was stolen, with wagon, harness and some small farm tools.

Theft Arouses People.

Peter Johnson was section foreman and the loss, amounting to about $300, was a serious one for him. The whole country around Hansen was roused when the news spread, and bloodhounds were called to help trail the thief.

The Anti-Horse Thief association was the result, and a glance at the by-laws shows that its charter members had visions of its growing to statewide scope.

"This association shall be known as the Central Nebraska Protective association, with its principal office at Hansen, Neb.," reads the first article of the constitution.

Then it goes on to say that the object of the association was the arrest and conviction of any person or persons stealing horses, sows or mules from any of the members. Arrangements were made for delegates to the major organization, and for community association meetings, as well as for the levying of $1 from each member whenever the funds fell below $200.

Last Assessment.

The last assessment was made in 1910 but long before that time the name had been changed to read the Anti-Horse Thief association of Central Nebraska, and even later, of Adams county.

The Anti-Horse Thief association of Blaine township has one of the most interesting histories of such organizations in this section. It was formed in the winter of 1884-5 following a siege of unusual activity on the part of organized gangs of horsethieves.

The "last straw" was the theft of a fine team of Clydesdale horses from William Huxtable, one of the most prominent farmers in the southwest part of Adams county. Mr. Huxtable was a jolly fellow, a strict church member and a kindly neighbor whom everyone thought well of. His horses were his especial pride and he was one of the very few men in this section at that time who possessed pure breds. He secured his stock from a brother-in-law, an importer, who lived at Washington, Ill.

The team which was stolen weighed over 1,100. In a way, the whole countryside was interested in that team.

Lewis Siwell, alias Worthington, came to the Huxtable farm to work as a harvest hand and stayed on into the winter. On the night of December 3, 1884, he disappeared and with him went the team, a new wagon purchased by Charles Huxtable, one of the older sons of the farmer, a number of horse blankets, a lariat, a bucket and other things the former hired hand evidently thought would be useful on a long trip.

Tracing the Thief.

It happened that the new wagon had been damaged during the past week and had been repaired by placing an iron bar on the side to strengthen the box where it was split. Fred Bruningson a blacksmith north of the Burlington depot, did the work. This gave a clew by which the wagon could be traced and Bruningson was available as a witness to identify the wagon.

One of the team had a peculiar way of stepping with one foot outside the wagon track and by its track the Huxtable boys were able to trace the fleeing horsethief rather easily as long as the trail was fresh.

They found that he had come toward Hastings, stopped at a hay stack on a farm east of town which ws later to become widely known through this section of Nebraska as Cole's park, secured a collection of guns and ammunition and then started north toward Doniphan.

Dave Barlass was sheriff of Adams county then, and he organized a posse that spent upwards of a week looking for the thief with the team and wagon, but no trace of him after he left Doniphan could be found.

Then, at the suggestion of the sheriff, cards describing the outfit and the man were mailed in the central part of the state as well as to every ranch clear out to the Colorado line. Finally word came from the sheriff of alley county that he had the team, the wagon and the man and would hold them until Sheriff Barlass and persons who could satisfactorily identify the outfit could come for them.

Feeling ran as high as the sheriff and his party, made up of Fred Bruningson, C. A. Huxtable and Lou and Tom Crissman, started for Ord, the county seat of Valley county. They found the prisoner had broken jail the night before their arrival and though they were disappointed then, those who look back on the scene at the depot here the night they returned are glad that Adams county was saved the disgrace of another lynching.

"There was more than one colled rope in the crowd," L. A. Huxtable, who was afterward secretary of the Blaine Township Anti-Horse Thief association for years, declared.

"That crowd meant business, and it was a grim gathering of men who formed the association a few nights later in our barn yard. Father's team made 18 horses taken in 14 nights and people were at the end of their patience.

"It cost father about $300 to get the team and wagon home again."

Stole More Horses.

Siwell later came back to this section of the state and stole three other teams but he was finally captured and sent to the penitentiary for three years. Just before the term was up the elder Huxtable was called to Lincoln to identify the man as the one who had worked on his farm and then he learned the balance of the story of the fellow's trip to Valley county.

Siwell said that he campd outside of Ord in a cornfield, went into the town at night, broke into a store and took some provisions as well as a gun or two. He had too many things when he came to go back to his wagon to carry in his arms, so he took a wheelbarrow to push the mback. He was trailed by the wheel track, and though he broke camp before the loss from the store was discovered he was followed by the peculiar track of one of the big horses over a distance of about 65 miles.

"Siswell said he took a fancy to them and he 'didn't like to bother the old men' to ask for them," Mr. Huxtable said with a laugh.

The first officers of this association were Dave Holman, president; Fred L. Huxtable, secretary; Alfred Linegar, Tom Brennan, Charles Huxtable and Frank Maddox.

During the early days of the association's life six riders were appointed, whose business it was to go out and search for the thief in case a horse was stolen. They were to keep on searching until they were called in by the president and their orders were go "get 'em."

No restrictions were made as to how the order was to be carried out, but wide publicity was given to the fact that no thieves were ever to escape again.

Horse stealing stopped immediately and there was never another team taken in that vicinity. The association was kept alive for 20 years and disbanded some time during the summer of 1904 or 1905.

Costly Love

MRS. LOUISE OSKAMP.

Mrs. Louise Oskamp of Cincinnati, has received one of the largest "love balm" checks ever issued in the United States. She was awarded $79,500 after she complained the family of her husband had alienated his affections.

A Stormy Scene Halts Probe Of Blanton Charges

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(I. N. S.)—A barrage of cursing late today temporarily halted the house investigation of charges that District of Columbia Commissioner Frederick A. Fenning secured excessive fees as guardian of World war veterans.

Believing he had been called a liar, Representative Blanton, democrat, of Texas, who aunched the investigation, jumped to his feet shouting at Fenning: "You are a dirty x x." The district sub-committee was immediately thrown into bedlam of angry shouting. When order was restored both Blanton and Fenning amended their remarks.

Fenning, testifying in his own behalf after waiving immunity, issued a general denial of Blanton's charges and finally branded the majority of them as "untrue," which precipitated the hostilities.

SEE EXPANSION FOR Y. W. C. A.

Believe Removal Of Religious Bar a Step Forward.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 24. (U. P.)—Unprecented expansion for the Young Women's Christian association was seen tonight by leaders of the movement as a result of the decision today to allow women of all religious faiths to take an active part in its activities.

By a vote of 1,174 to 199, the ninth biennial convention of the Y. W. C. A., today took the stand, ruling that hereafter membership will not be restricted to women of the Protestant faith.

Many thousands of women, it was said, have for a number of years been anxious to participate in the organization's work—in the interests of the girlhood of America—but until today they have been barred by the religious line. Now, it is believed, the membership and financial resources of the association will be greatly increased.

The principal objection to the amendment was that eliminating the restrictions would be the same thing as refusing the advice of the founders who drew up the present constitution.

Two of the most prominent speakers on the subject were Miss Charlotte Niven, London, general secretary of the world Y. W. C. A, and Miss Michi Kawii, Japan, first Y. W. C. A., worker in her country.

"I represent the point of view of Japan where only one of every 700 is a member of a Protestant evangelical church," Miss Kawii said.

"There are many who are in favor of the ideals and purposes of Christianity, but they balk at becoming actual members. If you open our membership to others than members of Protestant faiths, you will make our work in my country extremely difficult."

LINEMAN ELECTROCUTED.

BOULDER, Colo., April 24.—(INS)—More than six hundred persons, stood by helpless and watched William Bradley, 38, Union Pacific lineman burn to death as he hung from a telegraph pole by his safety belt. "I will be through and down in fifteen minutes," Bradley shouted to his companions on the ground below late Friday afternoon. Fifteen minutes later he was down and through—through forever. His foot slipped and touched a power line carrying 13,000 volts of electricity. Firemen extricated his body.

Wesleyan Notes

The annual recognition of candidates for membership in the Purple Arqus and purple Dragon was held at convocation, Friday morning, April 23. Miss Lillian Calvert, the president of the Purple Arqus representing Diana, and Mr. Gayle Skerritt, the president of Purple Dragon representing Apollo, were seated upon a throne. They each read poems from a scroll telling of the aim and purposes of Purple Arqus and Purple Dragon. Members of these organizations formed diagonal lines from each side of the throne. Lists of newly elected candidates for membership of Purple Arqus and Purple Dragon were read by Miss Alice Stebbins and Mr. Ed Loder. All of the candidates were invited to the platform where they were forwally presented for recognition, and they received appropriate badges. The ceremony closed with the singing of the "Yellow and the Brown."

The new candidates of the Purple Arqus are Elizabeth Hanson, Gertrude Wells, Frances McCormick, Thelma Burdick, Ellen Douglas, Helen Wiles, Elta Fry, Lucille Gillet, Mildrer Stewart, and Mildred Fellers. The outgoing members are Helen Reese, Frances Hornady, Lucille McVey, Mae Auten, Alice Stebbins, Lillian Calvert, Ruth McClannaham, Virginia Hardin, Bertha McClain and Charlotte Mevich.

The new candidates of the Purple Dragon are Norman Gurfee, John Casteel, Wilber Cass, George Allely, Charles Payne, Aubrey Carrell, Chris Keim, Harvard Hull, Hull, Richard Gerdes, Claude Buyck Dell Dankers, Floyd Schneider, Henry Zaner, and Oscar Wiberg. Th outgoing members are Harlan Peckham, Paul Steeves, Ed Loder, Iral Anderson, Cecil Monk, LeRoy Hagerty, Myron Waddell, Gayle Skerritt, Carl Johnson, Ivan Jones, Harlan Randall, Glenn Griffith and Ray Allen.

Phi Kappi Phi, national honor society at Nebraska Wesleyan university, held a meeting in the council room Thursday at 5 o'clock. At this occasion the intiation of candidates for membership at the second annual election of Phi Kappa Phi took place. Those who were initiated were June Bishop, Eleanor Swanson, Harlan Randall, Dorothea Bignell and Glenn Hildreth. At 6 o'clock the local members of the societi held a dinner, at which Dr. Harry A. Taylor, who is a member and who also is grand president of the national fraternity Phi Kappa Tau, delivered an address. His remarks were based on results of a recent tour of inspection at a number of universities and colleges. He spoke in particular on a system of typing students in menial tests at the University of Southern California, and of the fraternity systems in vogue at the Oregon college of agriculture at Corvallis, and at the Alabama Polytechnic institution at Auburn.

The Nebraska Wesleyan university glee club, under the direction of Oscar Bennett, has completed its nineteenth annual tour. Their last program of the season was given Friday, April 23, in the Wesleyan auditorium, under the auspices of the Womens Wesleyan Educational council. A large audience listened with much enjoyment to the varied program. Following is the program:

Prayer of Thanksgiving, Glee club
Miserere Mei Deus, Glee club.
Remember Now Thy Creator, the Glee club.
Readings, Joseph Snider.
Selections, Male quartette.
Drontheim, Glee club.
Euphonium solo, Iral Anderson.
Solo, Oscar Bennett.
Bedouin Song, Glee club.
Listen Lovely Maid, Glee club.
Wait Till I Put On My Crown, Glee club.

The last number on the program was "Cleopatra," an opera burlesque of college life. Clinton Swegel acted as Cleopatra, a modern Egyptian Co-ed. Milton Coffman played the part of "The Ghost of King Tut." The three other ardent lovers were acted by Iral Anderson, Ben Christner, and Edsal Murray.

Chancellor and Mrs. I. B. Schreckengast entertained at a reception in honor of the members of the senior class Thursday evening in their home at 1625 Q street. Professor Aikman, sponsor of the senior class, and Mrs. Aikman assisted in receiving the guests. Seventy guests were present. Tiny Jean Marie Jones, the granddaughter of Chancellor and Mrs. Schreckengast, was a charming guest. Other guests were Dean and Mrs. Alabaster, Dean and Mrs. McProud, Dean and Mrs. Witte, Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert, Dr. and Mrs. Croft, Reverend and Mrs. Finch, and Mrs. Kates. The reception room and the living rom were decorated with pink roses and calla lillies. Yellow and white formed the color motif in the dining room. The delicious refreshments were served from a table artistically decorated in the predominating colors. Mrs. Witte and Mrs. Croft cut the ices, and Mrs. Finch and Mrs. Aikman poured coffee. Four young ladies of the junior class assisted.

Earthquakes And Their Causes

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

When anything that has been lying quiet suddenly begins to move, without evident cause, we instinctively ascribe life to it. I felt a slight earthquake once, and the absurd yet startlingly realistic, impression flashed through me that the globe was twitching its cuticle like a horse shaking off flies. Undoubtedly it was from such passing fantasies that all the old legends of pantheistic mythology arose.

But science shows the earth to be truly almost as restless as a flypersecuted horse. The real myth is that of the stability of its rock-ribbed frame. To say nothing of the enormous movements recorded in geological history, involving the alternate uplifting and sinking of whole continents, parts of the earth's crust are quivering one may say continually. But as the minutest forms of life can only be seen with the microscope, so thousands of small earthquakes go undetected except by the sensitive seismometer.

One of the causes of earthquakes seldom mentioned is the wearing down of hills and mountains by the rains, and the transportation of soil, sand, pebbles, and even rocks, by innumerable streams and rivers, to the plains and the seas. The wearing action is called "erosion," and the piling up at the final places of deposit "sedimentation."

The immensity of the work steadily accomplished by these operations, which gradually plane down the irregular surfaces of the continents and transfer the material to the oceanic depressions, has long been recognized by geologists and geographers, but the resulting effect upon the steadiness of the earth's crust has escaped general attention.

Recently, however, William Bowie of the United States Coast and Geodetic survey, has been quoted as affirming that erosion and sedimentation are "the real cause of earthquakes," on account of the alterations which they produce in the distribution of weight on the surface of the globe. Where the superincumbent pressure becomes very great, the crust yields and cracks and faults are produced which become "lines of weakness," along which subsequent disturbances are likely to cause earthquakes.

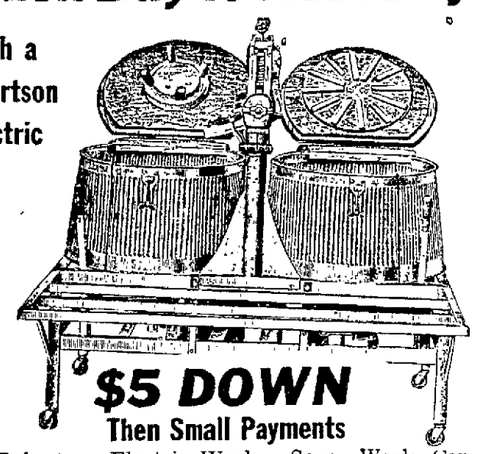

It has hitherto been the custom to ascribe earthquakes mainly to subterranean movements of the rocks, caused by internal shrinkage due to the gradual dissipation of the earth's heat. Probably the two causes work together, for the interior of the globe is certainly at a higher temperature than the crust, and the heat is conducted outward at a rate which has been fairly well measured. But if the core of the earth is cooling it must be proportionately shrinking, and such shrinkage cannot but result in distortion and buckling of the cool, rigid crust, whose underpinning has been withdrawn or weakened.

As the earth spins on its way around the sun, sweeping the tidal waves against its seacoasts by its diurnal rotation, turning the winds blowing over its surface into cyclonic whirls, speeding on in its orbit with the stupendous velocity of more than 66,000 miles an hour, and swaying under the contending and varying attractions of the sun and the moon, whose forces are, on the average, respectively equal to 3750 quadrillion and 20,000 trillion tons weight, one would hardly be surprised to find it trembling with leaping energies like a fast driven ocean liner bucking a gale.

But, in fact, it swings smoothly on, enveloped in the quiet blue of the sky by day and under the steady starlight at night, while its passengers are undisturbed by any perceptible quiver, except such occasional shaking as may arise from slight maladjustments of the internal mechanism of the voyaging globe. It is to the coarseness of our senses that we passengers owe our freedom from annoyance. But the delicate seismograph may be so adjusted as to defect even the shock of the lapping waves on the seashore and the shivering of the mountains under the impact of the winds. A real earthquake drives it off the record.

OH, IT WAS SWELL - I FELT JUST LIKE A BIRD-

CHESTER GUMP'S HANGAR

THE CAPTAIN INFORMED ME THAT YOU ASKED A THOUSAND QUESTIONS ABOUT THE AIRSHIP - THAT YOU SPENT ALL YOUR SPARE TIME LEARNING AERIAL NAVIGATION-

I NEVER HAD SO MUCH FUN IN ALL MY LIFE - WHEN I GROW UP I AM GOING TO BE AN AVIATOR-

THEN I KNOW YOU WILL ENJOY THE SURPRISE I HAVE FOR YOU - I'VE ORDERED THE FINEST AEROPLANE IN THE WORLD - IT CAN TRAVEL 200 MILES AN HOUR - IT IS PLATED WITH SOLID GOLD AND I AM GOING TO GIVE IT TO YOU FOR A PRESENT -

THERE YOU ARE, CHESTER, IT IS ALL YOUR OWN AND I HOPE IT SHALL HELP TO MAKE YOU ENJOY YOUR VISIT -

HANGAR

OH, BOY, THAT MUST BE THE FINEST AEROPLANE IN THE WHOLE WORLD - IT LOOKS LIKE A GREAT BIG BEAUTIFUL GOLDEN BIRD-

I'M GOING TO CALL IT THE GOLDEN SKYLARK-

CHESTER, THIS IS CAPTAIN LA RUE WHO WILL TEACH YOU THE ART OF AVIATION -

I'LL MAKE YOU A NUMBER ONE AIR PILOT BEFORE YOU'LL KNOW IT -

I'LL STUDY HARD AS I CAN -

HE SEEMS TO HAVE A NATURAL TALENT FOR AVIATION -

HE ACTS LIKE A VETERAN OF THE FLYING SQUADRON -

OH, BOY! THAT'S A DANDY MOTOR -

THAT'S A BOY TO BE PROUD OF -

I CAN HARDLY WAIT -

HOW LONG DO YOU EXPECT IT WILL TAKE HIM TO PILOT THE PLANE BY HIMSELF?

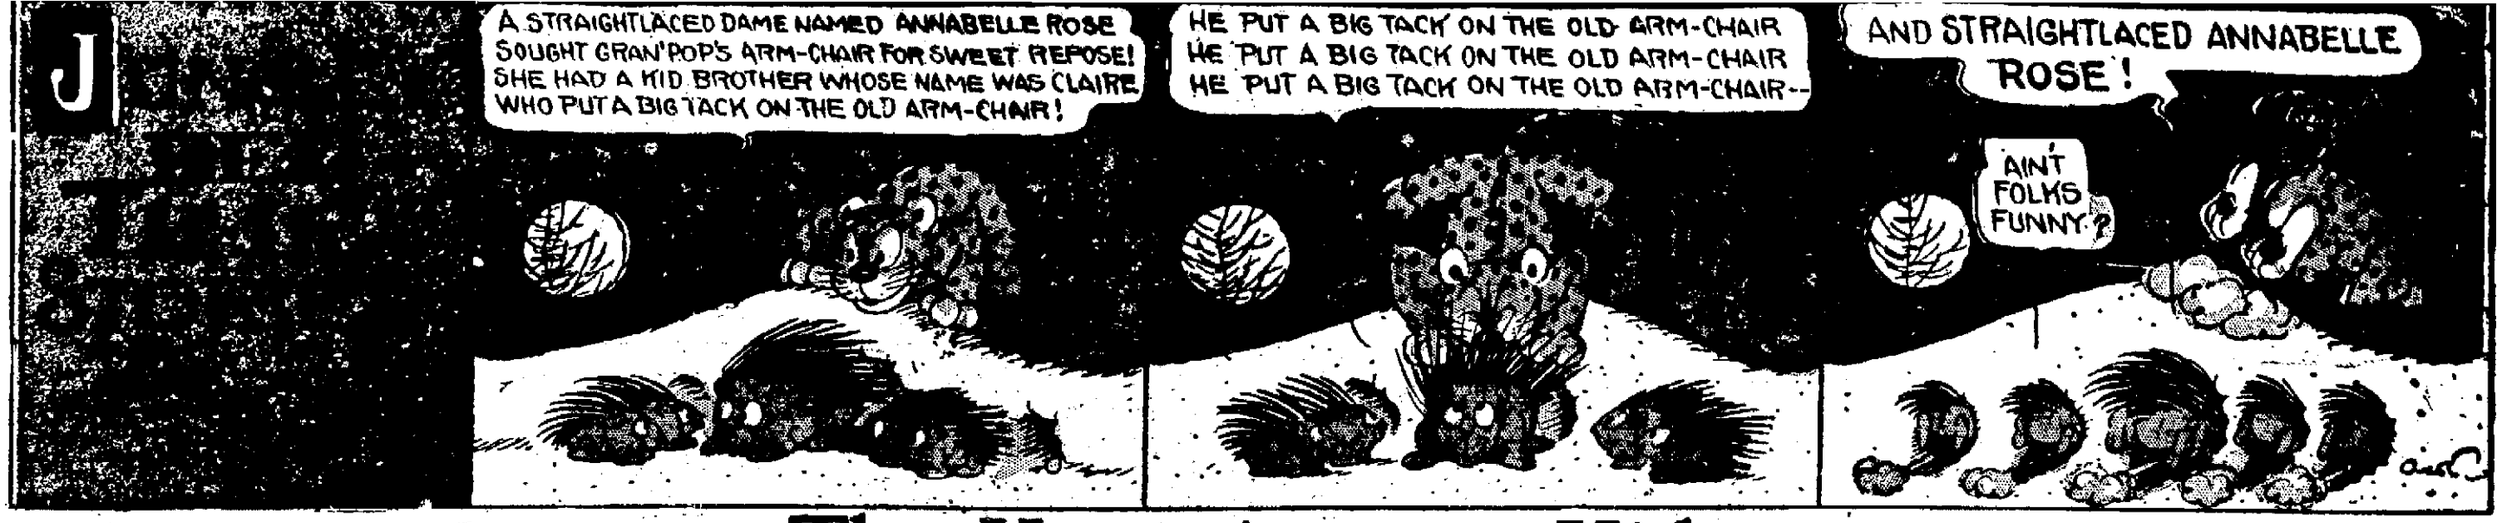

I WOULD NOT BE SURPRISED IF HE TAKES YOU FOR A RIDE IN LESS THAN A WEEK -

GEE, I WISH THE KIDS IN SCHOOL COULD SEE ME NOW.

GOLLY, WE'VE BEEN RIDING TWO HOURS AND WE ARE STILL ABOVE UNCLE BIM'S PROPERTY -- HE MUST OWN MORE THAN HALF OF AUSTRALIA -
